Citizens Stay Vast Project Of New Deal In St. Louis

Question Validity Of 1935 Relief Act

Right of U. S. to Condemn 37 Blocks for Project Assailed.

By Sidney Olson.

Thirty-eight property owners of St. Louis yesterday succeeded in stopping, at least for several months, the New Deal's proposed $30,000,000 Thomas Jefferson Memorial along that city's waterfront.

An injunction, issued by the United States Court of Appeals here yesterday, enjoined the Government from "taking any steps" toward constructing the memorial until the validity of the $4,880,000,000 Emergency Relief Act of 1935 had been decided.

Federal officials are expected to present their arguments late this year or early in 1937. President Roosevelt had allotted $6,750,000 for the memorial from the relief appropriation.

Edmund H. Toland, of Washington, and David H. Robertson, of St. Louis, attorneys representing the embattled property owners, argued that the Government not only had no right to condemn the property involved—more than 37 city blocks—but also had no right to spend taxpayers' money for the purpose.

Barred from Proceeding.

The court order enjoined Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Treasury Henry L. Morgenthau, jr., and National Park Service Director Arno B. Cammerer from proceeding in any manner with the project.

To the $6,750,000 to be allotted by the Government, St. Louis added $2,250,000, making $9,000,000 available for the project at once. The city had a further sum of $5,000,000 available to be added at the rate of $1 for every $3 advanced by the Government.

Toland contended that of the first $9,000,000, not more than $600,000 would go to relieve unemployment through the use of relief labor, as at least this sum would be required to buy property in the area. He held that this fact completely nullified contentions that the memorial's construction would be a boon to St. Louis unemployed.

Toland argued further that unemployment actually would be increased by the forced removal of industries now functioning along the waterfront in that area and by the virtual destruction of a number of prospering businesses in the district to be condemned.

$5,000 Already Spent.

National Park Service officials here said that probably not more than $5,000 had been spent yet on preliminary work for the memorial. They said this sum was chiefly in salaries for John C. Nagle, designer of the Lincoln Memorial Bridge and other well-known landscaping jobs, and a small staff now at work in St. Louis appraising property and making the first plans.

The memorial itself is in a nebulous state. There already is a Thomas Jefferson Memorial Building in Forest State Park in St. Louis, constructed at a cost of more than $1,000,000, and now housing the Lindbergh collection.

President Roosevelt, however, in a proclamation issued late last year, called the place the site "where Lewis and Clark prepared for their trip of discovery and exploration," and "the place where the Santa Fe, the Oregon and other trails developed."

Special Appeal Made.

The injunction was coupled with a special appeal from the ruling of Justice Joseph W. Cox, of the Federal District Court here, on June 24 that the Government was "clearly within its power" in proceeding with the project under the historic sites act of Congress. Toland and

7 Believed Lost At Sea Are Found On Isle in Marsh

By the Associated Press.

Parksley, Va., Aug. 17.—Seven persons, virtually given up for lost after a 24-hour search failed to locate them or traces of their boat following a Pocomoke Sound storm, were rescued from a low-lying marsh today.

A dozen boats and an airplane took part in the search. Those rescued:

A. S. Hild, Philadelphia; Harold Hild, his son; Mrs. Hild; J. H. Hild, Lansdowne, Pa.; Allen Harlan, Norwood, Pa.; Mrs. Harlan, and Harvey Parker, Onley, Va.

The castaways told today of their attempts to signal searching craft from the low-lying island. They said they could see craft on the sound, but were unable to attract attention.

Fires were started during the afternoon yesterday, but the smoke escaped unnoticed. Last night, larger fires were burned, also to no avail.

Today Capt. Cully Shreaves brought them off the island. He found them on Bernard's Island, about a mile off shore. Two men from Parksley, Will Holland and J. D. Bunwick, had spotted them on the island.

Joyous Jaunt To Texas Told By Taxi Driver

'Didn't Miss a Beer Joint,' Says Hauler of Soldiers on Bonus Spree.

Taxi Driver Ray Rose, just back from a little run to Texas in his bright green cab, says he's picked up a lot of goofy ones in his time but the passengers he hauled to San Antonio—a couple of retired soldiers—were the funniest of all.

"They sure didn't get much good out of the scenery," said Rose. "I don't think they saw anything but beer joints, but believe me, they didn't miss any of them."

A lot of things besides the scenery was wasted on his fares—Sergts. Dennis O'Brien and William Harney—the taxi driver is convinced. He thought they seemed to be having an extraordinarily good time in New Orleans, but after they had reached Houston both men asked Rose:

"How much farther we got to go before we reach New Orleans?"

Cashed Only a Couple.

The ride from Washington to Texas began about midnight August 5. O'Brien and Harney hailed Rose near the Soldiers' Home as he cruised by in his cab. They asked to be taken to Union Station.

"One of them tried to cash some Traveler's checks," recalled Rose. "He'd had his bonus money, $600, put into the checks and he wanted to cash them. But his handwriting was so wobbly that the people at the station wouldn't cash more than a couple. So then he and the other fellow got the idea of going to San Antonio. I said, sure I'd take them for $260 but first I wanted to drive by and tell my wife I wouldn't be home for a couple nights.

Mrs. Rose decided she'd go too, as far as Charleston, S. C., where she has relatives. So the quartet started off, with Harney and O'Brien sleeping most of the way to Charleston. From then on things were a little livelier.

Paid All His Expenses.

"They paid all my expenses at hotels and restaurants, and whenever we changed clothes we threw the old ones away and bought new ones," Rose related.

Before they left Georgia they loaded up on liquor in preparation for crossing the desert of Alabama.

"Then Harney and O'Brien drank it all before we came to the Alabama line," sighed the taxi driver. "But it didn't matter, Alabama may be supposed to be dry but we found it wider open than any other State."

His passengers were usually pretty well behaved, he said. Only once did they give him much trouble. That was in Beaumont, Tex. Rose stopped long enough to fill the car with gas and oil. Before the operation was completed the Relief Is Forecast In D. C. Heat Wave

Relief from the oppressive heat and humidity was forecast by the Weather Bureau last night.

It will come today in the form of northerly breezes, which are expected to drive the temperature downward.

The mercury yesterday soared to 93 at 3:50 p. m., a degree higher than the day before. The moderate temperature forecast for today is not expected to last long, the prospect being for a slow rise in temperature on the day following.

Drought Adds $100,000,000 To Relief Cost

2,000,000 Added Clients Will Force Congress to Pass New Act.

RA Burden Is Heavy; Dailey Hints at Intrastate Resettlement.

The drought will increase the relief load by 500,000 families—more than 2,000,000 persons—and will increase Government expenditures for relief by at least $100,000,000, officials estimated yesterday.

This additional load upsets all relief cost calculations and makes doubly sure the necessity for additional appropriations early in the next session of Congress.

Already 80,501 families are on the emergency drought relief rolls of the Works Progress Administration and 66,000 families are receiving monthly drought relief grants from the Resettlement Administration.

James E. Dailey, assistant resettlement administrator, estimated his organization alone will spend about $70,000,000 in grants and loans to farmers suffering from the drought between now and the end of next June, the close of the present fiscal year. Inasmuch as the Resettlement Administration received only $85,500,000 in the last deficiency appropriation bill, the relief expenditures, together with administration costs, will take virtually the whole amount.

Expect Higher Costs.

Both Dailey and Aubrey Williams, in charge of WPA in the absence of Harry L. Hopkins, said they believed the estimate of a total drought relief cost of $100,000,000 may be low.

Williams predicted the WPA will be carrying a peak load of 150,000 drought impoverished farm families on its rolls next winter at a monthly cost of $7,500,000. Inasmuch as Dailey anticipated a total cost of $70,000,000 to his organization, this would leave only $30,000,000 for the WPA, if the expense is to be kept at $100,000,000. At a rate of $7,500,000 a month, the cost would obviously go above this amount.

The two Dakotas, Wyoming and eastern Montana compose the area in which Williams and Dailey said they feared great population movements might be necessary. Both administrators pointed out that in these States the farmers have lived through from four to seven years of steady drought, and both doubted the wisdom of allowing the farmers to stay on in a land which is now hardly more than a desert in many sections.

"I am convinced," Williams said, "that is would be a great disservice to the country out there to give those people the feeling that they can rely always on relief. My thought is that they will have to face the fact that they must develop another economy. The Government cannot help them to hang on there forever."

Hints Intrastate Move.

Dailey suggested results might be accomplished through "intrastate resettlement," pointing out that there are undeveloped water resources in all the drought States.

The WPA has the responsibility for caring for families that are absolutely destitute. It calculates an expenditure of about $50 per month per family for this purpose. The RA is taking of families it believes can be tided over, at a cost of about $20 per month each. Present estimates put nearly 50 per cent of the population of some States on the relief list. In Kentucky, for instance, there are 278,000 farm families and of these, according to Dailey, 125,000 will need aid by winter. About 70,000 will be on re-

Royal Guests Sip 'Edward Cocktail' As King Rules Bar

Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia, Aug. 17 (AP).—King Edward of Great Britain turned bartender tonight for his guests and produced a drink which they named the "King Edward Cocktail."

Before going swimming this afternoon, the British monarch, who is making a leisurely cruise in the Adriatic aboard the yacht Nahlin, gave the stewards of Dubrovnik's leading hotel four hours' notice to lay in liberal supplies of ingredients and trimmings.

His exact recipe was not learned, but waiters gave the following approximation of the drink:

One-third of gin, a small quantity of sugar and ice, two jiggers of Dalmatian liquor resembling Chartreuse, Dalmatian champagne and various fruits, including olives and lemon peel.

Suicide Leap Halted in Mid-Air, Man Changes Mind, Saves Self

Milton Piers, 28, of the 1400 block of Rhode Island avenue northwest, wanted to die yesterday. He changed his mind about it somewhere between Highway Bridge and the Potomac River.

Piers perched himself on a rail of Highway Bridge yesterday afternoon. He hurled himself toward the river 50 feet below but he never hit the water. His coat caught in a piece of iron projecting from the bridge. By force of impact he was swerved around in his plunge and the fall was checked.

That is when Piers, a painter, changed his mind.

He caught hold of an iron rail on the bridge. He held there for long minutes. Later, he said he remembered two women getting out of a car on the bridge above.

"That was all I could remember," he said later in Gallinger Hospital, where he was transferred for mental observation.

The two women helped rescue Piers. A boy on a bicycle, who also saw him fall, helped the women, as did R. E. Croissant, of Benning, D. C.

Piers was not seriously injured in the fall.

1,900 Are Feared Dead Already After Three Cities Are Shelled.

The Spanish Revolt.

Five hundred rebel prisoners held as hostages by loyalist forces at Bilbao were reported burned alive when rebel shells set fire to their warehouse prison.

The entire waterfront at Bilbao was reported in flames.

Rebel land, sea and air attacks on San Sebastian, Irun and Bilbao gravely endangered the lives of 2,500 hostages held in loyalist fortresses and prison ships. Many hundreds were feared dead.

The loyalist death toll at Badajoz mounted to 2,000 as rebels "cleaned up" after capturing the city.

500 Hostages Burn.

By the Associated Press.

Saint Jean de Luz, France, Aug. 17.—The story of how 500 screaming rebel hostages held by loyalists burned to death at Bilbao in a warehouse fire started by shells from a rebel cruiser was told here tonight by sailors of the German destroyer See-Adler.

Hundreds of others, the sailors said, were burned horribly, but were being given treatment with all the medical supplies the destroyer carried which were left with authorities at Porto Galete—the waterfront district outside Bilbao.

The fire was started by explosive shells from the rebel warship Espana which, over the week-end blew up huge gasoline storage tanks after heavily shelling the port.

Earlier attempts by rebels aboard the cruiser Cervera to shell the storage tanks were prevented when the defenders lined up the rebel hostages in front of them so that the attackers would have blown up their own men with a direct hit.

Stalemated by the protective wall of living flesh the Cereva steamed away. A rebel plane later the same day attempted to bomb the tanks but its marksmanship was faulty.

Imprisoned at Docks.

When the warship Espana demolished the tanks Saturday it could not be learned whether the government defenders had again lined up hostages around them.

The prisoners used as the human wall were brought from prison ships and presumably were imprisoned in dock warehouses which were made a wall of flame by the exploding gasoline.

Refugees tonight reported the entire Bilbao waterfront was still in flames.

At Gibraltar reports were current that 50 rebel prisoners, weighted with iron bars around their necks, had been heaved overboard from the prison ship Sil off Almeria and drowned.

A British refugee named Ronco, who arrived aboard the destroyer Venetia, said the drowned hostages were mostly civil guards who had revolted.

The watery executions were carried out under cover of darkness.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 17.—Twenty-five hundred rebel prisoners in three Spanish cities—Bilbao, San Sebastian and Iran—faced wholesale execution tonight as powerful rebel forces attacked from the land, air and sea.

It was feared already 1,200 prisoners at San Sebastian, 700 aboard a prison ship in Bilboa Harbor and many others held in dynamite-mined cells at Irun may have been put to death.

Their fate, it was feared, was sealed when four rebel warships, including the cruisers Espana and Almirante Cervera, bombarded San Sebastian, Irun and Bilboa from the sea.

While the naval shelling continued relentlessly and in disregard of loyalist warnings that they would execute all their prisoners by way of reprisal, the insurgents sent airplanes roaring and bombing over the besieged cities while

TVA to Extend Rate Yardstick To Large Cities

By Robert C. Albright.

With new litigation piling up in its train, the Tennessee Valley Authority, its power resources reinforced by opening of huge Norris dam, is shifting its "yardstick" operations to large cities in the valley, and is about to close a contract with the City of Chattanooga.

Details of the contract, stepping down the rates to domestic consumers, became known here yesterday, following similar TVA moves previously negotiated in Memphis, Knoxville and 14 little communities. The Chattanooga contract already has been approved by that city, and the deal probably will be completed by the TVA board next week.

Repeating TVA history, the Chattanooga power board under the contract would construct its own distribution system, in direct competition with the existing facilities of the local utility—the Tennessee Electric Power Co. In turn, the TVA would agree to provide "continuous and dependable service" at yardstick rates.

The Chattanooga board is said to have offered $8,000,000 for the Tennessee Electric Power Co.'s distribution system, which the latter, holding these facilities worth at least $9,000,000, refused. The private company has obtained a temporary restraining order against city sale of bonds to finance the project, but the court failed to interfere with the contract.

Cut to Consumers.

Power purchased wholesale from TVA by the city would be resold to consumers at rates estimated by the power board to be 27 to 50 per cent lower than existing rates.

The residential rate provides a monthly bill of 75 cents, with charges ranging from 3 cents per kilowatt hours, to as low as 0.4 of a cent per kilowatt hour for 400 to 1,000 kilowatt hours.

Private rates for electricity, which have been progressively reduced in recent years, and are now lower in the Southeast than in other sections, range somewhat higher than that. The average rate per kilowatt hour charged by the Tennessee Electric Power Co. 5.77 in 1933, is now 3.63, as against a national average of 5.49 in 1933, and 5.03 in 1935.

TVA spokesmen have been claiming that its Tennessee Valley operations has forced private companies to lower their rates in the Southeast, while still enabling them to

Hearing Regained, Boy, 6, Is Disgusted With Human Voice

By the Associated Press.

Milwaukee, Aug. 17.—Recovery of his hearing after a lapse of more than five years was a mitigated blessing to 6-year-old Carl Thelin, jr., his mother disclosed today.

Annoyed by the human voice, her son declared the sound he found most pleasant was the soft noise of water lapping against a raft beneath a bridge over the Milwaukee River.

He used to play the piano when he could "hear" the music only through the vibrations in his finger tips. He stopped playing when he began hearing. And "the radio," he said bluntly, "is an old jabber box."

Certain voices, especially high-pitched ones of children, annoy the round-eyed, curly-haired lad who, after a tonsil-adenoids operation July 24, heard his mother speak and then asked:

"Mother, that sound you made with your lips—is that what you told me a voice was?"

Social Security—and You!

Aged, Needy, Blind Included in Program

By Felix Bruner.

The Government's huge social security program, under which it is attempting to see that most of the working population need not become entirely dependent in old age or adversity, goes farther than providing for persons now employed.

In addition to planning for old-age compensation and for unemployment insurance, it also makes provisions for persons who are now aged and in need, for the needy blind and for needy children. This part of the plan is to some extent already in operation.

Unlike the old-age compensation setup, these phases of the program are operated by the States and not the Federal Government, but they are partially financed by the Government. Twenty-nine States and the District of Columbia have been given Federal funds for assistance of the needy aged. Numerous other States also have been assisted in caring for blind and needy children.

As of August 3, the last date for which figures are available, the Government had turned over to the States a total of $15,786,014 for the aged, $886,161 for the blind and $1,775,565 for needy children. All these amounts are for persons incapable of gainful employment and have no connection with the relief program, which is supposed only to provide for employment.

Thus the Government has modified to this extent its rule that States must care for their unemployables. When the work-relief plan superseded the Government's direct aid program, it was stated emphatically the Federal Government would have nothing to do with caring for unemployables, that the States had always cared for these people and that they would be expected to do so. As money now is going out from the Social Security Board in increasing amounts, the burden upon the Government in caring for them is expected to reach huge proportions.

States are required to submit their plans for old-age assistance to Washington for approval. Upon approval, the Government turns over to the State funds equal to one-half the amount paid to each needy individual who is 65 years or over and who is not an inmate of

First Payment Under Benefits For Idle Made

History Written as Wisconsin Man, Laid Off, Receives Company Check.

By the Associated Press.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 17.—State officials today announced the first unemployment insurance benefit check ever drawn upon a public fund in the United States was issued by the State of Wisconsin.

Number one man to draw upon the $14,000,000 fund which employers have built up under the pioneer unemployment compensation law of this State was Neills B. Ruud, of Madison.

For one week of unemployment the State industrial commission issued him a check for $15, the maximum benefit under the law. It was charged against the account of the Brock Engraving Co., of Madison, for whom Ruud worked until laid off several weeks ago. He is now back at work for the company.

A Historic Occasion.

Payment of the first unemployment compensation check in Wisconsin yesterday is a historic occasion because it represents the first payment out of a Government unemployment compensation system anywhere in the United States, Frank Bane, executive director of the Social Security Board, said here yesterday.

"The check for $15 which was handed to an unemployed worker as compensation because of his unemployment, not as relief," Bane said, "has special significance for about 8,000,000 other American industrial and commercial workers. That is the number already protected by unemployment compensation in 15 States and the District of Columbia.

"Though it is not generally realized, the 8,000,000 workers for whom unemployment compensation credits are now accumulating or will shortly be accumulating represent close to 45 per cent of all the industrial and commercial workers who will be eligible for unemployment compensation when all States have such laws meeting the minimum standards of the social security act.

"That day is not very far off. Already officials or other representative groups in 12 other States have indicated to the Social Security Board their intention to introduce unemployment compensation legislation in the next session of their respective Legislatures."

Finnan Seeks Foundation Bid For Park Pools

Drowning of Boy in River Speeds East Potomac, Anacostia Work.

Read the editorial, "No Place to Swim," and the cartoon: "Naw, We Don't Have a Swimmin' Pool," today on Page 8.

C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, yesterday announced he has requested contractors on two public swimming pools to submit estimates for foundation work as soon as possible.

His action follows the drowning of an 11-year-old boy in the Potomac River on Saturday. Stories in The Post Sunday and yesterday called attention to the lack of bathing facilities in the southern sections of the city, which forced swimmers to use the dangerous and polluted river.

The pools are to be built in East Potomac and Anacostia Parks. Begun early this year, construction was delayed indefinitely by the March flood, which washed out the foundations. They had been scheduled for opening this summer as an

2 Baby Antelopes Will Fly to Berlin Aboard Zeppelin

Rapid City, S. Dak., Aug. 17 (AP).—Two of 23 young antelopes bound in burlap sacks, left Pitchfork Ranch near Cody, Wyo., in an airplane today and five days hence—barring unforseen circumstances—will be delivered to a zoo in Berlin, Germany.

The young pair, taken from the herd of 4,000, will be delivered to the Zeppelin Hindenburg at Lakehurst, N. J., for transportation across the Atlantic.

The consignment of 23 started the trip with Bill Monday, Cody's "cowboy pilot." Twenty-one will be dropped off at zoos en route, the first two to be delivered at Chicago tonight. Three are consigned to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C.; two to a Philadelphia zoo and 14 to Newark, N. J.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Cais, Spain, Aug. 17.—Loyalists killed in the victorious rebel battle for "bloody Badajoz" mounted to 2,000 today with the death toll increasing hourly to the cracking of firing squad rifles.

Weeping women and children crept stealthily back to their bullet-riddled, often demolished, menless homes. Some found the bodies of their fathers, husbands, sons and brothers. But more often there was no chance to identify the dead.

Grim rebel Moors and fierce Spanish foreign legionnaires systematically marked hundreds of loyalist prisoners for summary execution. All arrested loyalists whose chests showed the marks of a rifle butt, showing they had resisted the insurgent attack on Badajoz, were shot. Only those arrested while seeking to flee across the Portuguese frontier who could prove they had not fired against the rebel troops were spared.

Under a relentless sun bodies continued to be piled in pools of blood congealing in the Badajoz streets. Burial was deliberately delayed because the legionnaire and Moorish conquerors were anxious to expose corpses for as many hours as possible as examples to survivors who might continue to harbor loyalist doctrines.

Border Battle Bitter.

Madrid, Aug. 17.—Enraged by the massacre of 1,500 government hostages in Badajoz, 20,000 loyalist troops tonight clashed with rebel forces in a bloody "battle of extermination" all along the rebel blockade on the Portugal border.

The fierce hand-to-hand fighting was reported to be most sanguinary of the 31-day-old civil war.

No quarter was being asked or given by either side, as the government hurled bayonetted legions against the stubbornly fighting rebel defenders of strategic border position.

(At Burgos, the rebel northern stronghold, Gen. Francisco Franco, leader of the insurgents, was said to have decided to tighten the rebel lines around Madrid in hopes of cutting off the capital's water supply and thirsting the defenders into surrender.

Moore Will Face Court Tomorrow In Co-ed Slaying

By the Associated Press.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 17.—Martin Moore, colored, 19, pleaded innocent on arraignment today in Buncombe Superior Court to an indictment charging him with the murder a month ago of Helen Clevenger, New York University student.

"I am not guilty," the 6-foot, 3-inch hotel hallboy replied, when Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles read the indictment.

"How will you be tried?" Nettles queried.

"By God and my country," Moore answered in the legal ritual on prompting of defense attorneys.

"May God grant you true deliverance," the solicitor concluded.

Judge Donald Phillips set the trial for Wednesday morning and ordered a special venire drawn.

Moore was arraigned only on the murder charge, although the grand jury returned two true bill. One charged murder, the other first degree burglary. Both are capital crimes.

Many Leave Revolt-Torn Spain, but 300 to 400 Decide to Remain.

By the Associated Press.

Americans were reported last night to be moving out of Spain by air, rail and sea, but the State Department estimated that from 300 to 400 were still disregarding its repeated warnings to leave.

Even in Madrid, where Americans were warned Friday that they remained at their own risk, officials reported 165 staying, including 49 being given refuge at the embassy. Others were scattered throughout the country.

Most of those who have refused to leave have done so for family or business reasons, the State Department has been advised.

Reports reaching Washington during the day of additional evacuations, brought to approximately 750 the total number of Americans who have been taken from the danger zone.

Florida Woman Departs.

Prominent on yesterday's list was Mrs. Petronila Gallardo, daughter of Col. David McKay, of Tampa, Fla. She was flown from Madrid to Marseille, France, by airplane. American Consul John P. Hurley, at Marseille, reported her safe arrival there but gave no further details. Mrs. Gallardo had been ill in Spain for several months.

Reassuring advices concerning J. O. Ambler, an American mining engineer, of San Antonio, Tex., who for a time has been in a precarious situation near Huelva, also were received. He was reported by the Rio Tinto Mining Corporation at Londan to have arrived safely at Huelva after being held as hostage for several days along with other foreign members of the mining company's staff at their mines.

Ambler was reported to be proceeding to Gibraltar.

The American consul at Barcelona, Lynn W. Franklin, reported to the department that Americans were continuing to leave there singly and in small groups, nine having arrived at Marseille Sunday aboard a British warship.

Quincy Removes 137.

From Iviza and Palma, in the Balearic Islands, the American heavy cruiser Quincy removed almost 100 Americans Saturday, then proceeded to Alicante on the western Spanish coast, and took aboard 37 nationals who had arrived there by train from Madrid Sunday. The Quincy tonight was en route to Nice, to discharge the refugees.

Meantime, William Phillips acting Secretary of State, denied a report published in the Army and Navy Journal that Ambassador Claude G. Bowers had been ordered ashore from the Coast Guard cutter Cayuga after clashing with Navy and Coast Guard officers over the movement of American naval vessels in rescue operations in Spanish waters.

Asserting there was nothing in the report, Phillips said there had been excellent teamwork between American diplomatic and naval officials engaged in the work of protecting American lives. Ambassador Bowers has been at Hendaye, France since August 5.

U. S. Dispatches 2 Destroyers.

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—Surprise orders from Washington sent the destroyers Kane and Hatfield off to patrol duty in Spanish waters today about a week earlier than was expected.

They will relieve the battleship Oklahoma, which has been rendering aid to Americans in the war zone, and the Oklahoma will proceed to the Pacific Coast to join the United States battle fleet.

Eight hundred men from other destroyers here volunteered for eight vacancies which had to be filled on the two warships before they left. They are carrying, together, 212 men and officers and also several Coast Guard men assigned to the Coast Guard vessel Cayuga, now in Spanish waters.

The eight men chosen were selected from volunteers who still had two years or more of their enlistment to serve. Lieut. Comdr. Gerald D. Linke also replaced Lieut. Comdr. R. B. Matthews, whole tour of duty as commanding officer of the Hatfield was nearing an end. The Kane is commanded by Lieut. Comdr. J. D. Alvis.

After arrival of the two warships from Delaware to be outfitted, Commander S. B. Robinson, head of the expedition, flew to Washington Saturday for conferences. The destroyers were expected to leave in about ten days, but the new orders arrived after his return here.

Auto Club Counts Peace Cross Cars

Specific evidence of conditions of extreme traffic congestion at the intersection of the Washington-Baltimore boulevard and the Defense highway was made available yesterday by the Keystone Automobile Club, following a survey conducted Sunday at the Bladensburg Peace Cross by members of the Keystone Motor Patrol.

"An accurate traffic count was made at this 'bottleneck' on Sunday," it was announced by George E. Keneipp, club manager.

"Between the hours of 4 and 8 p. m., 7,515 automobiles entered the Washington boulevard from the Defense highway, and at all times traffic was jammed down the highway as far as the eye could see, and much farther. This is at the rate of 1,897 per hour, which traffic officials are agreed is a very heavy volume. Furthermore, it is to be noted that this, by no means, was a peak day, because the overcast weather kept many thousands away from the resorts reached over the Defense highway."

Theft of $1,000 Ring Is Reported to Police

strong infantry and artillery forces attacked by land.

Bombardment Resumed.

After firing shell after shell into San Sebastian today the Almirante resumed bombardment of Spain's summer capital tonight, firing at 10-minute intervals with 210-MM. guns.

The bombardment aroused fear that hundreds of rebels held prisoners at the Guadeloupe forts would die deaths of indescribable horror, as 80 tons of dynamite remained in the Guadeloupe magazines.

Earlier in the day while the Espana shelled dynamite-filled Guadeloupe the Almirante Cervera and two destroyers shelled the San Marcos, Pedro and Isabelle forts near San Sebastian and Bilbao.

The Espana ceased fire in the late afternoon and cruised westward off the northern coast of Spain Government airplanes took off from San Sebastian and tried unsuccessfully to bomb the rebel warships.

Cross Into France.

Fearing arrest as hostages they crossed the Bidassoa River, marking the frontier between Spain and France, at low tide. Using rowboats or swimming they gained French soil, where they were allowed to remain as refugees from the horrors of war.

Besieged by land and sea and air, San Sebastian counted only upon its anarchist and Communist militia and its 1,200 hostages to escape annihilation.

Three rebel infantry columns crept closer to the city from the mountains in the east and south while the rebel warships, anchored off Cape Figuier, poured broadside after broadside into the already bullet-riddled watering resort.

San Sebastian was emptying a few wells so as to ration a little water to soldiers and housewives. The rebels have cut the water supply from the mountains. The city was practically without bread. If the resort does not fall before shot and shell it will be starved into submission.

were that at a conference of Franco and his subalterns it was decided to smash the enemy's resistance along the Bay of Biscay, striving meanwhile to foment internal revolt within Madrid, designed to bring about the fall of the city without air and land bombardments with a large loss of life which an immediate attack on Madrid would bring.)

Guadarrama Shelled.

North of Madrid the steady bombardment of Guadarrama continued into the night unabated, with little decisive progress reported by either side.

The government said loyalist columns continued their advances into Andalucia, with loyalists occupying a number of strategic positions near Teruel, where it was expected the rebel stronghold would be stormed within a day or two.

(In London, however, it was reported 500 government troops were killed and 250 taken prisoner in a rebel ambush on the Balearic Island of Mallorca. The report said the rebels allowed the government troops to land unmolested, then decoyed them into a trap.)

Meanwhile a major battle was imminent at Palma, the capital of Mallorca, as the government troops began a new major offensive.

Japanese Navy Requests Fund For New Ships

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo (Tuesday), Aug. 18.—Funds for starting construction of one or more capital ships were understood to have been asked in the navy's financial demands for the fiscal year 1937-38, the Domei (Japanese) news agency and vernacular newspapers said today.

The navy office was said to have submitted an outline of its requests to the finance ministry.

Its estimates were reported to total 770,000,000 yen (about $233,300,000), including 340,000,000 yen (about $98,600,000) for "new enterprises," most of which would be ship construction and expansion of the naval air force.

(The Japanese navy budget for 1936-1937 was 522,000,000 yen (about $159,480,000).

(Informed Tokyo quarters predicted recently that Japan probably would arrange for replacement of four capital ships next year.

(Great Britain has announced she will lay the keels of two battleships in 1937 and American officials have indicated the United States probably would do likewise.)

Funeral services for Robert Curtin, 1023 B street southeast, night engineer at the Army and Navy Club for about ten years, will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the home of his sister, Mrs. Rosie Holt, 705 Seventh street southeast. He was about 60 years old.

Blanks Annoy Soldier; He Uses Rock Grenade

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP).—The yearning of a private on grenade duty for realism in the Second Army war maneuvers sent an umpire to the hospital today with head injuries.

The private complained to his captain that he couldn't stop any motor trucks by waving his arm as he pretended to throw grenades, and the captain jokingly asked: "Why not throw a rock at them?"

The soldier did just that. The rock bounced off the head of an umpire riding by on a truck, and the arbiter was counted out as a casualty.

Gov. Olson Returns To Mayos' Clinic

Rochester, Minn., Aug. 17 (AP).—Gov. Floyd B. Olson late today was taken by airplane from his summer home at Gull Lake, near Brainerd, to Rochester, where he again was placed under the care of Mayo Clinic physicians who had treated him for a stomach ailment.

The Governor's condition was described as not critical in a clinic bulletin issued shortly after he arrived at St. Mary's Hospital.

"Gov. Olson returned from his home at Gull Lake at 6:47 p. m., today," said the bulletin. "His condition is not critical. Further operation is not contemplated. He returned here because facilities at his Gull Lake home are inadequate for treatment."

Released from the hospital nine days ago, Gov. Olson had been at his summer home since then. He had been at the hospital following an operation for insertion of a tube into his stomach, as a step in the treatment of the ailment for which he underwent an exploratory operation December 29, and later took radium treatments.

Duce to Reveal Spanish Policy 'Within 2 Days,' France Hears

Paris Government's Case Presented to Rome by De Chambrun; British Diplomat Holds Long Conference at Quai d'Orsay.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Aug. 17.—Whether Premier Mussolini will promise to keep out of the Spanish internal war, as France has besought him, will be made known within 48 hours, sources close to the French government said tonight.

French Ambassador Charles de Chambrun conferred at Rome today and presented the French government's case.

At the Quai d'Orsay, French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos and Sir Robert Van Sittart, British permanent undersecretary of foreign affairs, held a long conference on the chances for success of the neutrality plan.

Officials remained tight-lipped concerning the conference, but informed persons attached considerable significance to the fact that Sir Robert had just returned from Berlin, where he talked with Chancellor Hitler.

Informed sources in Berlin said Chancellor Hitler and the "associated Reich on the whole" would support the Franco-British neutrality plan in Spain—with reservations. A government note was handed to French Ambassador Andre Francois Poncet answering the French proposal. Text of the note is expected to be made public tomorrow. The reservations it contained were foreshadowed by officialdom and the press, which expressed skepticism over the ability of France's government to maintain a strict neutrality in view of its sympathy with Spain's "popular front" struggle.

The Quai d'Orsay expressed approval of reports that Uruguay suggested that American nations be called upon to mediate the conflict, although France has had no official notification of the idea.

The conservative newspaper Le Temps, commenting on the United States' attitude toward Europe, said those Europeans who believed America would "throw herself a second time into a foreign war, or co-operate for the safety of liberal civilization of right, liberty, democracy or order, are all wrong."

Subway Plan Foes Lashed by Roberts

Lashing at critics of his subway proposal, People's Counsel William A. Roberts last night in an address over Station WOL urged his listeners to send in their opinions on the desirability of planning a subway system for Washington.

Roberts called attention to an editorial in The Washington Post stating that "the majority of Washingtonians are likely to commend rather than to chastise (the city officials) for declining at this time to plan for a subway system."

Roberts pointed out that he does not favor the construction of a subway system for Washington until after an engineering survey is made, as provided in the Norton bill.

Marines in China Study Escape of 4 A. W. O. L.

Peiping, China, Aug. 17 (AP).—The marine guard attached to the United States embassy tonight began an investigation of the escapade of four guardsmen alleged to have been A. W. O. L. for four days.

It also was charged the four had attacked and injured a sentry when they left their barracks August 12, and on the previous day flown a red flag from the marine flagstaff.

Marine authorities gave the names of the four as Paul J. Wilson, of Baltimore; Stephen Redden, of Ridgeley, Md.; Ernest Jameson, of Lakeview, Oreg., and Edward Kirby, of Los Angeles.

They said no charges had been preferred against the men.

Virginia Felonies Gain Is Reported

Richmond, Va., Aug. 17 (AP).—Figures obtained today from the Department of Public Welfare showed the number of felons sentenced to State prisons rose from 3,788 August 1, 1935, to 4,022 on the same date this year, an increase of 6.18 per cent.

Reports from jailers are not complete, but officials said they did not expect much decrease from the 74,599 figure for the previous fiscal year, which represented an all-time Virginia high.

Virginia had four times the commitments of Maryland and 2½ times the number in Maryland during 1935, though populatons of the other States exceed that of Virginia, figures showed.

New York City Opens New Marriage Chapel

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—New York City will make getting married easier effective tomorrow.

A new marriage chapel will be opened on the second floor of the municipal building.

Prospective brides and bridegrooms will be able to walk across a hall from the marriage license bureau to the new chapel.

They won't have to walk a flight of stairs to the third-floor chapel where about 250,000 marriages have been performed since it was opened in June, 1915.

CAN'T DANCE or WON'T LEARN

Thousands who say they "can't dance" simply won't learn. They are held back by timidity or lack of confidence. In the arms of a skilled instructor they lose their self-consciousness and begin to respond to the lure of the music. Leroy H. Thayer's personally trained instructors have been taught to inspire this confidence. They create a desire to become a good dancer by demonstrating how easy it can be . . . given the right instruction. A guest lesson, without obligation, will prove the efficiency of the methods developed by Mr. Thayer in his many years of teaching social leaders and professional dancers alike.

Skipper Tells How Spaniards Boarded Ship

U. S. Freighter Fired Upon by Loyalist Submarine on August 8.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 17.—In laconic phrases, the master of an American freighter reported today how 10 days ago his vessel had been boarded by Spanish government forces from a submarine after a shot across the bows gave the order to heave to.

In from Mediterranean ports, Capt. W. W. Kuhne of the American export liner Excambion, told officials of the line here:

"At 2:30 a. m. on August 8, while off the Spanish coast north of Cape Sabinal, we were hailed by a submarine. We gave the ship's name, our port of departure and our port of destination.

"We proceeded on our course and were followed by the submarine. The submarine kept moving about us in an unintelligible way.

"About 4:30 a. m. a shot was fired at us by the submarine," continued the master.

"We slowed down, and then I ordered our vessel stopped, as a gun crew aboard the submarine was preparing to fire on us again.

"We were then requested by Morse code to lower a boat and send it alongside the submarine. There were several fishing boats around our vicinity at the time, and one of them went over to the sub.

"The fishing boat then came along side of us with a boarding party," continued the master's report.

"We threw over a rope ladder and an officer and four men came on board. They were all heavily armed. The man in uniform was told we were a neutral, bound from Marseilles to Boston.

"After asking a number of questions regarding our passengers, the party left the ship without molesting any of those on board, and we proceeded on our way."

Judge Rejects Plea to Arrest Dr. Townsend

Refuses Attorney's Demand When Told Pension Leader Is Ill.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 17.—The arrest of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, white-haired advocate of a $200 monthly pension for everybody over 60, was demanded today—and refused—when he failed to appear for a deposition hearing in a receivership suit against his organization.

Ben Sacharow, attorney for the Rev. Alfred J. Wright, former Townsend director, in the suit for receivership and an accounting of $1,000,000 in Townsend funds, asked the arrest. Common Pleas Judge George W. Keer refused the demand after receiving assurance, he said, that Dr. Townsend was ill in Chicago.

Judge Kerr continued the case—the same one from which Dr. Townsend walked indignantly last month only to be returned by a deputy sheriff for further questioning—until Thursday. He announced, after a telephone conversation with Dr. Townsend's physician in Chicago, that he was satisfied the pension plan founder would appear at that time.

"Has Nothing to Conceal."

Judge Kerr said he talked also with Gilmour Young, national secretary of the pension group, who is in Chicago with Dr. Townsend, and that Young told him:

"Dr. Townsend says that as soon as he is properly rested he will be glad to go to Cleveland because he wants the people to know he has nothing to conceal."

When Dr. Townsend failed to appear for the hearing, Sacharow addressed the court:

"I want a citation issued for Dr. Francis E. Townsend and I ask your honor to see that Dr. Townsend be not encouraged to make mockery of the courts of justice."

Boos Quickly Silenced.

Townsend supporters in the courtroom started to boo Sacharow but were silenced quickly by the court.

Sacharow also asked an order for Young's arrest. Young had been subpenaed with his chief.

Sacharow recalled to the court Dr. Townsend's "walkout" at the previous hearing:

"He walked out at 60 miles an hour," said Sacharow, "in a limousine paid for by the dimes and nickels of the poor people who joined his movement."

The attorney told the court he had spent two days in Chicago trying to see Townsend records. They were denied him, he said.

Judge Kerr announced after telephoning Young that the latter had agreed to open the books of Old Age Revolving Pensions, Ltd., before Thursday.

To Rest Several Days.

Chicago, Aug. 17 (AP).—Dr. Francis E. Townsend's old-age pension headquarters issued a statement today saying a physician had recommended that the head of the revolving pension plan remain in bed for several days' rest.

Dr. J. L. Earle, house physician at the hotel, where Dr. Townsend was registered, prescribed "several days of complete rest," the Townsend headquarters statement said.

Coughlin to Rest 10 Days.

Detroit, Aug. 17 (AP).—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin cancelled all engagements today to obtain 10 days of rest ordered by his physicians. He retired to the home of his mother at Royal Oak, Mich., and said he would seclude himself even from his friends.

Father Coughlin became ill while addressing the convention of his Union for Social Justice Sunday in Cleveland's municipal stadium. For 10 minutes before he ceased speaking, he said today, the audience was a blur to him.

"Then everything went black," he added. "I turned around and fell into the arms of a policeman."

He said he remembered "turning to somebody and asking how much longer before the radio time on our National broadcast ended. They said 18 minutes. I started to faint. I had to grip the rostrum to stand at all."

Rites Thursday For Dr. Freeman

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. Henry Freeman, of Troy, N. Y., brother of Bishop James E. Freeman, of the Washington diocese, will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. in St. John's Church, Troy. He was 76 years old.

Dr. Freeman, who died yesterday while visiting his son in Canada, had served as rector of St. John's Church in Troy for 30 years. He was retired in 1930, and at the time of his death was rector-emeritus. A native of New York City, he was well known in Washington. He had made numerous visits to his brother here and had frequently preached in Washington churches. Bishop Freeman, also a native of New York, has been bishop of the Washington diocese since 1923. Previously he had served as rector of the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G street northwest, for two years.

Other survivors of Dr. Freeman include his wife, Mrs. Freeman, of Troy; three sons, Henry Freeman, jr., who recently moved to Canada; Theodore, now in Texas, and Edward Freeman, also of Troy; one daughter, Mrs. Brant Holn, who lives in Kansas. He also is survived by a sister, Mrs. C. I. Lattin, of Yonkers, N. Y.

Mother a Stranger, Edith Fellows Says

Los Angeles, Aug. 17 (AP).—Edith Fellows, 13-year-old screen actress, testified today she did not love her mother, who came back to claim her after an absence of years.

"Don't you love your mother?" asked Superior Judge Arthur Crum.

"No, I don't," replied Edith, whose specialty is portraying "brats" in pictures.

Edith is in custody of her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Fellows, who has taken care of her since she was an infant. The mother, Mrs. Harriet Fellows, is suing to regain her daughter.

Judge Crum asked Edith to explain her attitude toward her mother.

"I know my mother is trying to get me away from my grandmother," she responded. "I might be willing to be friends with her if she'd leave me alone, but I'm not used to loving strangers."

The Political Arena

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 17.—Raymond W. Bellamy, former director of employment in Maryland, told Republican leaders here yesterday Gov. Alf M. Landon "has the enthusiastic support of labor because it has discovered that his attitude toward labor is actuated by a spirit of fairness to employer and employe alike."

Bellamy, who was named last week as an assistant to William Hutcheson, director of the Republican labor division, has just returned from a trip through the Middle West where he conferred with the Republican Presidential nominee.

After a conference with Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., manager of the Republican campaign in the East, he said:

"Everywhere I went laboring men praised Gov. Landon's conscientious desire to help labor solve its own problems."

He said John L. Lewis and Maj. George Berry, leaders of labor's Nonpartisan eLague for President Roosevelt, had been issuing an increasing number of "misleading and absurd" labor reports in an effort to "convince the thinking laboring man that the labor vote is not split."

Martin announced the appointment of Dr. Charles W. Burkett, former editor of the American Agriculturist, as head of the Republican committee on agriculture for the Eastern States.

He also announced he had named J. Leonard Replogle, of Palm Beach, Fla., former candidate for United States Senator, as a special assistant to himself in charge of the Republican campaign in the Southern States of the Eastern Division.

* * * *

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—United States Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, today described Gov. Alf M. Landon as a "phony" and said "if I were a prophet I would predict this whole Landon thing will blow up before the election."

Minton, who conferred with Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, along with other Indiana leaders and leaders from Maryland and Virginia, told newspapermen "Landon and his issues are both phony and they can't sell them to the American people."

He predicted that President Roosevelt would carry Indiana by at least 100,000 votes and that the Democrats would win back the one Congressional seat they lost to the Republicans in 1934.

Gov. Paul V. McNutt also told Farley Indiana would be in the Roosevelt column.

J. M. Hooker, Democratic State chairman in Virginia, said he could see no basis for Republican statements that Virginia was a doubtful State.

"I don't think anyone who considers affairs in Virginia could possibly consider it a doubtful State," he said. "We will carry it for the President. There is no doubt about that."

He said Senators Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd, both of whom have sharply criticized some New Deal activities, would support actively the President in the campaign.

* * * *

William Hard, in a radio broadcast under auspices of the Republican national committee, said tonight "the New Deal started out to drive the 'money changers' from the temple and it now stays alive through loans from these same 'money changers.'

"The President's recent promise not to lay any more taxes on the people means only that he will borrow more money from the banks," the political commentator said.

By the end of the next fiscal year, Hard asserted, the Roosevelt Administration will have borrowed approximately $13,000,000,000, principally from banks.

Hard said President Roosevelt "has borrowed more than any other peacetime ruler in history."

Hamilton Tells Cattle Raisers Of AAA Perils

G. O. P. Chief Is Keynoter at New Mexico Rally; Assails Trade Pacts.

By the Associated Press.

Albuquerque, N. M., Aug. 17.—John D. M. Hamilton, Republican National Chairman, told stockmen of the Southwest tonight they may expect to contribute with their taxes to "Government subsidized competition" to the grazing industry.

Speaking as the keynoter before the party's New Mexico nominating convention, Hamilton charged the Administration's "theory of planning artificial scarcity" will "pay every farmer of this Nation to go into competition with the cattle and sheep men of the great grazing States of the Southwest.

"You may say that I am talking about dead horses because the AAA has been declared unconstitutional. But a new AAA has been passed to take its place, which is called the soil conservation act—and it is an act which I think is going to be of very great interest to the cattle and sheep raisers of the State of New Mexico if it is allowed to remain on the statue books in its present form very much longer.

Assails Trade Pacts.

"This new act continues the theory of planning artificial scarcity—and does so by paying farmers to put a portion of their land into grasses.

Hamilton charged reciprocal trade agreements, which he said "are drawn up in secret and not subject to review of the United States Senate like other treaties," have already been a heavy blow to the grazing industry, terming them "examples of what charitable bureaucrats can do with your interests when they happen to stand in the way of their plans."

Speaking in behalf of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, Republican Presidential nominee, Hamilton told the Republicans they have nominated a man with "faith in the intelligence of the American people."

"He believes the business men of this country know more about business, the farmers more about farming and the storekeepers more about merchandising than Alfred M. Landon knows, or Franklin D. Roosevelt either, for that matter.

Attacks Civil Service.

"And from the impresson I gather from my tours around the country, I rather think that the American people agree with him."

Hamilton attacked what he termed "debauchery of our civil service," asserting the "responsibility for Mr. Farley and his acts rests on the shoulders of Mr. Roosevelt and no one else."

Landon Names Advisory Party On Trip to East

Seven Experts on Various Subjects Are Picked to Accompany Him.

By the United Press.

Estes Park, Colo., Aug. 17.—Gov. Alf M. Landon disclosed tonight that seven men will make up his party of advisers and associates on his first Eastern campaign tour, starting Thursday. They will include two agricultural experts, a veteran of waterways legislation, two newspaper men and a former American Legion official, in addition to the Republican nominee's personal secretary.

The Governor's party, which will make the entire trip with him includes: Lacy Haynes, Kansas City newspaperman, and an adviser of Landon in the Presidential campaign; Representative Clifford R. Hope, ranking Republican member of the House Agricultural Committee, chief of the agricultural division of the Republican National Committee and one of the drafters of the farm plank in the Republican platform; Cleveland A. Newton, of St. Louis, former member of Congress and an expert on waterways legislation; C. C. Cogswell, master of the Kansas Grange and member of the Kansas Tax Commission; Lester McCoy, Republican chairman of the Seventh Congressional District in Kansas and former State commander of the American Legion; John Paul Jones, of Lions, Kans., who was described as the publisher of a Democratic newspaper and a supporter of Landon; Carl A. Bott, personal secretary to the Governor.

The party will board the Landon special train Thursday for the East. More than 30 brief stops will be made en route.

The seven will act as advisers in connection with Landon's speeches and in his many conferences with local Republican leaders in the various States through which the train will pass.

Landon will make a brief speech, probably confined to a tribute to Abraham Lincoln, when he lays a wreath on Lincoln's tomb at Springfield, Ill., on the homeward journey. The remarks probably will be made at the tomb, but there is a possibility he may speak at the railroad station.

Surgery Gives Sight Back to 3 Aged Men

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 17 (AP).—Three aged men, released from blindness by modern surgery, planned with pathetic eagerness tonight their triumphant return home. Two of them were farmers, the other a night watchman.

The farmers—James C. Mahon, 80, and Jeff Hamm, 74, both of Tennessee—want to see their farms through their new eyes, to watch things grow and become acquainted again with surroundings blotted out when cataracts formed over their eyes years ago.

The third—James L. Hughes, 71, of Memphis—is just as anxious to leave the hospital. He has the promise of a job.

"I want to go back on my farm," Hamm siad.

"And I want to see my farm, too," echoed Mahon. "First, I want to see my old lady, to find out if she is as pretty as she used to be. Then I want to see my farm."

Storm Menaces Texas.

Houston, Tex., Aug. 17 (AP).—Storm warnings were hoisted along the Texas coast from Matagorda to Brownsville today as a tropical disturbance moved shoreward. Brownsville was expected to feel the force of the disturbance late tonight or early tomorrow, the United States Weather Bureau said.

Landon-Green Club Formed in County

More than 40 Arlington County Republicans formed a Landon-Green Club last night at a meeting at the home of John C. Yates, of Cherrydale.

Yates was elected temporary chairman of the club and J. R. Hutchinson was named temporary secretary.

The new group plans to organize other Landon-Green clubs throughout the country to back the candidacy of John Locke Green for Representative to Congress and Gov. Alf M. Landon for President. Green is opposing Representative Howard W. Smith, Democratic candidate for re-election.

What This Annual Summer Sale

Fur Trimmed Coats

20 % off
means in dollars and cents

An actual one-fifth deducted from the original prices marked on the tickets . . . And more than that, this presentation in advance of the season, means the cream of the market's offerings. It is an established fact that the first models of the leading coat makers are best, superior in style and workmanship as well as furred with the choicest pelts, chosen as a diamond cutter chooses his gems.

Now $124
Will be $155 after the sale

Highlighted in this group, the magnificent opulence of Silver Fox. Huge, flattering collar treatments that etch your face in lovely relief, and silhouettes manipulated in glamorous Forstman's Astrakans and other fabrics. Even if you are not a Silver Fox addict, your favorite fur is sure to be represented in this comprehensive group.

Now $79.20
Will be $99 after the sale

Persian Lamb sweeping majestically fashion-ward, and featured enthusiastically in this group because it has always been one of the favored furs. No other fur lends quite that quiet elegance, and accents lines of the figure without broadening them. Other furs, too, in this group.

Now $60
Will be $75 after the sale

Kolinsky, one of first three leaders in the race for fashion supremacy, finds flattering support in this remarkable group. We recommend it for its wearing qualities as well as its silky flatness. But choose Fox, Badger, Skunk in preference if you will. All are represented here most bountifully.

Black Flecked Woolen with Kolinsky, regularly $75, now $60.

4 Ways to Pay
1. A small deposit will hold your coat "will call."

Roosevelt Sees Anti-Aircraft Unit in Practice

62d Coast Artillery Gives Exhibition for President at Hyde Park.

By the United Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 17.—What it takes to combat hostile airplanes was demonstrated to President Roosevelt today in his role as commander in chief of the United States Army.

The Executive, spending a week at the Summer White House, took time out shortly before luncheon to motor to a field fronting his Albany Post Road estate where he witnessed everything but the shooting by Battery C, Sixty-second Coast Artillery of the regular Army.

"I wish we had more of them," he remarked as he looked on with interest while troopers quickly unlimbered the latest thing in 3-inch anti-aircraft guns from a motor truck and set it up in firing position.

Greatest Skill.

He was informed by Col. Frank F. Ferguson, commander of the Sixty-second Regiment, that the guns could fire 25 rounds a minute and that they represented the height of technical and mechanical skill.

After watching the soldiers handle the ordnance, he drove in his open car to the gate of Hyde Park house and took a salute from the rest of the regiment, composed of 27 officers and 854 enlisted men, on its way from Fort Totten, N. Y., to Fort Ontario for target practice.

Mr. Roosevelt saw in the procession a completely mechanized fighting unit, the only one of its kind in the Army given over to aircraft repulse. There were 128 vehicles carrying soldiers as well as eight 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, 32 machine guns, eight powerful searchlights and eight sound locaters.

Serves Lemonade.

During the show Mrs. Roosevelt sat on a stone fence surrounding the field. Later, she served lemonade to the officers and men.

During the exhibition, Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied by Roy W. Howard, New York newspaper published, and Mrs. Howard. They had been week-end guests at the summer White House.

The President spent a comparatively quiet day in the seclusion of his country place. With members of the family he joined in the celebration of the twenty-second birthday anniversary of Franklin, jr., a junior at Harvard University.

In the afternoon he looked over a batch of mail from Washington and gave further attention to the itinerary of his forthcoming visit to the drought areas and the possibility of a trip down the Mississippi River from St. Paul, Minn., to Memphis, Tenn.

two old soldiers—O'Brien is 54 and Harney is 59—disappeared.

Police Broadcast Call.

"I guess they got out to stretch their legs and then decided they'd stretch them down the street," Rose said.

He looked for them for about two hours. Then he had the police broadcast a call for them. And, sure enough, the police rounded them up, one in a bar ordering beer, the other registering at a hotel.

"They really were swell guys," grinned Rose. "They called me Bill all the way; called each other Bill, too. Maybe they had a good time. I don't know. When I left them in San Antonio they were planning to go on to Seattle. I figure that the trip up to that point had cost them at least $490."

Both men have no relatives, according to the taxi driver. They went to San Antonio because O'Brien recalled a pleasant visit to the Texas city in 1911. They wanted to go on to Seattle because Harney had had his bonus money sent there.

Man Tries to Gain Vault Of Bank Through Sewer

Flint, Mich., Aug. 17 (AP).—Detectives Fay Murphy and Porter Buckley today announced they had verified the story of a factory worker that he crawled half a mile through sewers and started to burrow toward the vault of a Flint bank. They withheld his name.

The detectives retrieved a brace and bit, shovel, pick ax, hammer and an iron bar from the tunnel. The man told them he had dug in the tunnel night after night since he conceived the idea last March, they related, because his wife had insisted she must have more money "to buy pretty things." When he discovered that his car had traveled 4,000 miles while he was conducting his digging, he and his wife quarreled and separated, and he decided to go to the police with the story.

Krol Sues for Divorce.

Chicago, Aug. 17 (AP).—Mrs. Virginia La Verne Krol, 25, known to movie fans of a decade ago as the child star, Virginia Lee Corbin, was sued for divorce in circuit court today by her husband of seven years, Theodore Krol, a salesman. The bill charged habitual drunkenness.

Wirephoto: Late Model Anti-Aircraft Gun Demonstrated for President

Copyright by the Associated Press.

Voicing a wish "we had more of them," President Roosevelt yesterday seemed well pleased with a demonstration of the latest modern 3-inch anti-aircraft gun developed by the United States Army. Col. Frank F. Ferguson, commanding the unit, explains the gun while "Buzzie" Curtis Dall, grandson of the President, looks on from the runningboard of the car.

Memorial

Robertson asked this special appeal to insure that the Appeals Court's injunction would have sufficient jurisdiction.

The point raised by Toland—that the 1935 relief act was an unconstitutional delegation of powers by Congress—was not ruled upon by Justice Cox. Toland said a previous decision by the Appeals Court had held the entire act invalid.

The Federal attorneys—R. F. Boyd and Alger Hiss, of the Department of Justice—argued that the previous Appeals Court decision invalidated only the housing sections of the relief act, and therefore was inapplicable here.

The memorial to be erected on the historic waterfront was as yet without a concrete plan. Once the property had been obtained and cleared, the Territorial Expansion Commission of the Department of the Interior was to have held an open competition for architects, with a first prize of $50,000, a second prize of $25,000, and a third of $10,000, with the first prize winner having an opportunity to qualify as the architect in charge.

Tentatively the plans were to include construction of at least two huge museum buildings, one to be a unit presenting an exposition of American architecture as influenced by Thomas Jefferson, and the other to house an exhibit history of the American fur trade, which centered in St. Louis for many years as it was the gateway to the old frontiers of land, there were to be parks, an underground auto parking section to hold 10,000 cars, fountains, statues, recreational facilities, lecture halls, and even a small harbor for pleasure craft.

The memorial, if constructed, would be on a scale to rank with the world's greatest in physical proportions. Obstacles have developed throughout its career since proposed, centering chiefly in the wide difference between the views of the average St. Louis citizen and the property owners whose holdings would come under the hammer. The citizens, according to all reports, are delighted at the prospect of the great park area, and denounce the objecting property owners as selfish.

The area is heavily industrialized, and far from being a beauty spot at present, although of considerable productivity industrially.

Although yesterday's court order, signed by Chief Justice George E. Martin, restrained all work on the project, park service officials held that the work of appraisal and estimating being done in St. Louis could go on anyway.

The final decision will be made by the appellate court here as expeditiously as possible, it was said, but observers thought this would be a matter of several months.

When Justice Cox denied an injunction on June 24, he cited the Government's power to preserve historic sites, and said the complainants had not shown the project would cause "irreparable loss." He further expressed doubt that the petitioners had the right to maintain the action as the Government had not consented to be sued.

Mother 'Singles' In Stork Derby

Toronto, Aug. 17 (AP).—Birth of a son advanced Mrs. Gus Graziano one stride in the "stork derby" instead of the two she had hoped for.

The baby, born last night, is the ninth childr born to the Grazianos since October 31, 1926, when Charles Vance Millar died, willing about $500,000 to the Toronto mother bearing the most children in the decade after his death.

The hoped for twins would have earned Mrs. Graziano a tie with Mrs. Arthur Timleck and Mrs. John Nagle, who have ten children each. She tied Mrs. Grace Bagnato, at least temporarily. Mrs. Bagnato expects to bring her total to ten or more any day.

Mrs. Martin Kenny claims leadership with 12 children since Millar, the bachelor lawyer, died. The other contestants, however, dispute her claim.

The new baby was named Benito Mussolini Graziano.

60 Billion Seen As U. S. Income For This Year

Earnings Also Expected to Meet Expenditures by Commercial Aid.

By the Associated Press.

Ernest G. Draper, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, predicted yesterday that unless there is some major change in present business trends national income produced this year will be closed to $60,000,000,000.

Although acknowledging "it is difficult to give any definite figures," he said a preliminary study of various statistics had indicated the total would be between $58,000,000,000 and $60,000,000,000. This would compare with $52,059,000,000 last year, $41,034,000,000 in 1929, and $39,545,000,000—the lowest figure since '29—in 1932.

Draper forecast also that income produced and income paid out will balance approximately this year. Since 1929, income paid out had exceeded income produced.

Last year this excess was $628,000,000, compared with the high of $8,817,000,000 in 1932.

Along with the predicted rise in national income produced, Draper said, a slight increase also might be expected in per capita income of employes, which last year was $1,201 compared with $1,466 in 1929 and $1,097 in 1933.

The Commerce Department computes the net national income by estimating the value of all goods and services produced in one year and subtracting from this the estimated costs of goods and capital equipment consumed in the process of production.

Manufacturing, trade and service activities are among the most important sources of national income.

Wife Says Al Smith, Jr., Earns $30,000 Monthly

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP).—A diary kept by Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, jr., purporting to show that her husband's New York City law practice income was sometimes as high as $30,000 a month from 1928 to 1932, was quoted by Clifford H. Searl, her attorney, in Supreme Court today.

He argued a motion for substantial temporary alimony and counsel fees pending trial of her separation action.

Searl read an affidavit by Mrs. Smith referring to a recent series of alleged payments by young Smith totaling $12,300 to Miss Catherina Pavlik, of Astoria, Long Island, a stenographer, as indicating that he is still well supplied with money. A list of stocks he owns also was read.

Soviet Food Commissar To Study U. S. Ice Cream

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—Anasta Mikoya, commissar of the food industry in Soviet Russia, came to the United States today to get some more ideas about ice cream.

Russians, he said, don't have ice-cream sodas, but they eat ice cream in great quantities.

In studying mass food production in the United States Mikoya said, he would pay particular attention to ice cream manufacture as well as to meat packing, the canning industry and bakeries.

Pools Being Connected To Afford Water Supply

Parsons, Kans., Aug. 17 (AP).—Faced with what city commissioners termed the "most acute water situation in history," Parsons today watched a power shovel begin digging a 20-foot channel to connect scattered pools in the Neosho River bed. The trenching operation will be extended 10 miles. Officials said if it is successful it will provide a two-week supply.

Only two or three days' water remains in the Labette Creek reservoir, commissioners said.

TVA Rates

make higher profits and sell more power.

Private companies have replied that they have steadily been reducing their rates, and there has been no acceleration in the rate decrease since TVA started operations. They contend TVA rates are lower because TVA does not base its rates on its full investment, but charges off part to flood control and navigation betterment.

In a statement last night, Jo C. Guild, jr., president of the Tennessee Electric Power Co., said his company was "most reluctant" to enter any legal contract with the city of Chattanooga or any of its boards. He challenged the constitutionality of the Chattanooga power board, and said "no board of this kind has ever had so much autocratic power conferred upon it."

"I wish to call attention," Guild said, "to the fact that David Lilienthal, director of the TVA, went to considerable lengths to say that he is helping and not hurting private power companies in the valley. However, he now proposes to make a contract that would take away from the Tennessee Electric Power Co. a large part of its business. That is obviously inconsistent."

19 Firms File Suits.

In addition to the Chattanooga suit to restrain the Chattanooga board from selling its bonds, and litigation in Knoxville holding up city authorities from proceeding with construction of a city distribution system, the Tennessee Valley Authority has another constitutional suit on its hands in the valley, contesting its rapidly spreading operations.

Nineteen private power companies operating in the Tennessee valley filed identical suits against the TVA in chancery court at Knoxville and in Federal court at Birmingham on May 29. They asked that the TVA and its power be declared unconstitutional and that the authority be enjoined from further operation. Last week the TVA filed a motion asking that the Knoxville suit be dismissed, claiming a suit against the authority can be brought only in the northern district of Alabama. Attorneys for the authority have filed a motion in Birmingham asking that the suit there be dismissed on grounds that all questions raised there already have been passed on by the United States Supreme Court.

The power company complaint charged execution of the TVA program would "inevitably destroy" the private companies, and accused TVA of attempting to "drive the utility operating companies out of business."

Papers completing the Chattanooga power contract with TVA, already approved by the local power board and signed by the mayor, have been forwarded to TVA offices at Knoxville, where they await the next meeting of the board. It was said the only possible hitch involves certain use of profits from the municipal power plant, which has not yet been agreed to by the TVA.

Under the contract as now drafted, the city would be supplied with a maximum demand of 30,000 kilowatts per hour at minimum rates ranging from $50,000 the first year to $200,000 the fourth and each consecutive year thereafter.

The copy of the contract between the TVA and the Chattanooga Electric Power Board, as published locally, does not contain the exact rates under which the TVA power would be resold to domestic consumers, but a supplement to the contract is expected to contain the information.

Replying to a condemnation suit filed against them by the TVA, three landowners in Chattanooga charged yesterday the TVA has no right to build Chikamaugua dam, near Chattanooga, according to Associated Press dispatches. Counsel for the landowners claimed in a United States District Court that the object of the dam is to produce electric energy, and not to aid navigation, flood control or national defense.

Drought

lief rolls in Oklahoma, where the farm family population is 213,000.

Following is a table of the estimated number of families in each State that will need relief:

Nebraska, 15,000 to 20,000; Kansas, 15,000 to 20,000; Missouri 40,000 to 50,000; North Dakota, 40,000; South Dakota, 35,000; Montana, 12,000; Wyoming, 5,000; Oklahoma, 70,000; Iowa, 15,000; Illinois, 10,000; Wisconsin, 7,500; Ohio 5,000; Kentucky, 125,000; North Carolina, 10,000; West Virginia, 3,500; Arkansas, 2,500; South Carolina, 18,000; Georgia, 25,000; Colorado, 5,000; Tennessee, 1,500; Texas, 5,000.

Williams said he had been receiving complaints that not enough was being done for drought sufferers and that some Senators and Representatives had suggested more appropriations would be necessary. He mentioned particularly Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin), and Seantor Nye (Republican), North Dakota, as advocating additional appropriations.

The WPA still is operating on a work relief basis, many drought sufferers being employed on water conservation projects. As a result of the plan the RA load will be much heavier during the winter because work will be impossible in many of the States where weather conditions are severe.

Japanese Cold To New Pacts, Delegates Say

By the United Press.

Yosemite, Calif., Aug. 17.—Japanese delegates to the Sixth Institute of Pacific Relations said today they were surprised anyone wanted to discuss the islands.

They announced that they were not interested in treaties with other nations as they were capable of defending themselves.

Policies of the present administration of the United States were discussed and criticised sharply by nearly all delegates. Consideration of problems created by recovery plans of this country continued in tonight's session. Tomorrow, the delegates will turn their attention to Japan, which will be the object of searching inquiry for three days. It is expected the discussion of the relations between Japan and China will result in heated variance of opinion.

Practically all phases of recovery plans in the United States were censured by delegates to the institute. This country's silver purchase policy was condemned roundly as having brought serious economic loss to many countries of the Pacific and as having been of little or no benefit to the United States.

Chinese delegates charged that under the Roosevelt Administration the policy of the United States in the Far East had been relaxed, to the disadvantage of China.

The agricultural policy of the United States, as carried out under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, generally was said to have failed.

Defense forces and armaments of the United States on its Pacific coast and the islands were discussed at length. Japanese delegates expressed themselves, however, as being convinced there was no possibility of war between the United States and Japan.

A less optimistic view concerning relations of nations on the Pacific was taken by Albert Sarraut, twice premier and 19 times a cabinet member of France.

"For many years I have feared a great war in the Pacific," he said.

U. S. Will Exhume Body as Karpis Link

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 17 (AP).—County authorities today said that Federal investigators had been granted authority to exhume a body found in a woods near here in 1934 to determine if it is Dr. Joseph Moran, physician, slain by the Barker-Karpis gang in 1934.

Federal agents have sought the body of the physician for two years. They once said they believed it was thrown into Lake Erie.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has said Dr. Moran performed operations to obliterate the fingerprints of Alvin Karpis, now serving a sentence for kidnaping.

The body, found six weeks after death, was that of a man approximately 45 years old. There were marks of a struggle where it was found.

Karpis and other members of the gang came here in the spring of 1934 after some of the $200,000 ransom money from the Edward Bremer kidnaping in St. Paul had turned up in Chicago. Federal agents said Dr. Moran was slain because "he was drinking and talking too much."

Do your eyes reveal you a marvelous mixer?

"Benevolent" brows
Bushy, and bulging low just above eyes. Prominent bone ridge midway between brows. Forehead high in center. The thoughtful, kindly brow of "a sociable soul" who loves to please every one . . . A good mixer.

"Good mixer's" eye
Long, and deep-set above full lower lids. Cheeks immediately below lower lids deeply furrowed with soft tissue. Gaze straight-forward, bright, alert. The merry, fun-loving eyes of the good mixer.

"Perfect host's" jaw
Width of jaw at cheek-bone level indicating convivial type fond of entertaining and jollification. Width of jaw at base indicating sense of value, judgment, care. A capable, understanding and gay host! A good mixer.

Harbor Police In Need of Men; Station Ample

Reporter Finds Equipment and Housing Adequate, But Force Small.

This is the fourth in a series of articles depicting conditions existing in precinct stations of the Metropolitan Police. A Post reporter yesterday investigated conditions at Harbor Precinct.

By Bill Richardson.

Anything can happen in the harbor and it does.

Men die in the Potomac, as they do on land. There is larceny on the water—stolen craft. There is rowdiness and misconduct, too—noisy parties aboard pleasure yachts. There are traffic jams; three are traffic rules on the Potomac, too. There is a channel to clear in the river, and ice must be broken in the Potomac in winter.

These are some of the duties of 23 men who are stationed at Harbor Precinct with instruction to cover the waterfront 24 hours a day.

The Harbor Precinct has its station near the Seventh street wharves on Water street. The station was built recently, but it is subject to drafts in winter and excessive heat in summer, even though it is near the water.

But the building is clean and large enough to house all the precinct's equipment and men comfortably.

The Harbor Precinct, men there say, has the best equipment of any harbor police in the country. They have six boats now, ranging from a powerful 55-foot deisel-powered boat to a small 14-foot one-cylinder launch used for dragging the river for bodies. One of the boats is stationed at Georgetown and with it a man is stationed eight hours a day. The rest are stationed at the precinct station.

The harbor police would like to have more men to stay with the Georgetown boat 24 hours a day.

"But with all the fine equipment," Sergt. E. K. Shelton said yesterday, "we don't have enough men to man it all."

Primary need today of the Harbor Precinct, Sergt. C. C. Wise said yesterday, is another boat. That's all the extra equipment the precinct needs. That boat, said Sergt. Wise, should be placed in Eastern Branch. Every time now one of the big boats enters Eastern Branch, Sergt. Wise said, the railroad bridge must be lifted to allow passage.

They also would like to have another man to stay with the boat they would like to have at Eastern Branch. It doesn't have to be a large boat, the sergeant said. Just large enough to take care of emergency calls up that way.

All the men at Harbor say the precinct is in better shape than at any time since they can remember.

But they wish they had more men and another boat.

Farm Boy, 14, Held In Death of Chum

Wellsboro, Pa., Aug. 17 (AP).—Lyle West, 14-year-old farm boy, wept in his cell tonight after a grand jury held him on charges of involuntary manslaughter and pointing firearms, in the death of his 8-year-old chum, Hugh Townsend. The grand jury earlier declined to indict him for murder. Lyle's trial will be begun Monday.

"I didn't mean to pull the trigger, I didn't mean to shoot and I didn't mean to kill him." Lyle wept when his counsel told him he would have to remain in jail until his trial.

The grand jury took only a short time to set aside the murder charge, after hearing several witnesses. The boys were shooting frogs at a pond near Kenneyville. Lyle was on one side and Hugh on the other. Several boys said they heard Lyle cry:

"Stick 'em up."

There was a shot. Hugh fell dead. There was no quarrel, all agreed. Lyle has been in jail since the shooting several weeks ago.

11-Ton Arm of Vulcan Falls in Birmingham

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 17 (AP).—The 11-ton right arm of Vulcan, one of the Nation's largest statues, crashed to earth today, demolishing a scaffold set up to take apart the iron god of fire and metals.

Vulcan's arm, loosened by removal of rusty bolts, snapped its supporting cable and endangered a WPA working crew.

None was hurt, however, and the huge cast iron segment received only a broken finger. The superstructure for lifting off the remaining metal pieces must be rebuilt.

The 120,000-pound statue, built in 1903 as Birmingham's contribution to a St. Louis exposition, is being moved from the Alabama State Fair Grounds to the top of Red Mountain overlooking Birmingham.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 Miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 Miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 Miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

Letter to D. C. Takes 6 Months From Lonely Pitcairn Island

Pitcairn Island today is just about as isolated as it was in the days of the Bounty, according to the length of time it takes for a letter to come to Washington from the island.

A newspaper article dealing with Pitcairn was sent from Seventh Day Adventist General Conference headquarters in Takoma Park to Roy P. Clark, for 25 years an Adventist missionary on the island, about the middle of February, 1936. Clark's reply, with the article rearranged according to real conditions on the island today, was received at Takoma Park only a few days ago, after being carried by a passing steamer to Bexleyheath, Kent, England, and remailed from there.

Refuting what he says are false reports that have appeared in papers all over the world concerning actual conditions on the lonely British outpost in the mideastern Pacific Ocean, Clark pictures life on the island today. The reply was six months reaching Washington.

Two miles long by 1 mile wide, the island today has 212 inhabitants, and contrary to reports, Clark says, all of them do not claim descent from the nine original Bounty mutineers who under the leadership of Fletcher Christian took the Bounty from Tahiti to Pitcairn in 1789.

"Only the Youngs, Christians and McCoys can claim direct descent from the mutineers," he says. "Other families on the island are the Warrens, Coffins, Clarks and Coolys."

Transoceanic vessels that travel the waters dotted by Pitcairn Island seldom anchor off the sheer, rock walls of the island, but stop only long enough to trade with the natives. In the 25 years that he has been there, Clark says that he remembers only three or four instances of ships anchoring there.

"To earn our daily bread here on the island is not a struggle. We have not known real depression as the world knows it today," he writes. "We are all one large family, and live as if it were under one roof."

Denying reports that islanders wear old-fashioned clothes and speak mid-Victorian English, he says that they have their trials the same as people everywhere, and that they trade for clothing on passing ships. He points out that 112 are members of the Adventist Church. A school board of five members under jurisdiction of the Church selects teachers to teach the 45 children of school age.

A simple system of socialism prevails on the island. The main settlement is Adamstown, named after the old mutineer who turned evangelist. The steep and rugged nature of the island limits the area which can be cultivated. The only tilling instrument used on the island is the hoe and the wheelbarrow is the sole means of transport. A horse and plow would be very welcome into their agricultural equipment, Clark says.

Islanders live principally on vegetables, fruit, fish, goat's flesh, poultry and eggs. They obtain staples from passing boats, and they do not drink goat's milk, Clark says, but get tinned milk from ships. Not a pig is on the island. Oranges grown on Pitcairn are among the finest in the world, he says.

Home Program Fund Increase Urged by Ickes

By the Associated Press.

In a new plea for funds to continue the Federal Government's low-rent housing program, Secretary Ickes expressed the hope yesterday that the next Congress would pass the Wagner bill to authorize expenditure of more than $800,000,000 during the next ten years.

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, author of the measure, recently said he planned to reintroduce it. Ickes declared he had "always been for the bill in principle."

Earlier, the PWA administrator wrote the executive committee of the advisory board on Chicago housing projects that "in spite of the fact that the Wagner bill was not passed in the last session of Congress, it is my personal opinion that necessity itself will assure the continuation of a valid housing program in this country."

Ickes said he agreed with the committee's criticism of the centralized control over the 50 projects now under way, but contended that this "obviously was necessary at first." He added:

"It always has been my hope that once a demonstration program had been developed, municipalities would carry the work forward as local enterprises. This has been our objective from the beginning."

No funds are now available through the PWA housing division except for its present $130,000,000 project, Ickes said, however, the division would keep going because "we haven't completed the program." Nearly 100 of the 1,000 employes already have been dismissed since gradual liquidation of the agency was started a month ago.

The executive committee's report, signed by Gen. R. E. Wood, chairman, co-incided with the occupancy of Techwood homes at Atlanta, the first Federal low-rent housing project to be completed.

Although agreeing with Ickes that a subsidy of some kind was necessary to provide homes for low-income groups, the committee criticized the "initial size of the program."

To make possible rents in Chicago of not more than $6 a room, including heat, water and light, it said it would "welcome" any extension of the present PWA program. Use of vacant land in outlying sections, instead of demolition of actual slums, was suggested by the committee to keep down costs of sites.

Second Crash Victim Dies.

Waterloo, Iowa, Aug. 17 (AP).—Ronald R. Robertson, 23, of Waterloo, died today of injuries suffered when his light monoplane crashed in a corn field yesterday, killing Miss Elnora J. Morgan, 19, his passenger. Witnesses said Robertson's plane developed motor trouble and plummeted to the ground from about 200 feet. Miss Morgan, a grocery cashier, was pinned beneath the motor.

Clews Spur Hunt For Woman's Slayer

Chicago, Aug. 17 (AP).—Names in a black notebook and a laundry tag today gave police investigators what they considered their principal clews for a quick solution of the hotel slaying of Mrs. Mary Louise Trammell, 24, found brutally beaten to death in her third-floor room yesterday.

The notebook, dropped recently by a Negro prowler who was frightened away while attempting to enter a man's room in the hotel where Mrs. Trammell resided, was regarded as an important lead by the investigators who theorized that its owner returned later and killed Mrs. Trammell.

The notebook and laundry tag were turned over to the police by William Schumacher, 67, who occupies a room on the floor below the one in which the Trammells lived. He told police he was awakened a week ago and saw a "burly Negro" crawling through a window of his room from the fire escape. He frightened him away and later saw the notebook on the fire escape. It contained the laundry tag bearing a name and information about horse racing, as well as a list of 25 names.

Hoeppel Sued for Libel By Townsend Organizer

Los Angeles, Aug. 17 (AP).—Representative John H. Hoeppel (Democrat), California, was named defendant in a $100,000 libel suit filed in Superior Court today by William R. Peeler, Townsend lecturer and organizer.

The complaint charges Hoeppel caused publication and circulation in the Twelfth Congressional District of several thousand handbills depicting Peeler as a chain store organizer with "the insidious shadow of monopoly as its background."

D. C. Men Safe In Philippines After Typhoon

Officers and crew of the Coast and Geodetic ship Fathomer, tossed on a tiny coral reef by a Philippine typhoon, were reported safe last night by officials in Washington.

The Fathomer is commanded by Lieut. Robert F. A. Studds, a native Washingtonian and a graduate of Catholic University. In addition, two of her seven officers are well known to members of the service here.

News of their safety was flashed to R. S. Patton, director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, by Commander T. J. Maher, who is in charge of survey activities in the Philippines.

Maher's message to headquarters here said the Fathomer "went aground at 8 p. m. Saturday (Manila time) on a small coral reef in Port San Vicente, near the northeastern point of the Island of Luzon.

Port San Vicente is a landlocked harbor, natural shelter for ships in time of storm. Officials here said she beat the approaching typhoon to shelter and was at anchor when its center passed over or near the vessel.

In the beating the vessel subsequently took against the reef, forecastle, engine room and boiler room were flooded, the message from Commander Maher said.

Though the Fathomer, a 31-year-old steamer owned by the Philippine government, appeared to have suffered severely from the battering storm, survey officials expressed confidence officers and men were in no danger.

Former shipmates of Studds and his superiors in the service here declared they "couldn't have a better man in charge of a situation like that."

The Fathomer's first officer, Lieut. Kenneth G. Crosby gained a wide Washington acquaintance during several years of duty in the Capital.

Lieut. Charles A. Schanck is the husband of the former Christine Beard, who for some time before her marriage lived in Takoma Park, Md.

Crosby's home is Orleans, Mass. Schanck is a native of Roberts, Mont. Other Americans aboard the ship are Lieut. George R. Shelton, Lim Rock, Ala.; Lieut. Gilbert C. Mast, Sugar Grove, N. C.; Surgeon James W. Wetzel, Chicago, Ill., and Chief Engineer G. W. Hutchinson, Manila.

Studds lived in Washington for many years at 1409 New Jersey avenue. He was graduated from Catholic University in 1917 with the degree of bachelor of science in civil engineering.

The Fathomer was built in Hong Kong in 1905. She is 144 feet long, has a displacement of 550 tons and is powered with a 400-horsepower coal-burning engine.

11 Hurt, 2 Gravely, In Bus Collision

Easton, Pa., Aug. 17 (U.P.).—Eleven persons were injured tonight, two of them seriously, when a Greyhound bus collided with a truck at Mount Pleasant, near here.

The vehicles immediately burst into flames. Otto Wismer, Camden, N. J., operator of the bus, and Raymond Flyte, Bangor, Pa., truck driver were burned critically.

The others injured all passengers on the bus, suffered cuts and bruises and slight burns. All were taken to Easton Hospital. They were Ruth Tucker, Clarks Summit, Pa.; Irwin Howard, Shickshinny, Pa.; Mrs. Mary Ash, Upper Darby, Pa.; Mrs. Marian Schofield and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schwartz, Roxborough, Pa., and Marie Field, Stella Fisher and Gwen McMurray, Philadelphia.

$1,000 Rewards Up For Maniac Slayer

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 17 (A.P.).—Rewards totaling $1,000 were offered tonight for the capture of the slayer—officers described him as "sex mad"—of Dorothy Drain, 15, daughter of a WPA supervisor. Police Chief J. Arthur Grady is holding five suspects and said he is seeking a sixth.

Dorothy was assaulted and beaten to death in bed early Sunday. Her sister, Barbara, 12, also beaten, is in a critical condition with a fracture of the skull.

Officers said the fingerprints of Joseph Qualteri, shot to death by an Englewood (Colo.) policeman today, would be compared with prints found on the girls' bedroom door. Qualteri, a former convict, who escaped from the State hospital for the insane, was killed in a gun battle after resisting an officer's attempt to search him.

Sorority Session Draws 250 Women

With Mrs. Joseph Grigsby, of Washington, national president of the Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority, presiding, the annual convention of the sorority opens today at the Wardman Park Hotel, approximately 250 delegates from cities in the East and South will attend.

Following the formal opening, the program for today will include a luncheon, boat trip to Mount Vernon, dinner and an evening business meeting.

Dr. H. D. Lees, student health service, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, will address the convention tomorrow.

Storm Sweeps On China; Slide Buries 100 Men

Philippine Typhoon Dead Listed at 13; Luzon Crops Destroyed.

By the Associated Press

Manila (Tuesday), Aug. 18.—Death-dealing typhoons which spread waste and destruction across northern Luzon and the Philippine waters, raced toward the China coast tonight where 100 men were reported buried in a storm-tumbled landslide.

At least 13 persons were killed, three ships crippled and native homes and crops in Luzon destroyed by the 60-mile-per-hour gale that lashed the northern shores.

The storms toppled lighthouses, adding to the marine hazards.

The Manila government, fearful of a larger death report when crippled communication lines are restored, took steps to aid homeless residents in the northern provinces, where crops were reported 90 per cent destroyed in some areas.

The storm swept in Saturday, hurling the Coast and Geodetic Survey vessel, Fathomer, on a reef at Port San Vincente, and wrecking an unlisted boat, Dewtee. The Fathomer's crew of American officers and Filipino seamen made shore safely, but no word came from the Dewtee, which called for help after running aground.

The most severe typhoon since 1923 struck the Hong Kong region, tossing the British vessel Sunning, with 40 passengers, aground in Junk Bay.

The workmen were reported buried near Hong Kong.

Man Knifes Lion, Rescues Brother

Hoosick Falls, N. Y., Aug. 17 (A.P.). Warren Carr related today how he attacked a lion with a pocket knife and rescued his brother Chauncey, of Pittsfield, Mass., in a zoo at the Hans Ehmler estate here yesterday.

Chauncey leaned too close to the lions cage. One of the lions drew him close to the bars and slashed his thighs, pelvis and right arm.

Warren said he slashed at the animal's paws with the knife until the lion released his brother. It took 50 stitches to close Chauncey's wounds.

Earlier, the lion had attacked John Church, 54, of Hudson Falls, tearing his arm when the man stood too close to the cage. Seven stitches were required.

Hans Ehmler, owner of the zoo, is recovering from injuries received several weeks ago when he was attacked and gored by a wild boar.

Gangland Guns Kill Man in Fourth Attempt

Philadelphia, Aug. 17 (A.P.).—Gang guns got John Avena today after three previous attempts had failed. He died with his chest full of bullets.

Avena, a police character, was walking in a street with Martin Feldstein when an automobile drew alongside. A fusillade felled both men. The car, which had been stolen, later was found abandoned.

Avena was shot and severely wounded three times since 1926, police said, but never named his assailants.

Detectives said they were investigating a possible connection between the slaying and a lottery racket.

Woman Beggar Asks, Receives Jail Term

Chicago, Aug. 17 (A.P.).—At her own request the "little old lady from Aurora" was sentenced by Judge Jay A. Schiller today to nine months in the Women's State Reformatory at Dwight, on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

The "little old lady from Aurora" so called because of accusations by Police Sergt. Ralph Stepp that she had obtained money from hundreds of women by representing she had lost her railroad ticket and needed the cash to get home to Aurora, asked for the sentence so she would receive medical attention in a State institution.

Ol' Man River Low.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 17 (A.P.).—The Mississippi River today stood at its lowest level in five years. Drought conditions throughout the watershed had reduced the river to a stage of .9 foot at the guage here. Today's level was the lowest since November 16, 1931. The lowest on record was 2.7 feet on November 9, 1895.

Blue Division Rests for Clash With Cavalry

Red Vanguard Moving Up Through Indiantown, Swatara Gaps.

By Phillip J. Austensen.
A Staff Correspondent

Headquarters, Twenty-ninth Division, near Hanover, Pa., Aug. 17. The Twenty-ninth Division, Blue Army, is resting on its arms tonight awaiting contact with the Cavalry advance guard of the Red Army which is moving up to prevent the Blue Army from debouching through the Indiantown and Swatara Gaps.

All units of the division had reported themselves in position tonight on the 5-mile front and the "Brass Hats" of the division were anxiously awaiting the reports of reconnaissance groups.

Darkness pervaded the area, broken occasionally by the glare of vari-colored flares and the winking signal lights of the aviation unit which is co-operating with the ground troops.

District Troops on Move.

The 121st Engineers of Washington were moving forward to demolish three bridges over the theoretically unfordable Swatara Creek. The engineers will undertake other construction and demolition projects as their need develops in the progress of the problem.

Two small States, the Blue or Northern State and the Red, or Southern State are at war. The boundary between the States is the Lebanon Valley Branch of the Pennsylvania and Reading Railroad.

Red forces occupy high ground to the south in the vicinity of Mount Gretna and are expected to advance in an effort to close the mountain passes.

The Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Divisions of the Blue Army have come through the passes and the Twenty-eighth Division is holding high ground directly north of Mount Gretna and between Annville and Lebanon.

Forces Make Contact.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the Twenty-ninth Division, this morning was apprised in a message from the Blue Army commander that the Twenty-eighth Division had made contact with the Red Army commander south of Annville and that a war-strength cavalry division had bivouacked at Middletown to the southeast, and that enemy cavalry patrols had been reported as near as Hummelstown, threatening the right flank of the Twenty-eighth Division.

He was ordered, "your Twenty-ninth Division will organize and defend a position on the Grantville Ridge between Blue Mountain and Swatara Creek until the Blue Army has debouched from the Indiantown Gap, and Swatara Gap on August 19. Establish division command post vicinity of East Hanover."

Movement of the division to defend the position was ordered by Gen. Reckord and the division marched from the military reservation at Indiantown Gap.

Planes Report Hourly.

The division aviation squadron was ordered to make hourly reports on the position of the enemy and the location of the Twenty-ninth units.

The Ninety-first Infantry Brigade of Virginia, supported by the 111th Field Artillery of Virginia, is placed on the right while the Fifty-eighth Infantry brigade of Maryland, supported by the Maryland 110th Artillery has taken its position on the left. The 176th Artillery regiment of Pennsylvania is in the center and to the rear of the other artillery regiments with the 104th medical regiment of Maryland and Virginia is still farther to the rear in the left sector. The tank company of Danville, Va., is being held in the division reserve area.

The battle is expected to be over tomorrow in time for return of the troops to the camp by early afternoon there to rest until Wednesday morning when they again will leave camp for an attack problem.

Three Convicted In Bannister Case

New York, Aug. 17 (A.P.).—A general sessions court jury today convicted three men of extorting money from Harry Bannister, actor-producer, under threat of making public affidavits which would have tended to impute shame to the former husband of Ann Harding, the actress.

Judge Morris Koenig will sentence the men September 3. They are Jerome A. Jacobs, 48, New York attorney; Harry Hechheimer, 63, former attorney who became a salesman, and Raymond Derringer, 39, motion picture machine operator, who testified he had been hired to obtain affidavits favorable to Bannister during the latter's child custody dispute with Miss Harding.

Hechheimer has a record for a previous conviction on an arson charge and faces a sentence of from 10 to 20 years. Jacobs and Derringer could be sentenced to from 5 to 10 years in prison.

Concert Tickets Offered for Letters

Five $1 tickets and five 50-cent tickets, good for any concert in the series, will be awarded weekly by the Washington Summer Concerts Association for the best two letters describing the Watergate concerts from an auditor's point of view.

The letters should include some comment and criticism of one of the programs of that particular week. The committee on awards is composed of Elsa Posell, chief of the music division of the public library; Carl Bemies, Louis Potter, Thomas J. Millikin and the conductor of the week.

Lottery Tickets Guarded.

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 17 (A.P.).—Chief Postal Inspector John J. Breslin placed a guard around a freight car bearing a ton and a half of Canadian army and navy lottery tickets when the car arrived today.

Richman Begins Flight East; to Hop to London

Los Angeles, Aug. 17 (A.P.).—Harry Richman, New York and Hollywood singer, and Dick Merrill, veteran pilot, began today a leisurely cross-country air tour to New York, from there they hope to make a 24-hour round-trip London flight soon.

Sowing The Wind.

International law has received a succession of body blows in recent years. None is likely to prove more destructive of the bases of decent relations between governments than those reported as being struck by Germany and Italy in the present Spanish crisis.

It is a clearly understood principle of international law that a nation must refrain in every way from interfering in the internal affairs of another with which it is at peace. Just because Russia, through the device of the Comintern, was accused of such intolerable interference, many nations hesitated for a long time before establishing normal diplomatic relations with the Soviet power.

No nations are as hostile to the politics and practices, real and alleged, of the Comintern as are Germany and Italy. Yet in the Spanish crisis they are seemingly pursuing the very course which they have so frequently accused Russia of following. By sending arms, ammunition and airplanes to the Spanish rebels, as is authoritatively reported and not officially denied, they have in a very real and extremely dangerous sense intervened in the internal affairs of Spain, a country with which they are at peace.

From a practical point of view the Anglo-French plan of nonintervention has much to recommend it. Its wisdom arises out of the circumstance that the Spanish civil war is driving a sharp wedge between the Liberal-Democratic-Socialistic and the Fascist elements throughout Europe, thus endangering both the internal stability of various nations and the peace of the world. To preserve the peace, France and Great Britain are willing to make a great sacrifice, i.e., to forego exercising the clearly established right to aid the regularly constituted Spanish government by selling it supplies, as Europe sold supplies to the Federal Government during our Civil War.

Despite the common use of the term, the French plan does not really call for "neutrality," as between the Spanish government and the rebels. For such neutrality would presuppose the right of nations to give immediate aid to those in rebellion against a constituted government as well as to the established government itself. Prior to formal recognition of the rebels as organized belligerents, no such right exists.

Assistance to a friendly government, confronted by rebellion, is entirely optional. But surreptitious aid to rebels against that government is virtually an espousal of the cause of piracy. It creates a precedent of such far-reaching implications as to merit formal and forceful protest from all nations with a more scrupulous regard for the fundamental obligations of nationhood.

No Place To Swim.

Recreation experts agree that any city of 500,000 people should have a minimum of 10 public swimming pools. In Washington, where the summer climate drives children into the first water they can find and where there are no easily accessible beaches, the ratio of pools to population should undoubtedly be above average. Yet this city falls considerably short of the minimum requirement, with only 7 pools (three of which are small) to serve its half million people.

As pointed out by Edward Fenton in The Post yesterday, drownings bear a direct relationship to this neglect of supervised swimming facilities. Fatalities of this sort are particularly heavy in the Southwest, for that section has no pools and lies adjacent to the Potomac River. Even the two pools now under construction with WPA funds in Anacostia and East Potomac Parks are so located that they will offer very little relief to the children of the Southwest.

Construction of pools in that section was neglected some years ago because it was hoped that the river front might be made suitable for swimming. But continued pollution of the water and the dangerous shifting of the river bed have destroyed that hope. Recently the office of the National Capital Parks has acquired a site for development as a Southwest playground, including a pool, and only a comparatively meager appropriation is needed to put the work under way.

Resumption of work on the East Potomac pool as a result of last Saturday's tragic accident is gratifying. It is too late, of course, to start new pools for use this year, even if funds were available. But definite plans to offer safe swimming next season to the underprivileged children of the Southwest can not be too quickly initiated. So long as these facilities are denied, officials will find it difficult to escape a sense of responsibility for the needless toll exacted by the treacherous Potomac.

Watch Coughlin.

Beginning with, and not excluding, the Republican convention, the worthy burghers of Cleveland have this summer been subjected to some pretty stiff doses of political humbug. The climax, or so it may be hoped, was reached on Sunday when the Hon. William Lemke, Union Party candidate for President, outlined to his supporters the Utopia which he proposes to create from the discordant elements of our body politic.

By building 250,000 artificial lakes in the Middle West; by providing Townsend pensions; by encouraging labor-saving machinery to permit more pay for less work; by pitching Wall Street and the brain trust to the dogs together, and by various other passes left unspecified, the North Dakota statesman promises to rebuild the Nation nearer to the heart's desire. Moreover, he will do all this (including the 250,000 lakes) in four years, leaving the Government, at the end of his Presidential term, so well-organized that even a Roosevelt or a Landon could scarcely mess it up.

The fact that several thousand people will assemble under a broiling sun to listen to such hooey is not surprising. It is a good show, of a sort, and certainly no circus could compete with a political rally able to assemble Lemke, Dr. Townsend and the Revs. Gerald L. K. Smith and Coughlin within a single sawdust ring. But the show has none the less rather serious implications for a Nation which prides itself on maintaining the processes of democracy in a world where the dictatorial principle is so clearly in the ascendant.

A public execution in Kentucky the other day gave a revealing glimpse of mob brutality in this country. The Cleveland convention of the so-called National Union for Social Justice similarly emphasizes the ignorance of those who will avidly absorb any farrago of nonsense so long as it promises them material gain. Ignorance, cupidity and brutality are three dangerous enemies of democracy. If they can be united and sufficiently inflamed they may very easily bring it down in ruins.

Whether here or abroad, the procedure of the Fascist demagogue is simple, and it is always essentially the same. The first step is to inflame the passions of those who are, or consider themselves, underprivileged. As part of that procedure lavish promises are made as to what could be done for the masses by a change of government. It does not matter what drivel is talked, or how destructive the program, provided only that it is painted as truly "American"—or "German," or "Italian"—in conception. This is where the Communists are less successful, because more honest, than the Fascists. They admit, and applaud, the fact that their aims mean a revolutionary overturn.

The methods of the Coughlins, Longs and Lemkes of the present age are in their implications no less revolutionary than those of the Communists. If the demagogues ever obtained political power the impossibility of achieving their promises would very soon demand a dictatorship, to suppress the outcries of their disillusioned supporters if for no other reason. Then, to divert attention from their own incapacities, would come the persecutions of minority elements which have proved so important a part of Hitler's program in Germany.

Charles E. Coughlin, who since the assassination of Huey Long has become America's No. 1 potential Fascist leader, is a long way behind either Hitler or Mussolini. His problem, in this continental federation of States, is far greater and his assets, in the shape of popular ignorance, misery and hopelessness, far less. But the fact remains that Coughlin, using the Hitler technique and utilizing stooges very cleverly, has made by no means inconsiderable headway. He will bear watching by all who have the welfare of our form of government at heart.

Deference To Feng Shui.

Mount Fuji, to whose glorious summit thousands of Japanese pilgrims climb each year, is not to be profaned by having cable cars creep up its symmetrical flanks.

In the future, as in the past, those who would reach the top will have to do so on foot. Except during the winter months, it is not an excessively difficult climb. There are way-stations for the footsore and the view from the summit, a magnificent combination of seascape and landscape, is more than rewarding.

To the nature-loving Japanese, Fuji-san, Honorable Fuji, is more than a mountain. Seen from any angle its snow-clad cone, sweeping upward to a height of more than 12,000 feet, is indeed a thing of beauty and a joy forever. Reverenced on esthetic grounds, the peak is also venerated as a symbol of power and majesty, indeed almost as a guardian of the nation.

In deciding against the construction of a railroad to the summit, the Japanese Home Office was torn between conflicting desires. Interested in building up the tourist traffic, it was inclined to favor construction of the cable car route to enable many more foreigners and Japanese to get to the top. Yet the authorities realized that if the project was carried through it would offend deep-rooted popular feelings. Finally it was decided to drop the project, the official explanation being that it would mar Mount Fuji's beauty and also have an adverse effect on Japan's national health by discouraging manly exercise.

Possibly those in authority had another, unvoiced, reason for refusing their consent to the construction of the mountain railway. In China, whence Japan took over its basic civilization, the masses still believe in feng shui, the tutelary spirits of a landscape. When disturbed by man-made botchery these spirits, it is believed, can be terrible in their wrath. Perhaps it was the fear of offending them that led to rejection of the cable-car project on Mount Fuji.

But whatever the reason, the decision is one which Americans may ponder. We have been ruthless toward our feng shui. Whether or not they are a factor in the fatalities on our sign-spotted highways the hospital records do not say.

Mr. Blanton's Last Stand.

Washingtonians cannot help being mildly amused by the frantic struggle of Representative Blanton to retain his seat in Congress. Were it not for his loss of prestige in recent months residents of the District might be seriously concerned over the outcome of the contest in Texas' Seventeenth Congressional District. As matters stand, however, the bait which he is putting out to catch votes is only cause for smiles.

Through some strange complex, Mr. Blanton seems to think that he was elected in far-away Abilene to discipline and subdue a mythical group of wicked spendthrifts in the District government. At any rate, one of the chief arguments in his run-off campaign against Judge Clyde L. Garrett is that only he (Blanton) can prevent the voteless and impotent District from robbing the Federal Treasury. If Mr. Blanton really expects his constituents to take this seriously, he must presume that they are both gullible and ignorant. And there is no indication that they are either.

For example, Mr. Blanton recently boasted that he "reduced the Federal contribution (to the District) $13,000,600 below what would have been required under existing law." In this statement he clearly implies that the statute calling for division of the District's expenses on a 60-40 basis is still effective. Actually, of course, it has been on the shelf for 12 years. There was never the most remote possibility of its being applied to the 1937 budget. The facts are, of course, that Congress rejected Mr. Blanton's proposal to slash $3,000,000 from the Federal allowance to the District, and the final cut was only $700,000.

Still more ridiculous is Mr. Blanton's pompous assertion that "unless I am back there again to hold it in line next year the 60-40 law will prevail." The falsity of this statement is so apparent that it must be interpreted as a last desperate fling by a candidate who feels his footing crumbling beneath him.

In the last District appropriations act President Roosevelt was instructed to make a complete study of the fiscal relations between the Government and the District of Columbia for the specific purpose of terminating the time-consuming rows which Mr. Blanton has precipitated over this subject for the last several years. This study, incidentally, it was bitterly opposed by Mr. Blanton, will be the basis of future allowances covering the Government's obligations to its Capital. In or out of Congress, Mr. Blanton's influence over Washington's budget next year is likely to be eclipsed. And the division of expenses will be based on a scientific formula.

There will be a good deal of chuckling, too, over Mr. Blanton's blood-thirsty saga of how he discovered communism in the schools, passed the "red rider" to uproot it, and resisted all attempts by "Communists" to repeal the provision. The facts are, of course, that the Communists are delighted with the free advertising Mr. Blanton has given their cause, while the teachers and citizens of Washington feel a deep sense of outrage over his encroachment upon educational freedom.

If the comments of Washingtonians by chance reach Abilene, it would be well for Texans there to realize that this reaction to Mr. Blanton's pleadings is not localized The most conspicuous denunciation of his tactics has come from Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, and other legislators who have spoken very frankly on his unscrupulous tactics. It must afford them keen amusement to see the Texan using that very method in his own district, under the dangerous assumption that his constituents are unable to ascertain the facts.

Canine Passengers.

From Dog World.

The British railways encourage the traveling of dogs on passenger trains. Their advertisement states, "When going on a holiday, take your dog with you."

Special facilities and cheap fare for dogs accompanying passengers are provided. Usually the fare for the dog is about one-fifth of the passenger rate. The fare up to 150 miles does not exceed $1.10. Not more than three dogs can accompany one passenger.

At different stops along the way the station agents will furnish drinking water for the dogs.

It would be a piece of good enterprise for the American Kennel Club and other dog clubs to secure similar arrangements.

Economical.

From the London Observer.

The "Fat Lady" of the circus was taking a walk and, hesitating in the middle of a road, was knocked down by a taxi. Luckily she was not hurt and, getting up, she stormed at the Cockney driver.

"Why did you run into me? Couldn't you have gone around me?" she screamed.

"Sorry, lidy," was the reply. "I didn't think I 'ad enough gasoline left."

WPA And Comic Strips.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I presume to reason with the editorial department of The Post as to why so many attacks, implied and direct, are made on the WPA in your columns? These attacks are usually based on the futility of the projects, or on the absence of anything constructive in them.

Suppose we take the comic sections of our daily papers and ask the same question. Or we might take columns of material appearing daily in our city papers which in their usefulness, in a constructive way, would be quite as "comic" as the admittedly comic. The paper would reply that the people demand these things. I reply that the unemployed of the Nation demand work with even meager compensation. And the leaders of the Nation, out of many projects suggested as useful and constructive, select what they consider worthy. Have they no common sense in the prosecution of their duties that The Post should accuse them of willful waste of public funds? If the newspapers can afford to pay large sums for comics which amuse the people for five minutes a day, is it asking too much to admit that work not really essential but necessary, such as was done on our parks and on our streets, has quite as much right to a place in our national life at this time of stress and strain, as newspaper comics have? Is it not worth while to see men and women who could not easily get into commercial life, due to no fault of their own, now paying their grocer bills, their rent bills and their long-suffering doctors' bills?

On the matter of our rolling up a debt, is it not true that if a piece of property was, in 1930, worth only $10,000, with a mortgage of $3,000, is now in better shape if it is worth $20,000, with a mortgage of $5,000? That might well illustrate the state of our country. Debts should be thought of in their relation to ability to pay. No one can deny that the wealth of the country has greatly increased in the last few years. If a plan works, why not let it work? J. O. KNOTT.

Watch The Lights!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Stand on any busy street corner in the city and you will see from one to a dozen or more pedestrians waiting on the corner. Nearly all are watching the coming automobiles and not the lights. As soon as the street is temporarily clear there is a rush to cross, as often as not against the red light.

Crossing against the red light not only endangers the pedestrian, but seriously hinders the coming auto driver who is obeying the law. It frequently happens that the driver, with the right of way and perhaps in a hurry, has to stop to allow some violator of the traffic rules to reach a place of safety, rather than to be the innocent cause of an accident.

Standing on a corner awaiting the green light, I often think that a conspicuous sign carrying the words, "Watch the Lights—not to Autos," placed on the busy corners (or at every corner), might in time teach the pedestrian to obey the traffic rules, thus adding to their own safety and working with and not against the auto driver.

Relief And Politics In Kentucky

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This subject has particular reference to relief—public help—as distinguished from the word "relief" as ordinarily and formerly used. When you say that people are on relief, or are receiving relief, or are entitled to relief, or need relief, or do not need relief, it is understood to mean benefactions from some public source, in these later years, from the Federal Government. And in thinking of political relief one has in mind benefactions and bounties extended by the Government on the basis of politics.

This matter has been brought to public attention recently by no less a personage than the President of the United States, the official and titular head and primary authority of all agencies of the Federal Government that have to do with dispensing relief, when he recently said that it would be a great disservice to the country if relief should be dragged to the level of politics. And in so speaking he gave utterance to a truth that has, in this year, of the struggle of the New Deal for existence, a most painful accuracy. Relief dragged to the level of politics. Let us see.

To consider this matter aright it appears to be necessary to review some high points of fairly recent relief and political activities. And the State of Kentucky, with its campaign for Governor in the year 1935, furnishes probably the best field for inquiry. In that year the race for Governor in Kentucky furnished the only political contest that promised to throw any light or have any bearing on the state of public sentiment toward the New Deal.

It happened that early in October of that year the President, in company with Mr. Ickes, head of the PWA, and Mr. Hopkins, head of the WPA, these two agencies constituting the main avenues through which public moneys were siphoned to those either on relief or on public works, made a trip from Washington by way of Southern California and thence through the Panama Canal, with the ultimate object of reaching the President's home at Hyde Park before the election. It will be remembered that there had been, and in fact still appears to be, lack of harmony between the heads of these two important spending agencies, and it was thought that an ocean voyage and long association on such trip with the President would have the effect of working out some community of harmony between officials antagonists, though recent happenings indicate that permanent harmony was not achieved.

It will also be recalled that the Eastern seaboard was reached just a week before the important election in Kentucky, but that instead of continuing to Hyde Park and sojourning there until election, the President gave orders to land at a port on the Southeastern seaboard and a train brought the party direct to Washington, reaching here just one week before the Kentucky election. And as reported by the Washington press at the time, one of the first official acts of the Administration was to dispatch a fund of $27,000,000 to Kentucky as relief or project money, it being later admitted by Mr. Hopkins that $25,000,000 of this sum was expended on projects and $2,000,000 as direct relief.

It is a matter of common knowledge, as the New Deal platform says, a self-evident truth, that in Kentucky the period of the greatest abundance and plenty, the harvest time, and the time of the best weather in the year, is that period from October 1 to December 1. It would seem that if ever a people could be for a time, even a short time, self-supporting it would have been the people of Kentucky at that time. But not so, as viewed by the dispensers of Federal relief.

And it is common knowledge that the amount of the relief checks during the last few days before the election so increased that whereas there had been relief slips or checks ordinarily issued in sums of from $3.50 to $5 per person, the checks on the last two or three days before election were in sums ranging from $5 to $15.

So the question is, who is rendering the greatest disservice—the people who are actually dispensing relief on the basis of politics, or the people who complain about it?

A KENTUCKIAN.

Washington, Aug. 16.

New Deal Contentment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read Mrs. A. C. Booker's reply to my letter in your paper where I spoke favorably of the farmer and his getting paid a good price for his products. In her reply, she said: "Mr. Landon in speaking of the New Deal being a barrier to recovery could not have been referring to the lucky farmers such as Mr. William J. Grove and others who seem to be the favorite sons of Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal. I think he had in mind the thousands of poor laboring men making 20 or 30 cents per hour who, because of the New Deal and the great rises of food products, cannot obtain even a decent living. The situation of the laboring class is so critical that even happy farmers like Mr. Grove should pause to think it over."

If Mrs. Booker is aware of anyone getting 20 or 30 cents an hour they must not be very common and the New Deal scale is not being followed, as the lowest rate is 40 cents an hour, and many are getting 50 cents to $1 an hour. Instead of the laboring class being in a critical condition, they are now being paid better wages and are enjoying the better things of life. The laboring men are riding in automobiles and the women of the family are visiting the beauty parlors.

We employ some 200 to 300 men, and if one of them can say they are dissatisfied we would be glad to do all in our power to satisfy them, and make them happy like the farmers are today. Everyone should be thankful for what the New Deal has done and no one in Frederick County should complain about President Roosevelt. The New Deal has brought contentment here, except to the bankers.

I might remind Mrs. Booker that the happy farmers have their troubles. Besides the drought and other pests, he has to contend with flocks of starlings and blackbirds, who flock by the thousands in his corn field to feed. It does not take them long to devour it. Only last week on account of a raid of this character I went to a store and purchased 12 roasting ears of corn for which I paid 18 cents. I felt this price was not excessive after the middle man had gotten his profit.

WILLIAM J. GROVE.

Benefits Of Trade.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A refreshing incident occurred in Kansas just before the recent primary election. A candidate for congressional nomination was asked by a man in his audience: "What do you propose to do for the farmer?" To which the candidate replied: "Not a damn thing!" He explained that according to his idea, the farmer was no more entitled to subsidies at the expense of those in other industries than were other citizens of the United States.

Is it not about time to put a stop to the outrageous distribution of public money to "agriculture?" If the Government at Washington is sincerely desirous of conserving the soil of our farming lands, why should it maintain a tariff of 42 cents a bushel upon wheat imported from Canada and largely produced by young farmers who went there from the United States, being attracted by better conditions?

What the American farmer really needs and is entitled to is freedom from the taxes which are imposed upon everything which he buys and everything which he sells. Americans are justly entitled to buy without restriction in the markets of the world. When we buy of Canadians or Europeans or Asiatics, both parties profit by the trade. Otherwise, no trade would be made. It is stupid for the Government to step in to prevent such trade.

Selling abroad will make a corresponding demand for American exports. Many beneficent results will follow freedom of trade with other nations, not the least of which will be the promotion of international peace and good will, so important at this time. It is certainly time for a reform in our system of taxation.

The Post Impressionist

"Reason With a Mule."

Post Office, Tuesday.

"HE'S a mule," said Jarvis—referring, of course, to somebody who wasn't there; "Stubborn and stupid."

Your columnist was about to quote Josh Billings: "The mule is haf hoss and haf jackass, and then kums to a full stop, natur discovering her mistake." However, we detected a restraining glint in Ivan's eye.

"Mules," remarked Ivan Doroshenko, "are stubborn—but intelligently stubborn. The mule, far from being stupid, is an extremely intelligent animal."

"Oh, yeh?" Jarvis mocked.

"Oh, yeh," replied Ivan. "Intelligence is relative. Tobacco chewing isn't a sign of extraordinary intelligence in a man, but a mule who likes to chew tobacco and can make a man who is a stranger to him give him 'a chew' is an intelligent brute. Suicide is stupid and criminal, in a man; but the mule who can plan and execute felo-de-se is at least not stupid. I was once acquainted with such a mule.

"I was born in the Pennsylvania coal regions," Ivan continued, "in a mining town of Lackawanna County called Old Forge. My father was a miner. I wanted to be a miner, too, and I was still a pretty small boy when I went to work for the Jermyn Coal Co.

"That's where I met the mule in question. We called him Onegin, after the Eugene Onegin of Pushkin. Most of the men and boys there were either Russian born or the sons of Russians and, in those days, anybody who spoke Russian read the poems of Pushkin.

"Do you know how the cars are handled in a mine? They run on tracks and are pulled along the level by a mule harnessed to them and driven by a man walking alongside. Onegin had been driven by the same man—we'll call him Melikov—ever since he was driven by anybody, and Onegin and Melikov had a deep affection for each other, which was founded on mutual understanding and consideration.

"Well, one day, for the first time in years, Melikov was taken ill and couldn't come to work, and the boss put a new man in his place. The new man was a Pole with a name something like Solski. The other miners didn't like him because he was a Pole, and Onegin didn't like him because he was new. From their first step together he failed to treat Onegin with the consideration that Melikov had always used.

"So they didn't take much more than that first step before Onegin began to make trouble. He just stood still. Solski swore at him, beat him, pleaded with him. No good.

"The Russian miners didn't help until they'd had their laugh out. Then they told Solski: 'You've got to give him a chew of tobacco before he'll begin his day's work—that's what Melikov always gives him.'

"For a while, Solski wouldn't believe them, but he had to try their prescription at last. He wasn't a chewer himself, so he had to send out for the tobacco, and they warned him it would have to be Melikov's favorite brand. Still, Solski got it and gave it, and then Onegin started off—wasn't very gracious about it, but he did work.

"You see, he loved Melikov, and he loved his tobacco. He'd be darned if he'd work for anybody except Melikov unless he at least got a chew out of it.

"In a little while, though, a worse thing happened. Melikov came back for a few weeks, then was taken suddenly and violently ill, right there in the mine. He fell dead at Onegin's feet . . .

"You never saw anybody more grieved than Onegin. He didn't whinny or bray; he howled. They could hardly drag him away. And he kept on howling the whole night in the stables. The next morning, when they brought him back, he was trembling as if he had the ague.

"Now, you know, the mules drag those heavy cars along the level of the tracks to the point where the descent begins. There the driver detaches the harness from the car; the mule is trained to step aside and march back, to get another car, while the first car plunges down the incline by force of gravity.

"Well, Solski was there in Melikov's place, but Onegin didn't so much as look at him, except out of the corner of a dull eye. He even refused the tobacco Solski offered him. He just dragged one foot after the other, and the car after all four, till he got to the top of the incline.

"At the edge of the incline," Ivan concluded, "Onegin did something he'd never done in all his life before. The instant the harness was freed from the car, that mule, instead of turning to one side, dashed down the incline and stood there, bracing himself in the middle of the tracks—for the half second that intervened before the heavy car, which nobody could have stopped, hit him and killed him.

"It was a plain case of suicide," said Ivan. "But, in a beast, it was a work of intelligence."

Contrasts.

I have been wondering what will become of those waxen babies, apparently dead but only doped, which the old women carried in their shawls on the streets of Barcelona at night as they prowled among the cafe tables and through the crowds on the ramblas, peddling lottery tickets. They were rented babies, out on the streets among the chattering throngs until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. Begging was forbidden and the donor as well as the beggar could be arrested, so the professional moochers had turned to the lottery game as a substitute. This was better for all concerned. It promoted the lottery, thus raising revenue for the government, it discouraged mendicancy, which is bad for the mendicant, and a wasteful form of charity, and it removed the unconscious babies from a disreputable trade into a dignified status. But even so they seemed to be off to a rather bad start in life, keeping late hours so early in the game and taking dope.

There were other children in Barcelona whose future seemed no less cloudy, boys and girls from 3 to 8 or 9 years old, who played shrill games, laughing away childhood's happy hours on the dark stone steps of the brothels, all night long. Sailors, soldiers and civilians, the scum of the world washed into a foul and reeking seaport, picked their way among children born of the women upstairs. Innocent victims of industrial mishap in a trade notoriously hazardous. Sometimes they draw back against the dirty walls to let the staggering customers pass up or down, but mostly they were too intent on innocent play and the patrons stepped around or over them.

* * * *

True, they appeared to be at home in their surroundings and to have no inkling of another world in which children are washed and put to bed at night and doctored for the sniffles and made to eat their spinach. But, the moral environment seemed questionable and one wished they might have a better chance. In a fairer and more civilized land, instead of obscene doggerel, they might have learned to sing "My Old Kentucky Home," and their mothers, for the good of their character, might have turned them out at dawn to watch the hanging of a Negro and the inspiring scuffle of their elders for souvenir fragments of the hangman's cap and rope.

I have been wondering about the young hotel keeper, a capitalist of Fascist tendency, who carried a little automatic pistol and ruled his help by bluff and force. The kitchen hands would burn the food of the patrons and ball up the orders, and they even threatened to put ground glass in the local stew, which was bad enough at a best, containing the rakings and scrapings of the kitchen and, as the old Catalonian saying goes, everything but the cook's foot. They stole his provisions, and when he fired a thief the union threatened to bomb the house. Once he caught them in the act of removing a bolt from the elevator so it would fall, and, God willing, kill the passengers and give the house a bad name. And once, during a strike which developed into a revolution, the guests remained indoors five days, doing their own work and keeping clear of the windows, where stray bullets were coming through. Two dead men lay in the street in front of the hotel three days that time.

"They are lousy marksmen," he said, "but anyone can be hit by a stray."

"You learned your English in America?"

"No," he said, "but my fiancee is an American. She helped with the cooking during the five days."

* * * *

I saw a news picture of the park before the Ritz and Colon hotels in Barcelona where the old man sat feeding grains of cracked corn to the pigeons and sparrows which would sometimes take them from between his lips, and selling little envelopes of grain to the children of the well-to-do out with their nurses. There was a beautiful marble figure of a kneeling girl in a bed of white chrysanthemums in the park, but the recent news picture showed only dead men, dead horses and the pigeons. The pigeons were still there but the old man with the cracked corn was not in his usual place.

I wonder if in the fighting and looting anyone finally got away with the big, fat geese in the fountain pool in the cathedral courtyard, geese which descended many generations from an original herd presented to the church by some rich nobleman in gratitude for divine deliverance from some pressing inconvenience. A great temptation, those geese in a neighborhood where poverty, ignorance and filth have made animals of people by contrast with the nobility of soul wrought by comfort, education and hygiene in Owensboro, Ky.

Seattle Paper Puts Case In Strike 'Up to People'

Seattle, Aug. 17 (AP).—The Seattle Post-Intelligencer, closed on the fifth day of an American Newspaper Guild strike, said in a formal statement today that whether it ever resumes publication is "up to this community."

"The Post-Intelligencer has ceased to regard this as a personal fight," the paper said. "Whether this newspaper ever resumes publication or not is up to this community. The call to arms has been sounded."

Airplane Record Claimed.

Villacoublay, France, Aug. 17 (AP).—The French army Lieut. Georges Detre claimed a world altitude record for airplanes today after an official reading showed he had reached a height of 14,488 meters (approximately 55,092 feet) on a flight August 14.

Visible Grain Supply.

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat increased 3,093,000; corn increased 514,000; oats increased 3,884; rye increased 291,000; barley increased 1,193,000.

Texas Centennial

Lone Star State Exposition, With Fan Dances And Broadway Chorines, Prompts Visitor To Wonder Of Frontiersmen's Reactions.

By Jeffrey Paul.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Dallas.

FOUR HUNDRED years ago, a ragged, bearded figure appeared in northern Mexico, in the neighborhood of Culiacan, and announced that he was the Spanish nobleman, Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca, lost off the coast of Texas in 1528. The celebrated pedestrian later wrote of his adventures in the wild lands between the Rio Grande and the Red rivers and thus do we have our first mention of Texan history.

Three hundred years later, a small force of Anglo-Saxon immigrants won a battle on the San Jacinto River and the Republic of Texas was born. It sprang, full-grown, from the northern loins of Old Mother Mexico, now a republic in her own right, but lacking the stamina, endurance and abilities that had characterized government under men such as Cabeza de Vaca.

All this dim and hazy history is being re-created at the Dallas Centennial Exposition. A great spectacle, the "Cavalcade of Texas," unrolls the panorama of the State's illustrious story, making a visitor gasp at the tremendous transformation that has come over this American empire in the short space of 100 years.

Sophistication Mixed With Naivete Reported.

THE TEXAS EXPOSITION is different from most, however, in that it possesses a peculiar admixture of sophistication and naivete such as one often discovers at a country fair. For instance, the guides point out two pairs of swans, one white, one black, "imported from England at the cost of $1,000." The important thing, it seems, is not the grace and beauty of the swans, floating on their little lagoon, but the fact that they cost $1,000.

Again, the fact that many features have been imported from the Chicago Fair gives the Texans new opportunities for thrills that might make an Eastern visitor smile. At the Black Forest, where hundreds of home folks gather to watch the ice skating, more than one has gone down to the rink at the invitation of the management to touch the ice and see if it was real! (It is just possible that the hot Texan sun has made them more skeptical than naive!)

The buildings are about what Americans have come to expect from expositions of this kind, dating from the Philadelphia flop of 10 years ago. An aquarium, an art gallery and a horticultural building are among the six which are to be permanent. The State of Texas building, originally planned as the center of the exposition, was slow in getting finished and up till now this negligence has rather spoiled the effectiveness of the show when viewed in its entirety.

Large Corporations Have Vast Exhibitions.

MOST OF the big industrial corporations have exhibits here, the Ford Company being as outstanding as it was in Chicago. The National Cash Register Co. devised a unique contribution to the fair's attractiveness by erecting a huge cash register in the center of the grounds. Every half hour the exact number of people on the grounds is recorded on the gigantic affair, which is visible to visitors for miles around. It is one of the most interesting novelties ever presented at any fair.

As has been mentioned, echoes of the Chicago extravaganza linger in the Texan atmosphere and the natives are being attracted to Ripley's Odditorium, the Streets of Paris, the Globe Theater, the Midway, etc. Dallas people, however, have coined the slogan: "Dallas for education; Fort Worth for entertainment." And when one remembers that Broadway Billy Rose has moved his "Jumbo" down for the Frontier Centennial in the latter town and that the famous Sally Rand is pursuing bubbles or fans (as the occasion requires) among the throngs in Fort Worth, one understands better the coining of the slogan!

The night lighting effects leave something to be desired, white and amber giving not quite enough color, to this reviewer's eye. Perhaps the lack is supposed to be supplied by the uniforms of the various police bodies which patrol the exposition. One outfit sports huge Western sombreros, plum colored pants, light purple shirts and tan boots. The regular local police force also does its bit, although as one observer said to me, "They look older and fatter than the poor cops down San Antonio way."

History Of Texas Recalled By 'Cavalcade.'

TEXAS HISTORY is recalled by the already mentioned "Cavalcade," wherein the man who plays Sam Houston is said to be a great-grandson of the first Lone Star President. A replica of the Alamo found a place on the grounds and the immortal battle is reported in a somewhat "tear-jerker" style for the benefit of those who still think one Texan can lick five Mexicans. The State Civilian Conservation Corps built a log cabin exhibit that attracts much attention and gives the guides a chance to boost the Federal Administration by saying that "crime in boys between 17 and 29 years of age has been cut 50 per cent since the CCC started."

Southern hospitality and "neighborliness" is particularly outstanding among bus conductors who think nothing of stopping the buses while they exchange impressions with each other. Rolling chairs get a bigger play than they did at Chicago and it is noticeable that Texans constitute a fair majority of the crowd, a contrast to the Lake Michigan festival, where the local folk stayed away in regiments. According to the best available reports, attendance has been satisfactory and very steady, despite some high temperature readings and a couple of bad rain and wind storms.

Yes, Texas is doing herself proud. Houston, Bowie, Travis, Crockett, Fannin and all the others would be happy to see how their descendants have remembered them, could they come back for a visit. Even the long-dead Indians, the courageous Spanish padres of the mission era, and the hawk-eyed conquerors of the Cabeza de Vaca type would find something to smile about in the Dallas exhibit.

But what would be the reaction of the Alamo heroes, the humble priests, the fierce Indians and the fighting conquistadores should they step over to Fort Worth? Bubble-chasing nudists, imported gold diggers and champagne wastrels are hardly the best form of tribute to men who could march and fight and starve and die for an ideal—be that the drive of conquest, love of the Cross, or a burning desire for Liberty. One wonders if Fort Worth and the modernity it personifies even remotely understands the spirit which is so aptly expressed in the "Calvalcade of Texas."

Liberals in Quebec Swept From Power

Quebec, Aug. 17 (AP).—The Canadian Press tonight reported the liberal government of Quebec Province was swept from power in today's provincial elections by the Union Nationale Party and that Premier Abelard Godbout lost his own seat.

The Union Nationale, an alliance of former conservatives and an insurgent liberal group, had won 40 of the 90 seats in the Legislature at 7 p. m., (E. S. T.), while the liberals had taken only five, the Canadian Press said. Forty-five were doubtful.

Maurice Duplessis, leader of the Union Nationale, was conceded election by his liberal opponent, Phillippe Bigue, only half an hour after the ballot counting started at 5 p. m.

Duplessis was expected to be Quebec's next premier.

Sheean, U. S. Author, Flown to Dijon, France

Dijon, France, Aug. 17 (AP).—An airplane carrying Vincent Sheean, American author, suffering from a nervous breakdown, landed at Dijon tonight. The patient was taken to a hotel. His wife wainted at a sanitarium some miles outside Geneva. Physicians said Sheean needed a complete rest from a nervous condition which followed upon pneumonia, kidney and throat trouble.

Vincent Sheean, former newspaper correspondent, is the author of "Persona History," a best seller and a new novel "San Felice," which this week ranked fourth in fiction sales in the United States. He was born in Christian County, Ill., December 5, 1899.

Teeth Needs Stressed.

Chicago, Aug. 17 (AP).—Between 87 and 99 per cent of all elementary school children in the United States have decayed teeth and are in need of treatment, the American Dental Association announced today after a survey of 1,520,201 children in 26 States.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

More Events For A Golfers' Field Day.

Club throwing contests having been put on by a number of golf clubs this summer, the following added events are suggested for any program:

1—Turf Scuffing. Open to all golfers whose records for emotional outbursts after missing an easy putt or topping an easy brassie shot are sufficiently attractive. Scuffers to wear spiked shoes. All scuffing to be done with one foot. Failure to scuff up more than 18 inches of grass on one scuff will disqualify.

2—Muttering (Amateur). Open to amateur mutterers only. An amateur to be regarded as a golfer who has been muttering less than 3 years. Golfers to take one swing, miss ball and begin muttering at once for expression and distance.

3—Muttering (Pro.). Open to advanced mutterers; men and women golfers whose mutterings have become a matter of habit, and who have had widespread experience muttering in all parts of the country.

4—Hurling the Invective (Open). All golfers with good vocabularies eligible. Invectives must be hurled from a standing start without preliminary wind-up or practice on putting green. No invectives barred.

5—Jumping-the-Caddy (Free-for-all). Open to golfers whose reputation for jumping on caddies is established. Hobnailed boots optional. Jumping to be done with or without profanity.

* * * *

6—Club Busting (Amateur). Open to golfers under 23 who have not been able to afford the privilege of club busting to any extent. All clubs to be broken over knee, fence, rock, or tree limb. Breaking club over partner's head forbidden; breaking club over caddie's head optional.

7—Club Busting (Pro.). Open to golfers from 23 to 100 who have broken one or more bagsful of clubs in good company and without the use of hatchets. Breaking to be done with one hand tied. Fifty points for cleanness of break, 20 points for noise volume, 20 points for form while breaking, and 10 points for colorful language.

8—Cigar Swallowing (Open). For male golfers who have demonstrated ability at swallowing cigars directly after missing a chip shot, pushing ball into water or losing deciding putt on last green of a money match. Cigar must be swallowed intact and with hot ashes.

9—Pipe Swallowing. Open to golfers who don't smoke cigars anyhow.

10—What-Am-I-Doing Graded Handicap. For golfers who ask "What am I doing?" with expression of complete bewilderment after every shot. Eighty points for facial expression, ten points for vocal tone, eight points for enunciation, two points for headshaking. Weeping optional.

11—Stomping (Amateur). Restricted to youthful stompers not weighing more than 148 pounds and with not more than 2 years' experience.

12—Stomping (Pro.). Open to adult stompers who know what real stomping is. One or two feet optional. Stomping not to be confused with jumping or slamming turf with club.

13—The $500 Alibi Open. Takes place in locker room after other events. All alibis to be limited to 50 pounds. Use of loudspeakers prohibited.

The Limit.

"Corn Crop Worst Since 1881."—headline. And with all those Take-a-Walkers, too!

Tuna fish, house dust, chicken feathers, cat hair, eggs, ragweed, spinach, sunflowers and orris root are causes of hay fever and hives, it is reported. Waiter, cancel that order to tuna fish a la cat hair and bring us a small steak without sunflowers.

301 West Point Cadets Reach Fort Monroe

Newport News, Va., Aug. 17 (AP).—Three hundred and one first class cadets of the United States Military Academy, West Point, arrived at Fort Monroe this morning, Fort Benning, Ga., commanded by Lieut. Col. Dennis McCunniffe, commandant of cadets at West Point.

Camp No. 2, used by ROTC units and Reserves earlier this summer, will be used by the cadets. The afternoon was devoted to recreation, while tonight a reception and dance was held at the Officers' Beach Club.

During their four-day stay here, an intensive program of training has been planned.

Election Fund 4-Way Check Is Inaugurated

Special Senate Group Begins Perusing Expenses of Candidates.

By the Associated Press.

A four-way check system to ascertain personal campaign expenditures by candidates for President, Vice President and Senate has been developed by the special Senate committee investigating campaign funds.

The committee—similar to those set up by the Senate in all recent election years—is headed by Senator Lonergan (Democrat), Connecticut.

Assistants to Lonergan said today that for the first time candidates for President have been required to file with the committee their personal expenses.

After receipt of a statement from the candidates, officials said, the committee writes letters of inquiry to each person listed as a contributor of $50 or more. The four-way system also involves checking of the expense accounts through party treasurers and statements filed under the corrupt practices act. The candidates have been instructed to file an account every 15 days until October 1 and each ten days thereafter.

An accounting already has been received from Col. Frank Knox, Republican nominee for Vice President, officials said, but other major candidates have been granted additional time for their first reports. The report filed by Knox wasn't made public.

Expenditures in State primary elections will not be investigated, officials said, but the expenditures have been reported and further spending by candidates in several States will be watched closely.

Few protests have been received committee attaches said, but one complaint about expenditures was reported filed from a county in Texas.

Officials said the committee organization has been perfected and that men are available at a moment's notice to go to points where complaints are made for investigation. Work of the committee to date has consisted largely of the receipt and tabulation of statements by candidates. A meeting of the full committee is expected to be called later this month.

Comet Prophet

By William Lyon Phelps.

Edmund Halley.

The comet now visible in our northeastern sky was discovered by an amateur astronomer in Ohio, named Peltier, and will be known as Peltier's comet.

The first man to predict the return of a comet at an appointed time, was, as was stated in the article yesterday, Edmund Halley. Who was Halley? Well, there is one thing about him more remarkable perhaps than his astronomical discoveries; although there are millions who have heard of Halley's comet to one person who knows this fact that I have in mind.

* * * *

Edmund Halley was born in London, October 29, 1656. He received his education at St. Paul's School in the metropolis, and at Queen's College, Oxford. In his days at prep school he was busily studying astronomy by himself, and published his first learned paper on astronomy at the age of 19.

Just after his twentieth birthday, he sailed for St. Helena, in order to observe the stars in the Southern Hemisphere. There he catalogued over 350 stars and observed a transit of Mercury. I myself observed a transit of Mercury at New Haven in the year 1909, without any resulting benefit to science.

It was in 1682, that seeing the comet which now bears his name, he predicted its return, and got it nearly right.

In 1703 he was appointed professor of geometry at Oxford, and in 1720 he became astronomer-royal.

He made a number of important discoveries, and added to human knowledge; but here is the thing that I record with admiration and pleasure. When he became professor in 1720, he was 63 years old. Nevertheless, with dauntless courage, he agreed to undertake observations of the moon through a complete revolution of her nodes. This would take exactly 18 years!

* * * *

Now when a man at the age of 63 voluntarily tackles a job that will mean a vast amount of hard labor, and yet cannot be finished until 18 years have passed, I reverently salute him. And isn't it splendid? He lived to do it. Eighteen years later, when he finished this job he had assigned himself, he was 81 years old. He died at the age of 85, on January 14, 1742.

Gold Mine Offer By Hoover Denied

San Francisco, Aug. 17 (AP).—A Jungo (Nev.) mine, from which the storekeeper-owner is reported to have taken $500 daily the last year, has attracted the attention of Herbert Hoover, but the former President made no offer to buy it.

"Mr. Hoover visited the mine as a matter of personal interest while on a fishing trip," a secretary, Paul Sexson, said, at Palo Alto today, "but he made no offer to buy it."

The San Francisco Chronicle, in a copyright story, said Hoover was among those who had made offers aggregating $10,000,000 for the property. The paper said George Austin, Jungo storekeeper, purchased the mine for $10,000 from J. C. Stagg, Fallon, Nev., prospector, after borrowing the down payment of $500.

The newspaper quoted John M. Fulton, head of the Mackay School of Mines at the University of Nevada, as describing the mine as "truly remarkable."

Trans-Oceanic Air Services To Startle World Predicted

Diplomatic Preliminaries to Atlantic Travel Virtually Completed, With Next Two Years Expected to See Aviation's Greatest Advances.

Harry W. Frantz, of the United Press staff here, who recently completed a 16,000-mile air trip around South America, has since consulted aeronautical authorities of many countries concerning the outlook for world air transport. Following is first of a series of three dispatches giving a composite picture of international commercial aviation.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

The world is about to witness a development of trans-oceanic air services which will amaze all mankind by the novelty of the routes and the startling economies in time and distance. Two years hence, any point of the globe may be accessible from any other within one week for the ordinary traveler.

Commencement of American and British air service across the North Atlantic next year will be the "Open Sesame" to an Arabian nights story of international travel which has no precedent in history, authorities here forecast.

The diplomatic preliminaries to the transatlantic service have been virtually completed, British and American landing privileges will be mutually available as needed, and both Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways are rushing equipment and technical preparations for experimental flights which may start during the present year, testing various alternative routes, high authorities here understood yesterday.

Other Nations Active.

While American aviation interest has focussed upon the services of Pan-American Airways across the Pacific and to South America, German and French lines are carrying the mails across the South Atlantic by airplane, and the German Zeppelin routes in both North and South Atlantic have given her a present supremacy in lighter-than-air ocean flight.

British communities in South American capitals are eagerly awaiting word that British airlines will enter the South American field where American, French and German interests already have developed a swift rivalry. Expectation is that Great Britain eventually will establish a long route down the west coast of Africa to Capetown, with one branch extending from West Africa to Rio and Buenos Aires.

Italy during her East African war has concentrated attention upon military aviation, but there already is widespread speculation that with returning peace she will look to the development of international commercial aviation services. Diplomats say Italy has skilled air observers at her principal embassies and legations, and it would surprise no one if before many years she would supplement her steamer and cable communications to the Southern hemisphere by an airline.

Travel to Manila.

In the Pacific, the outstanding developments in air transport now imminent are the inauguration of passenger travel from San Francisco to Manila by Pan-American, and the extension from Manila to the Asiatic continent, expected either at Macao or Hongkong in the present year. The latter connection will enable travelers to connect with routes to Europe and northern Asia, and facilitate around-the-Globe travel.

American service via Honolulu to New Zealand and the South Seas is within the scope of the developing air transport picture, technical surveys now being in progress.

Among British aviation authorities one already hears agitation for an "all-Imperial" route around the world via Canada, Australia and India, which would bring competition into the South Pacific Field Honolulu then would be a "key" point.

On the world air map, France has service to South America, Indo-China, a large part of Africa, and has a definite intention to enter the North Atlantic field. Germany has an important air position astride central European and trans-Eurasian routes, and with transatlantic Zeppelin and future aviation connection will rival the United States and Great Britain for position among the "Big Three" of world air transport. In event of relaxation of military and political tension in Europe, authorities here believe that Germany and France, as well as Italy, would throw their vast technical resources and diplomatic efforts to the rapid expansion of commercial aviation and international airlines.

Various Agreements.

International air rivalry is temporarily "soft-pedalled" in most capitals, because the leading powers must make various "trades" and agreements regarding landing privileges and other international operating concessions.

This has caused a certain inclination of interest between British and American companies.

Eventually competition for air mails, express and passengers will accentuate the rivalry among many countries, akin to that in maritime shipping, and then flag, equipment, speed, route and comfort all will weigh in the evolution. "Master minds" in the air transport game now believe that political understanding has lagged far behind the technical progress in aviation, and see a need for wholesale efforts to popularize air travel among the masses of business and pleasure travelers.

At the outset of the world air rivalry, the United States has a pre-eminent position in commercial aviation from the standpoint of actual mileage flown; but thus far only a small fraction of the American total mileage is on foreign routes.

In 1935, Americans had a flown mileage on scheduled air line services estimated at 63,540,000, of which about 8,000,000 was on international routes, mostly Pan-American system. The American mileage compared with a total for the world of 122,735,000.

The mileage flown on scheduled airline services of European countries in 1935 was 37,300,000 of which Germany accounted for 7,000,000; Soviet Russia for 7,000,000; France, 6,500,000; Britain, 5,000,000; Netherlands (which has line to the Dutch East Indies) 3,400,000; Italy, 3,000,000, and Belgium, 1,016,000.

Mileage flown on scheduled airlines outside Europe and the United States in 1935 was 21,894,871, including 5,800,000 in Canada, Mexico 2,000,000; Columbia 1,200,000; Brazil 1,600,000; China 1,700,000; Japan 1,400,000.

Potential number of travelers available, expedience of equipment production on large-scale, and extensive technical experience will support the United States in world air rivalry, experts generally believe.

Social Security—and You!

Aged, Needy, Blind Included in Program

By Felix Bruner.

an institution. The Government, however, will not contribute more than $15 per individual, although a State may pay as much as it wishes. In addition, however, the Government adds 5 per cent of the total grant for administration purposes.

The provisions for aid to the blind are similar to those for aid to the needy aged. The plan for assisting children, however, is somewhat different.

After a State plan for aid to dependent children is approved, the Federal Government will contribute one-third of the State's allowance up to $18 a month for the first child in a family and $12 a month for each additional child in a family. If, however, the State grant is more than $18 in one month for the first child in a family, the Federal contribution does not exceed $6, and if the allowance is more than $12 in one month for any additional child in the family, the Federal Government's share is limited to $4. The Federal Government also will contribute to the State an amount equal to one-third of the State's expenses for administering aid to dependent children.

Health Service Expansion.

Still another provision is contained in the social security act. This provides for the extension of public health services. A sum of $3,300,000 was appropriated for aid to State and local health services for the five months ended June 30, 1936, and $8,000,000 was authorized for each year thereafter. The money is being turned over to States by the Surgeon General on the basis of population and pubic health problems and the financial needs of the respective States.

Vocational rehabilitation also comes within the scope of the act. An appropriation of $841,000 has been made for this purpose for the fiscal year 1937 and $1,938,000 has been authorized annually thereafter. This money is to be used to train the physically disabled and the work will be administered by the Office of Education of the Interior Department. It will be distributed as grants-in-aid to States.

Thus far these articles have undertaken to do nothing more than outline the complicated social security program as it is supposed to operate. It undoubtedly is the most ambitious and far-reaching scheme ever undertaken by the American Government. European governments have been operating similar plans, but none of them ever have affected so many people or entailed so many problems of administration.

There are numerous weaknesses in the social security law. The problem of administering it—because it means keeping track of many millions of individuals—is appalling. The act was signed by President Roosevelt on August 14, 1935, but it was held in abeyance because of lack of funds. An appropriation for starting the work was talked to death by the late Senator Huey P. Long in the closing days of the first session of the Seventy-fourth Congress and it was not until last spring that money became available.

Meanwhile, a board had been appointed and preliminary studies were being made. Now the job is actively getting under way. The major task, that of administering the old-age compensation feature of the act, must be in actual operation by next January 1. A total of 28,000,000 workers must be catalogued and records kept of the earnings of each for the remainder of his active life. Some means must be found to make positive the identification of each of these persons. Some way must be found to keep a record of persons as they move from community to community, from State to State, from employer to employer.

The Social Security Board has set up headquarters in the old Labor Department Building. It still has a comparatively small staff—some 750 persons. In the very near future it is likely to spread all over Washington. Many believe it will be by far the largest organization in the Government.

There are many who believe the act will not work, that it will break down of its own weight and size. There are some convincing arguments in that direction. Officials charged with administering the act admit changes will be necessary, but they emphatically insist weaknesses can be eliminated.

Additional articles in this series will discuss administrative problems and some of the arguments for and against the act.

Associated Power Output.

New York, Aug. 17.—Net electric output of Associated Gas & Electric System for the week ended August 8, 1936, amounted to 81,306,607 units, which was an increase of 9,019,962 units, or 12.5 per tent over the comparable week of 1935.

U. S. Can Whip Plains Drought, Tugwell Is Told

Soil Experts, in Amarillo, Hear Area Will Support Agriculture Plan.

By the Associated Press.

Amarillo, Tex., Aug. 17.—Crop and soil conservation experts of the Southwest today told the President's drought commission that dry weather on the great plains "can be whipped."

The drought commisison received the views of research groups after a breakfast round-table conference at which Dr. Rexford G Tugwell asserted "all this talk about depopulation of the great plains is foolish. We don't want to depopulate the country; we want to forify it to withstand drought."

The experts were composed of two groups, one representing five Western States and the other from Federal agencies of the Amarillo soil conservation division.

"Based upon ample scientific and practical observations it is recognized that fundamentally the natural conditions in the area are capable of supporting a permanetly prosperous agricultural industry," said the report by the regional conservation service.

"The productive potentialities are capable of retiring the existing indebtedness,' 'it said.

Ask U. S. Aid.

The committee representing Kansas, Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico recommended that Federal and regional agencies handle both long term and emergency programs. Feed, seed and water conservation and work relief projects were proposed.

Temperatures were near the 100-mark as Tugwell, Morris L. Cooke, rural electrification administrator and chairman of the commission started a 3,000-mile tour.

John E. Hill, of Amarillo, was chairman of the meeting.

Representative Sam Massengale, of Cordell, Okla., who attended the conference, said people in his district were "having too much trouble" obtaining emergency aid.

Need Aid Quickly.

"When they want emergency aid they can't get it quickly," he said.

Tugwell said that 1,000 persons a day in the Oklahoma drought area were being added to the rolls of Federal aid organizations.

Representative Phil Ferguson, of Woodward, Okla., said some farmers have difficulty getting from Resettlement Administration rolls to WPA lists.

Members of the committee asked Judge Noel McDade, of Dumas, Tex., if there was "any question" concerning the constitutionality of a new Texas conservation law. This law makes it compulsory for farmers to use conservation practices to prevent soil from blowing.

Judge McDade said the law has not yet been tested in court.

Hotel Firm Attacks Women's Pay Law

By the Associated Press.

The question of a State's power to fix minimum wages for women was reopened in the Supreme Court yesterday by the West Coast Hotel Co., of Wenatchee, Wash., which challenged the validity of the Washington wage law.

The company appealed from a Washington Supreme Court decision upholding that statute, delivered April 2.

Two months later the United States Supreme Court by a five-to-four ruling invalidated a similar law enacted by New York State. A minimum wage law for the District of Columbia had been declared unconstitutional several years earlier.

Wanderlust of Veterans Proves Bonus Problem

The wanderlust of some World War veterans was described by veterans' administration officials yesterday as the greatest single difficulty encountered in paying the bonus.

After applying for their bonuses, many of the former soldiers moved to different addresses before payment could be made. Officials said that in some instances they had moved two or three times, failing each time to leave a forwarding address.

Steel Workers' Plea for Rise In Pay Studied

Carnegie-Illinois Employes Also Ask Formation of Grievance Committee.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 17.—Spokesmen for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation and its workmen said today an employe request for a flat increase of $1.12 a day in wages in the Pittsburgh-Youngstown district is under consideration.

They said the employes also asked formation of a central grievance committee to represent the 30,000 workmen in the district.

Observers coupled the requests with the steel-labor struggle in which the steel workers organizing committee seeks to enroll the industry's 450,000 employes in one big union.

Denies Definite Action.

A spokesman for Carnegie-Illinois said that at a meeting last Wednesday, when the requests were made: "There were many subjects taken up but there was no definite action.

"The question of making a central committee a permanent feature of the representative plan was discussed at length. The men appeared unanimous in saying they favored a $1.12 a day increase in pay for all. This would raise the minimum pay in the mills to $5 a day."

General Groups Opposed.

Most steel companies have "company representative" groups at individual plants, but proposals to create general committees to represent all plants have failed.

A representative of the employes said the company suggested the workmen discuss creation of a central committee with plant grievances committees, on which five men represent the workers and five the company.

This representative also said a 40-hour week, time and a half for overtime, Sunday and holiday work was asked by the employes.

Unwed Girl Calls Drowned Baby Hers

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, Aug. 17.—Inspector Andrew Crummy tonight said Minneapolis' missing baby mystery appeared near solution as the 15-year-old unmarried mother of an infant taken from a hospital nearly two weeks ago identified the body of a baby drowned in the Willow River as her child.

Crummy said the girl made the identification at an undertaking establishment at Finlayson, Minn.

The mother was placed in the county jail here tonight. Crummy said he would confer with E. J. Goff, county attorney, concerning the possibility of placing charges against the girl and the 17-year-old youth she named as the father.

Maine Hen Sets Record.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 17 (AP).—State and national egg-laying records were scratched off the books today by a Maine hen which laid 214 eggs in 214 consecutive days at the State Experimental Station in Monmouth.

Knock Knock!

'Who's There?' $15 or 15 Days, Answers Court.

"Knock knocks," the current crazy fad that is amusing thousands, invaded Police Court yesterday to the delight of court attaches, although it ended in a $15 fine or 15 days in jail for the unfortunate knock knocker.

Suzanna Hazel, 20, of 2223 Georgia avenue northwest, testified Clarence Whitby, 27, of 2004 Second street northwest, knocked at her door the other midnight. She said "who's there?"

The answer was "Mose."

"Mose who?"

"Mose from out in front, and I'm coming in," said the man according to testimony before Judge John P. McMahon. And the caller did come in by breaking down the door.

Judge McMahon sentenced Whitby to pay a $15 fine or spend 15 days in jail on a charge of destroying private property.

Tries Out His Retirement Gifts

Seated is Edward M. Graney, who yesterday was retired from the Interstate Commerce Commission after 44 years there. He is shaking hands with G. M. Crosland. Fellow workers presented Graney with the chair, table and humidor shown.

Graney Retires as I. C. C. Aid After Service of 46 Years

Three days before his seventieth birthday, Edward M. Graney yesterday retired as chief of mails and files in the section of tariffs, Bureau of Traffic, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, thus ending 46 years' service with the Government. Forty-four of those years were spent with the I. C. C. The first two were spent in the postoffice of the House of Representatives.

His retirement from the section of tariffs was observed by his coworkers with a surprise luncheon in the I. C. C. Cafeteria. Then, as a climax of the day, the guests at the luncheon presented Graney with a lounging chair, smoking table and humidor.

G. M. Crosland, chairman of the section, made the presentation after extolling Graney's industry and faithfulness. In his 44 years' service he has not taken a day's sick leave.

Others who spoke in tribute to the retiring chief of mails and files were Charles Bates, attorney; Lorin Nelson, shipping board; R. V. Pitt, assistant director of the section of tariffs; Thomas Jackson, who retired several years ago, and N. W. Guthrie and Paul Huttner. The master of ceremonies was E. J. Long.

H. B. Bates, who will probably succeed Graney, was chairman of the luncheon, attended by 120.

Graney said he had no definite plans but would "just take things easy" at his home, 2312 First street northwest. Mrs. Graney died about three months ago. A brother retired recently from the New York Central Railroad. Another brother and a sister are in the freight office at Auburn, N. Y.

Graney often laughingly remarked that it was highly appropriate for him to be working in the Interstate Commerce Commission's bureau of traffic since he comes from a railroad family. For 66 years his father was an employe of the New York Central. In fact, Graney is the only member of his immediate family not connected with the railroad.

Four Firemen Killed by Blast As Store Burns

By the Associated Press.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—A terrific explosion which hurled firemen into the flaming ruins of a drygoods store brought death tonight to four fire-fighters.

Three others received probably fatal injuries. Fifteen firemen and spectators were taken to hospitals.

Thousands of persons, attracted to the scene by the dense clouds of smoke, were in the vicinity when the blast blew out one wall, sending the roof and floors of the old building down with a thundering crash.

Firemen, some on ladders and others operating fire hoses, were tossed into the air with the flying debris. The four who were killed landed in the flaming wreckage.

Streets were showered with bricks and debris, and spectators ran screaming into neighboring side streets.

Many fire-fighters risked their lives to force their way through smoke and flame, seeking the dead and injured. Physicians at hospitals to which three of the hurt were taken said they had little chance of recovery.

Bond Is Set for 3 In White Slavery

Osburn W. Seay, 31, of Emporia, Va., was held for the grand jury yesterday under $10,000 bond when arraigned before Police Court Judge John P. McMahon on a charge of violating the white slave laws.

Two women, Gene McWilliams, 28, of Lansing, Mich., and Charlotte M. Sprouse, 20, of Charlottesville, Va., were held under $2,000 bond each to appear against Seay as Government witnesses.

Lineman Plunges Through Skylight

Alexander Stabler, 24, of Edgemoor, Md., was treated at Providence Hospital yesterday for a fracture of the hand and cuts suffered when he plunged through a skylight after falling from a telephone pole.

According to police, Stabler who is a lineman for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., was working on telephone lines on a pole at Thirteenth and E streets northwest when his shoe spikes pulled out. He fell into the District Stable. His condition was not serious.

Samuel Freeman, Hurt in Crash, Dies

Samuel B. Freeman, 49, an auditor for the Federal Communications Commission, who lived at the Keystone Apartments, 2150 Pennsylvania avenue, died yesterday in Mercy Hospital, Canton, Ohio, according to the Associated Press.

Freeman, his wife and two children had been injured seriously Saturday night when their car was struck by a train 14 miles south of Canton. The condition of his wife and children, Barbara, 5, and Richard, 2, was not reported.

Mrs. Freeman, who was employed as a stenographer for the special House Committee for the investigation of real estate bond-holders' reorganizations, was not notified of her husband's death.

Freeman had been in the Government service for many years. He was formerly chief clerk of the Panama Canal Commission. He and his family had left here Saturday for a vacation trip in Chicago, Freeman's former home.

Gaithersburg Woman Files Suit for Divorce

Mrs. Hazel Ryder Mangus, of Gaithersburg, Md., yesterday filed suit in Rockville Circuit Court for an absolute divorce from her husband, Joseph Mangus, whose last known address was said to be East Haven, Conn.

Through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, Mrs. Mangus set forth that the couple was married on October 11, 1926, and have two children, Charles F. Mangus, 6, and Mary L. Mangus, 4. She charges she was deserted in August, 1930, and asks custody of the children.

"Make Hair Grow while the sun shines"

"It is a well known phenomenon that in the summer the growth of hair is more rapid," says Dr. Arnold Lorand, Vienna Dermatologist.

THAT Hair grows faster in the summer than at any other season is an established scientific fact. You can take advantage of this seasonal peculiarity by starting Thomas' hair and scalp treatment at once.

Your hair will respond more quickly to this famous proved method of treatment now than at any other time. Within an unusually short time your dandruff will disappear, hairfall will stop, and new hair will actually be visible on the thin and bald spots. Call at the Thomas' office and talk your problem over with the specialist in charge. He will gladly examine your scalp without charge or obligation and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do for you.

Five Acquitted, Two Punished In License Case

Alexandrian Complained of Business Activities of Group.

Five of the seven men arrested Friday on the complaint of G. S. Whetbee, 123 South Henry street, were acquitted in police court yesterday, Judge Harry F. Kennedy presiding. One was fine $100 and a suspended fine of $25 given the other.

A. L. Keyser, of Philadelphia, was fined $100 for engaging in business without a city license, and Louis Kreisman, also of Philadelphia, was given the suspended fine of $25 on a similar charge.

Charges of engaging in business without a license, preferred against Jacob Saull, Daniel Malamed, Leon Weigrad, Mark Davis and Samuel Ross, were dismissed.

Whetbee said he had signed a contract with Keyser, who was in charge of obtaining contracts for dwelling repairs, and had made a cash payment, which had been returned and the contract canceled. Keyser said the five men, charges against whom were dismissed, were employed by him in soliciting business; that he was engaged in obtaining contracts for repairs to dwellings, the financing of such projects to be handled by a finance company and materials to be purchased through a Philadelphia firm. The men denied they had represented themselves as conected with any local firm. They were represented by Irving Diener, attorney, who told the court they would at once get a city license to engage in business.

The Alexandria municipal swimming pool will be closed for the season Labor Day, September 7, which will be designated as Red Cross Day, with an extensive program of life-saving exhibitions conducted by Thomas Ennis and Roy Jennier, lifeguards and Red Cross examiners.

A special meeting of the Alexandria Young Democrats Club will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Gaby's Tavern, for the purpose of discussing plans to establish headquarters here for the Presidential campaign. Delegates and alternates to the State convention of Young Democrat Clubs, which will be held in Roanoke September 11 and 12, will be elected.

The Alexandria Light Infantry, local National Guard unit, whose officers are Capt. W. Cameron Roberts, First Lieut. W. Milton Glasgow and Second Lieut. John S. Arnold, is participating in the war meneuvers at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

The Alexandria Guardsmen defeated Company K, of Norfolk, in a softball game by a score of 19 to 11. Sergt. Reuben R. Robinson has been appointed official umpire for softball contests.

Landon Race a Success, Women of 17 States Say

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—Optimistic reports were presented today by Republican women leaders of 17 States, who discussed campaign strategy with Miss Natalie Couch, Eastern women's campaign manager for the Republican national committee.

In her opening address to the women, Miss Couch said:

"Ample proof of what Gov. Landon thinks of women and the high value he places on women workers is to be found in the records of his own State." She added, "it is conservatively estimated that about 40 per cent of the State employes are women."

British Woman Plans Solo Atlantic Flight

London (Tuesday) Aug. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Beryl Markham, 33-year-old socially prominent Londoner, today announced she intended to attempt a solo flight from London to New York in a light airplane late in August. She said she wanted to be the first woman to make the East-West crossing alone.

Mrs. Markham is the sister-in-law of Sir Charles Markham, who has been in the British diplomatic service.

Collier Is Witness At Navajo Hearing

Gallup, N. M., Aug. 17 (AP).—John Collier, U. S. Indian Commissioner, told a special Senate committee here today the problems of administering 9,760 western New Mexico Navajos will not be solved until the land they occupy is included in the Navajo reservation.

He was the first witness as the committee opened hearings on merits of a bill to extend the reservation into this area of approximately 2,000,000 acres. Anyone can bring a carload of whisky and be perfectly within the law, Collier declared.

In response to a question by Senator Dennis Chavez (Democrat), New Mexico, Collier denied the herd-reduction program was responsible for hardship among tribesmen.

"That argument," he said, "is entirely fictitious. * * * Increased Government pay rolls have made up for whatever loss of revenue the Navajos sustained through stock reduction."

2 Doomed Floridians Get Last-Minute Stays

Raiford, Fla., Aug. 17 (U.P.).—L. D. Padgett, turpentine worker nervously awaiting execution for slaying his wife, today was granted a 30-day reprieve three minutes before he was to have walked from his cell to Florida's electric chair.

Prison officials had prepared Padgett and were taking him from the death cell when word arrived from Tallahassee that Gov. Dave Sholtz had granted the stay on petition of State Senator D. S. Gillis, Defuniak Springs.

Convicted Slayer To File Error Plea

Staunton, Va., Aug. 17 (AP).—A petition for a writ of error for Sylvia E. Huffman, condemned to die October 9 for killing an Augusta County storekeeper, will be presented to a justice of the Virginia Supreme Court "sometime this week," his attorneys said today.

Huffman, who is now in death row at the State Penitentiary in Richmond, was scheduled to die August 7, but Gov. Peery granted a reprieve to allow time for presentation of the matter to the high court.

Airport Proposal Sent to Washington

Baltimore, Aug. 17 (AP).—The application for WPA funds to improve the Hagerstown Airport has been approved in the State office here and forwarded to Washington.

Harry D. Williar, jr., deputy State administrator, said he sent application to Washington for final approval last week. No word has been received from the WPA headquarters since them. Williar said he notified J. V. Jamison, jr., chairman of the chamber of commerce, of the approval of the project here.

Under the plans submitted with the application, the runways would be increased in size, flood and signal lights would be installed, and a new hangar would be built.

Mrs. Klotz Rites Slated Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Amelia Klotz, of 920 Maryland avenue northeast, widow of Louis Klotz, who was for 60 years a Western Union telegraph operator, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m., at Chambers funeral home, 1517 Eleventh street southeast. Mrs. Klotz was 72 years old. Burial will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Born in Baltimore, Md., she had spent the greater part of her life in Washington. She died after an illness of two months at her home. She was a member of Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, 907 Maryland avenue northeast, and of Bethlehem Chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

Ickes, Hall Confer On Battlefield Park

Formal acceptance and designation of the Richmond (Va.) Battlefield Park as a National Park was urged upon Secretary Ickes yesterday by Wilbur C. Hall, chairman of the Virginia State commission on conservation and development, according to the Associated Press.

The Virginia Assembly in 1934 authorized transfer of the battlefield property to the Government for use as a Federal park. Hall said the Interior Department had announced it would be accepted.

Hall added he was desirus of obtaining early final action by the Government on the transfer. He said the Secretary advised him careful consideration would be given to the proposal and the action decided upon would be announced later.

Business Men Ask Traffic Aids In Silver Spring

Meet With Coughlan and McDonald to Discuss Rail Proposals.

Solution of traffic problems arising from the enlargement of the Silver Spring railroad station were discussed at a meeting yesterday of County Commissioner Paul M. Coughlan, County Engineer John G. McDonald and members of the traffic committee of the Silver Spring Business Men's Association.

The committee complained of a serious traffic hazard at the Georgia avenue underpass, where persons driving to the railroad station are required to make a sharp turn to reach the station or the adjacent parking lot and taxicab stand. Motorists find it virtually impossible to make the turn during rush hours, William F. Carlin, chairman of the committee, told the officials.

As a partial remedy the committee recommended installation of traffic control lights at the underpass and at the corner of Georgia and Sligo avenues. Commisioner Coughlan agreed to take the proposal under consideration.

As a further means of relieving congestion in the business area the committee also recommended that a traffic light be installed at Georgia avenue and Blair road, limited parking along the business streets and widening of Georgia avenue by taking off 10 feet of the sidewalk on the east side of the street between Sligo avenue and Bonifant street.

Subcommittees to carry on the associations' traffic campaign were appointed by Carlin as follows:

Parking regulations, A. M. Williamson, Robert S. Bains and Dr. B. J. Paxton; widening Georgia avenue, Shirley F. Workman, John Hunter and Charles S. Miner; traffic light at Georgia avenue and Blair road, Paxton, Bains and Hunter; traffic light at the underpass, Miner, Workman and Hunter, and reduced bus fares for school children, Hunter, Williamson and Miner.

Representative David J. Lewis will be the guest of honor at a smoker to be held tonight at 8:15 in the Silver Spring National Guard Armory by the Young Men's Democratic Club of Silver Spring.

The program will include an amateur boxing card and entertainment featuring Frank Portillo, clown; Paul Grove, monologueist, and Thomas Suiters, musician.

Two matters that have aroused more than passing interest in the county probably will be decided by the Board of County Commissioners when they meet today in Rockville.

One involves final disposition of the recommendation of the board of election supervisors for the purchase of 35 voting machines before the November election, and the other concerns the application of Stephen E. Cochran, manager of the National Theater in Washington, for permission to establish a summer theater and restaurant on a farm near Wheaton.

The board also plans to consider the proposal made recently for an independent audit of all county accounts for the past two fiscal years.

County police are searching for a burglar who broke into the Manor Club and rifled the cash-register of approximately $25. Club officials also report that 40 dozen golf balls were stolen. According to police the thief apparently entered the club through a window.

Hugh M. Smythe, president of the Little Theater of Takoma Park, yesterday announced the program for the ensuing year. Four three-act plays will be presented, two before the first of the year and the others in the latter part of the winter and late spring.

The plays selected are "Are You a Mason?" a comedy; "The Enemy," a drama; "Eight at Tillumcott," a drama, and "Private Secretary," a comedy.

Justice a Grim Reaper As Cornfield Lures Pair

Prince Frederick, Md., Aug. 17.—Two Washington men learned here yesterday that it is a crime to steal corn and sheer folly to steal it from a justice of the peace.

Justice of the Peace Arthur R. King, of Sunderland, and State Policeman Charles W. Magaha surprised two men stealing corn from King's field. King swore out a warrant and Magaha made the arrest.

The two gave their names as Harold Bullock, 20, and Arthur J. Parker, 23, both of Washington.

Stamp Stickum Tastes Like Candy

Harris & Ewing.

Mrs. Etta Johns, who works at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, tried the stickum used on stamps as dessert after her lunch yesterday. She described the substance, dextrine, imported from Java, as 'tasty.'

Democrats to Establish Chicago Headquarters

Chicago, Aug. 17 (AP).—The Democratic national committee established its Middle Western headquarters in Chicago today, with John G. Grimes, assistant treasurer of the committee, in charge.

Grimes said actual campaign work would not be started before the end of the week. Headquarters were set up in a Michigan avenue hotel, about four blocks from Republican national headquarters.

He said the branch office here would concern itself with the campaign in the Middle Western States between the Alleghanies and the Mississippi.

Acheson Has Landed At Field in Illinois

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 17 (AP).—Maj. John G. Williams, operations officer at Patterson Field, announced late today that Capt. George R. Acheson, unreported for a time while on a flight from Bolling Field, Washington, had landed at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill.

Williams said Acheson was on a routine flight and originally had intended to pause here, but "apparently finding he was making good time," decided to continue westward. Acheson, flying a bomber, was transporting enlisted men to an air school at Chanute Field, Williams said.

Rise Is Shown In Local Share Of ABC Funds

$1,223,877 for Counties, Cities in Profits on Liquor, Peery Says.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 17 (AP).—Gov. Peery announced today counties, cities and towns would receive $1,223,876.99 of net ABC profits totaling $3,510,815.49 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1936.

The State will receive $2,286,938.50, including the $1,675,000 which the act creating the State liquor system provided should go to the general fund of the treasury annually.

The distribution to the localities will be on the basis of approximately 50.5 cents per capita, an increase of approximately 11.5 cents over 1934-35 when the distribution to the localities totaled $948,196 and the State's portion amounted to $2,149,000.

$100,000 for Reserve.

From the board's total profits of $3,619,599.49 shown in figures submitted to the Governor today by State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs, $100,000 was deducted for the reserve fund to take care of depreciation, and $8,782 to cover charges for services rendered by the treasury, comptroller and attorney general.

The board's previous reserve fund of $500,000 was designated for relief during 1937-38 by the last General Assembly, making it necessary to determine the amount of the new reserve before the allocations to localities were figured.

The $100,000 increased the present reserve to $539,736.27, but depreciation charges for the current year were estimated at approximately the excess over the $500,000 which will be transferred to relief next July 1.

Increase for Localities.

The share of the localities, two thirds of the profits in excess of the $1,675,000 reserved by the State, represented an increase of approximately $375,680 this year over the previous fiscal period.

The State's share—the remaining third—was $137,840 larger than in 1934-35.

Budget Director J. H. Bradford said checks to the localities would go out as soon as the comptroller's office was able to figure out the individual totals to be distributed.

Miss Fries to Wear Veil Used by Mother and Sister

Marriage to Theodore Pierson Will Take Place Saturday Afternoon in Washington Cathedral.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

The wedding gown of her sister and the wedding veil used by both her mother and sister will be worn by Miss Barbara H. Fries, daughter of Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, and Mrs. Fries, on Saturday, when she becomes the bride of Mr. Theodore Pierson. The wedding will take place in the great choir of Washington Cathedral, with Dr. Charles Warner, of St. Albans, officiating.

Miss Fries' sister, the former Miss Elizabeth C. Fries, was married ten years ago to Capt. Frederic A. Henney, U. S. A., and they now are living in Honolulu so will not be here for the wedding. In addition to wearing the dress and veil which have associations, the bride will also carry a prayerbook given her by the late Mrs. Burton L. French, wife of the former Representative from Idaho, who was her godmother when she was christened.

Dr. Warner, rector of St. Alban's, has been chosen to read the wedding service as it was in St. Alban's when the bride was confirmed, as it is customary for the rector of the church in which Washington residents have confirmed to perform the ceremony when a wedding takes place in the Cathedral.

Miss Fries' attendants will be as matron of honor Mrs. Roy Sampson, wife of Lieut. Sampson, U. S. N., and daughter of Col. and Mrs. Selden Kennedy, of Quantico, with whom she is staying while her husband is on a midshipmen's cruise, and as maid of honor, her sister, Miss Carol Fries. Her bridesmaids will include Miss Jane Norford, of Alexandria; Miss Ella Cooper, Miss Jeannette Eldredge, of Warren, Pa., and Mrs. Harold Stepler, all her sorority sisters in the Phi Mu Sorority at George Washington University, of which she was president last year; also Miss Caroline McMillen and Miss Clementena Lawrie.

Mr. James Haley, of Front Royal, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom in the Acacia Fraterinty at George Washington, will act as his best man, and the ushers will be Lieut. Stuart Fries, of Fort Meade, a brother of the bride; Mr. Ross Pope, son of Senator and Mrs. Pope, of Idaho, and four fraternity brothers, Mr. Everett Strandell, Mr. Frederick Stevenson, Mr. William Helvestine and Mr. Harold Stepler.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Donald Pierson, of Ames, Iowa, will not be able to come to Washington for the wedding.

Among the guests from out of town who will be here will be Maj. and Mrs. George Unmacht, of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Sampson also will come from Quantico to be a guest at the Fries home for the week-end.

The bride-to-be was entertained yesterday afternoon at an informal tea given by the Misses Patricia and Anne Evans at their home, 2230 California street. The hostesses were assisted by Mrs. Fries and Miss Jane Traphagen, of Riverside, Calif., who is their guest for a few days. Tonight a small bridge party will be given for her by one of her attendants, Miss Lawrie, with the other bridal attendants and a few close friends as guests.

Admiral Byrd Gives Lecture

Speaks at Bar Harbor, Me., on His Experiences in Little America.

Wherever Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his attractive wife go, they are always enthusiastically entertained. Most of the entertainments of the last week at Bar Harbor, Me., have been given for them.

Although many of the members of the fashionable summer colony at Bar Harbor had heard Admiral Byrd lecture on Little America before and had seen the pictures of his adventures in Antartica, seats at the Criterion Theater, where the lecture took place, were at a premium. Many dinner parties were given before the program.

The United States Ambassador to Belgium, Mr. Dave Henen Morris, and Mrs. Morris, who are spending the summer at Bar Harbor, occupied a box, and Ambassador Morris introduced Admiral Byrd. Other box-holders included Mr. and Mrs. Atwater Kent, Mrs. Walter G. Ladd, Mrs. John T. Dorrance, Mrs. Shepard Fabbri, Mr. and Mrs. George P. MacGregor.

The Bar Harbor Club entertained at a supper party for Admiral and Mrs. Byrd. At the board of governors' table were the president of the Carnegie Laboratory in Washington, Dr. Warren H. Lewis and Mrs. Lewis, Ambassador and Mrs. Morris, Dr. William H. Cole, of Rutgers University, and Mrs. Cole; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barret, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney and Mr. and Mrs. F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart.

In the afternoon, Admiral and Mrs. Byrd were guests of honor at a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Atwater Kent.

Edward Stettiniuses Visit Hot Springs, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius, jr., of New York, who were in Washington for several days, went for the week-end to visit Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius at Hot Springs, Va., where she is spending the late summer. She entertained at a dinner for 100 in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. William Carrington Stettinius, who were in Hot Springs early in the season with Mrs. Stettinius, sr., have now gone on a trip to the western part of the United States. They will return to their home in Baltimore late in September.

Magrums Will Reside in Bethesda After Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Magrum, whose marriage took place August 8 at the rectory of Our Lady of Lourdes, are on a wedding trip to Canada. On their return, they will make their home at 4818 Montgomery lane, Bethesda, Md.

Helen E. Smith To Be Married To D. C. Beattie

Wedding Will Take Place Here in Early Spring, It Is Announced.

Announcement has been made by Judge and Mrs. William Strother Smith, of Sikeston, Mo., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen E. Smith, to Mr. Daniel Currie Beattie, of Washington, son of Mrs. Catherine Taylor Beattie, of New York and Culpeper County, Va., and the great-grandson of Lord Robert A. Bell.

After making her debut in Missouri, Miss Smith came to Washington as secretary to former Representative Fulbright, of that State. Since that time she has been residing at the Stoneleigh Court Apartments.

Mr. Beattie attended George Washington University, where he was prominent in musical and dramatic organizations. He is the composer of the nationally known song, "Sweetheart of Theta Delta Chi," which was first introduced on the stage of a Washington theater. He is a member of Theta Detla Chi and Alpha Eta Epsilon fraternities.

The wedding will take place in Washington in the early spring.

Many Parties Are Planned on Gold Cup Cruise

Trip Is Set for Thursday Aboard the Potomac in Regatta's Interest.

Many parties are planned Thursday night aboard the Potomac on the third annual Gold Cup cruise in the interest of the President's Cup Regatta, to take place September 24 to 27.

Mr. John A. Remon, president of the President's Cup Regatta Association, with Mrs. Remon, will head the reception committee. Others will include Mr. Harold Allen Long, Mr. William J. McManus and Mr. Harold G. Haydon in charge of arrangements; Dr. and Mrs. R. Lyman Sexton, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Somerville, Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Councilor, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Baltz, Mr. and Mrs. L. Gordon Leech, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Lodge and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Shelton.

Among those who will attend the cruise and entertain parties will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Claggett, Mr. and Mrs. James Colliflower, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer B. Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Bogley, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Bicklehaupt, Mr. and Mrs. Bradish Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Chamberlayne, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Keiser, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Long, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stott and Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Talbott, jr.

2d Horse Show Set for Aug. 26

The Riding and Hunt Club's second evening horse show at Meadowbrook Saddle Club August 26, is expected to attract many society people of Washington. The show, which will be staged under floodlights, will close the schedule for the summer.

The success of the first night show has resulted in plans for this one and Maj. Frank L. Whittaker, who is chairman of the event, considers it better than the daytime event in warm wetaher, from the standpoint of both the participants and the spectators.

The first one was witnessed by a gallery of 1,500 and it is expected an even larger crowd will attend the final show of the series. Maj. Whittaker is being assisted in arrangements by Mr. Fenton M. Fadeley and Commander William Justice Lee.

Mrs. Robert Bennett Is Hostess at Dinner

Mrs. Robert Bennett, president of the Chevy Chase branch of the National League of American Pen Women, entertained the members of the executive board at dinner last evening at the Congressional Country Club.

Among the guests were Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin, Civic Service Commissioner, Miss Louise Worden, Miss Victoria Copping, Mrs. Daisy B. Calhoun, Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, Mrs. C. G. Lueck, Mrs. Hester Beal Provenson and Mrs. John C. Weedon.

Dr. and Mrs. Newton Stern and their two young sons, of Memphis, Tenn., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith, at the Westchester. Mrs. Stern is a sister of Mrs. Goldsmith and also of Mrs. Milton Harris.

Tennis Tourney Stirs Newport Social Group

Many Entertainments Are Arranged During Week for Players.

Tennis is the paramount interest at Newport this week and there will be much entertaining for the players.

Today Countess Laszlo Szechenyi, wife of the Hungarian Minister to the Court of St. James will entertain at a luncheon for 100 players and officials of the tournament. The Countess also will give a dinner Saturday night before the tennis ball, to be given by Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, of Miramar.

Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, who always returns from her summer trip to Europe in time for the tennis matches at Newport, has a number of guests at her home, Harrison House. Her cousin, Miss Dorothy Sallers, who was in Europe with her and accompanied her on her return, is well known on the Washington courts and is a real tennis "fan" at the Newport games.

Mrs. Fahnestock's two granddaughters, Miss Marsyl Stokes and Miss Vivenne Stokes also are good tennis players and are taking a great interest in the tournament which they have attended every year since they were small girls when they have been in Newport with their grandmother, or their mother, now Mrs. Drummond Wolf, of London, who also has a home at Newport.

Mrs. James Duke who still has her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell, with her at her villa at Newport entertained at luncheon Sunday and will entertain again today. Mrs. Skirvin Adams, sister of Mrs. George Mesta, of Washington, entertained at luncheon for the tennis players Sunday at Beach Mound.

The Ambassador of Belgium, Count Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, who have been at Newport for the week-end will leave today.

Late Peaches Offer Variety Of Delicacies

Tasty Ice Cream, Dumplings and Fritters Among Possibilities.

By Dorothea Duncan.

The abundant suppy of fresh peaches in the Washington markets suggests numerous delicious dishes with which to enhance August meals.

Homemade peach ice cream is the first of the many peach desserts to captivate the fancy. Every woman with a family of husky youngsters knows how popular the kitchen and back porch become when she announces that the ice cream freezer is to be brought up from the cellar and filled with fresh peach ice cream.

Ice cream, however, is not the only popular fresh peach dessert that may enhance dinner and luncheon menus this month. Peach dumplings and a tall glass of milk bring a soup and salad luncheon to a grand finale. Peach fritters are delicious served with the meat course or with hot foamy sauce for dessert.

Peach fluff makes a delectable dessert for a hot day and is particularly attractive after a well rounded dinner menu where a heavy dessert would be unappropriate.

Fresh peach milk shakes topped with a scoop of peach or vanilla ice cream bring this fruit to the table as a refreshing and popular beverage. There are any number of other delicious fresh peach desserts that may be served also, and here are the recipes for some of the more popular ones already mentioned.

Peach Ice Cream With Custard Foundation.

1 pint milk
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons water
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
1 cup heavy cream
2 cups peach pulp and juice

Scald the milk in the top of a double boiler. Mix the flour and cold water to a smooth paste and add it slowly to the scalded milk, stirring constantly while adding. After it thickens slightly, continue cooking for 15 minutes. Add sugar and beaten egg yolks and cook for two minutes longer. Strain the custard through a fine sieve and, when cold, add the cream, peach juice and pulp. Freeze either in the trays of a mechanical refrigerator or in a crank freezer, using one part salt to eight parts ice.

Peach Ice Cream Without Custard Foundation.

1 cup fresh peach pulp
½ cup sugar
¼ cup boiling water
2 cups cream

Make a sirup by boiling the sugar and water together for five minutes. Add the peaches and put the mixture through a strainer. Add the cream and freeze as suggested above.

Peach Fritters.

Peaches
Fritter batter
Powdered sugar

Peel the peaches, split them in two, remove the stones, sprinkle powdered sugar over them, dip each piece in fritter batter and fry two or three minutes in deep fat (360-370 degrees F.). Serve with powdered sugar or foamy sauce.

Fritter Batter.

1 1-3 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
2-3 cup milk
2 tablespoons powdered sugar

Sift dry ingredients, add egg well beaten, and milk. The batter should be just thick enough to coat the article it is intended to cover. If it is too thin, add more flour; if too thick, add more liquid.

Foamy Sauce.

½ cup butter
1 cup confectioner's sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons hot water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream the butter and gradually add the sugar, the egg, well beaten, and the hot water. Heat over hot water, beating continually until it thickens. Add the vanilla and serve.

Peach Dumplings With Whipped Cream.

Freestone peaches are needed for these dumplings. Pare the peaches, cut a hole in the end and carefully remove the stones. Wrap in circular pieces of puff paste rolled to ¼-inch thickness and tuck in the paste neatly where the stones were removed. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.). Just before serving, fill the holes with whipped cream sweetened and flavored.

Scalloped Peaches.

1 teaspoon butter or other fat
1 cup fresh peaches
1 quart apples
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ cup brown sugar
¼ cup bread crumbs or cake crumbs
¼ cup water

Grease a baking dish with the fat. Chop the peaches and put half of them in the bottom of the dish. Pare and quarter the apples and lay half of them over the peaches. Sprinkle with salt, add the other layer of peaches, and then the apples, and sprinkle again with salt. Scatter the sugar over the top, then the crumbs, then pour the water over all. Cover the dish and bake in a slow oven (250-350 degrees F.) from 45 to 60 minutes, removing the cover for 30 minutes. Serve hot or cold, with or without whipped cream.

Radio Education Appeals to Women

Self improvement is one of the strongest interests of the modern married woman, judging from a recently completed audit of listeners' mail received by the Educational Radio Project, Office of Education, United States Department of the Interior. The letters show that of educational radio's estimated audience of 5,000,000 married women from the largest group.

For many women marriage means the end of formal schooling, but their desire for education lingers on. Thousands of them eagerly turn to radio as a medium of learning, letters show. Wrote one Eastern housewife "If there is anything else you may send me that will help to expand my knowledge, along any line, I will be glad to get it, as I had only six grades of actual schooling."

Favorite Desserts for August Feature Peaches

Fresh peach ice cream topped with rosy slices of the same fruit is the first of the many peach desserts to appear on August menus. There are many other interesting peach desserts, however, that may be served this month when peaches are displayed in such abundance in the Washington markets. The accompanying story suggests some of the more popular peach desserts with directions for preparation.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

During Miss Haworth's absence on vacation, her mail is being answered by proxy. Miss Haworth will return to her desk August 24.

Two Readers Advise "Puzzled" to Ignore Parental Objection and Marry on $25 a Week; One Wonders If He Can Afford to Wed on Twice That Salary.

This column recently carried a leter from a young man who earns $25 a week and is engaged to a girl whose mother objects to the marriage on the score that he cannot support a wife. Since the problem appeared here, a number of readers have written in, offering their advice to this person, who signed himself "Puzzled." Some of the letters follow:

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I would like for "Puzzled" to know that it is possible for a couple to establish a home on what he makes. I know, because I have been married three years, and at no time has my husband earned more than $25 a week. When we first married, we paid $25 a month for an apartment, had plenty to eat and had a little money left over out of $14 a week. Eleven months after we were married, we had a son, and we have never had to depend on anyone for financial aid. I know from my experience, therefore, that if a man and woman really love each other and are willing to economize they can build a successful marriage on very little money.

My husband an I have been drawn closer together through planning the wisest use of the money we have. Despite the fact that we have a son and have just paid a hospital bill, we have bought several things that are not necessities—for example, a car and a radio. I know how "Puzzled" feels, as my mother also was opposed to my marriage. Incidentally, my husband does not believe in a wife working; so I have never been a wage earner since I married. We have been ideally happy and have never been resentful because we had so little money. I hope "Puzzled" and his fiancee will find the same road to happiness. M. S. G.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: With $500 in the bank, a $25-a-week salary and a car already paid for "Puzzled" can easily make a go of marriage, so tell him to take the plunge. If his wife wants to keep her job, let her do it. But if she is a good manager she won't have to do it. I married five years ago when I was making $20 a week. For two years, during which my wife and I had a baby, we lived on that and managed to save a little besides. I am now making $30 a week and we get by all right. F. S.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: How on earth "Puzzled" saved $500 and paid for an automobile out of a salary of $20 a week is a mystery to me! I make twice that amount, haven't a cent in the bank, am still paying out a car I bought a year ago, and feel I can't get married though I have been engaged to a charming, sensible girl for over a year. She has a position paying $30 a week, but wants to give it up when we marry. She says I am a spendthrift of the worst stripe and that I need someone to help me save. But if I can just barely manage to eat, sleep and dress myself on what I make, I can't convince myself two persons could live on my salary. Would appreciate your advice on this. G. K.

She Might Manage Better.

DEAR G. K.: Since you obviously don't know the value of money, I think your best course would be to marry this girl and turn over your salary to her each week. She is probably a better manager than you are; and chances are she can prove that in your case two can live more cheaply than one.

Pickle Recipes Are Featured In New Contest

EVERY woman whose family likes good things to eat should be reminded that the pickling season is well under way.

Next week The Post is sponsoring a contest for recipes for pickled foods, and every food page reader is invited to enter her favorite recipe.

This request includes recipes for all kinds of cucumber pickles, relishes, chow chows, spiced melon rind, pickled peppers, brandied or pickled peaches and other spiced or pickled fruits and vegetables too numerous to mention.

Cash awards will be offered for the five best recipes. The first prize is $5, the second $3 and the three remaining prizes $1 each.

To enter the contest merely write out your favorite recipe for any of the above spiced or pickled foods and send it to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post. The prize-winning recipes and other recipes which are favorites of Dorothea Duncan will be printed in bulletin form, and will be ready for mailing upon request shortly after the winners are announced on the food page.

Be sure to mail your recipes in time to reach this office not later than next Saturday morning.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Birthmarks.

There are countless superstitions clustered about birthmarks, and they are still regarded by some with no little apprehension. We may recall Hawthorne's gruesome tale of the scientist who attempted to remove a birthmark from his wife's face, the roots of which reached to her very soul.

A popular but erroneous belief is that a deep impression made upon the mind of a pregnant woman is likely to be recorded in the form of a birthmark on her child. I once had a mother explain that the long, red mark on her child's cheek was due to the fact that on one occasion when returning she was rendered momentarily blind by a brilliant flash of lightning. She recalled the shape of the flash so vividly that she was not at all surprised when the birthmark appeared on her babe. Of course, such instances, when they occur, are purely coincidental and do not follow the rule of cause and effect.

Center About Head.

When we think of birthmarks (called nevi) we ordinarily refer to a red, port wine, or strawberry mark on the skin, which is occasioned by a network of blood vessels close to the surface. Sometimes they are extensive and will involve the mouth, the tongue and a considerable portion of the cheek and neck. In fact, they may develop on practically any part of the body. However, more than 75 per cent of this common type of birthmark will be found somewhere about the head. They are soft to the touch and will blaze up with heightened color whenever the owner laughs violently or coughs violently. Their presence produces no effect on general health, although when cut or injured profuse bleeding may ensue. When on a visible portion of the body, they are merely unsightly. The best time to remove them is when they are first observed. This will usually be in infancy.

"Port wine" marks are very common in infants; in fact, nearly one-third of all newborn babes will show one or more. Most of these will be outgrown, as we say; in other words, they will disappear spontaneously and hence are seen less frequently in adults.

Strictly speaking, among nevi we must include moles—the soft, pigmented type—some of which will contain hairs. Occasionally there will be flat, large patches of bluish black, or brownish pigment. In other instances these affairs will seem to be fastened to the skin by a tiny connecting isthmus of soft tissue.

Unless the blemish is definitely disfiguring it is well to let it alone. There is just one precaution, however, that must be kept in mind—should the area begin to grow, to ulcerate, or to degenerate, skilled attention is demanded promptly.

Many Treatments.

There are many methods of treatment that are of value, chief among which are radium and X-ray. In fact, if surgery is advised, with subsequent skin grafting, it is generally wise to irradiate the area before removal. The slower the X-ray treatment the better, that is, the dose should be very small to begin with and should be continued over a considerable period of time. Care should be taken not to bring about atrophy of the skin. Many experts believe that radium is preferable to X-ray, although both have been used successfully.

Leather Buttons, Zipper Pockets, Trim New Wools

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

Leather details lead in fall trimmings, to complement the new transparent woolens. Sturdy leather buttons, belts, bindings, shoes, gloves and sometimes hats too, form a smart contrast to the modern fragile-looking woolen frocks.

Zippers, too, have come to the fore, not only to replace the old-fashioned hooks and eyes, but for decoration. Zipper pockets, front and side closings, repeating the tone of the frock or accessories, were noted on the majority of the chic woolen costumes in the New York markets.

Ascot scarfs are returning to the spectator sports mode, giving the inevitable triangle much competition. They were everywhere in the fall collections — accompanying frocks, suits and three-piece ensembles, fashioned of silk, crepe, velvet and velveteen.

FAVORITE FOODS of famous folk

By Pattie Ellicott.

COLLECTING new recipes is an occupation enjoyed by many women and those travel widely have an excellent opportunity to indulge this fad. Wherever she goes, Miss Ruth Hitchcock, who is as much at home in Paris, London or Berlin as she is in Washington, adds to her store of recipes with which her Washington cook can delight the guests who gather in the dining room of her spacious R street home for dinners and luncheons.

Miss Hitchcock, who is the daughter of the late Senator Gilbert H. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, is in Paris at present. Word comes of a new recipe she has discovered for a pear blush salad which is made with cheese.

The recipe follows:

Pear Blush Cheese.

A package of cream cheese, 6 halves of canned pears, a few white grapes, lettuce, orange sections, grapefruit sections and French dressing.

Fill the cavity of each half pear with cream cheese. Place each half cut side down on a bed of lettuce on individual salad plates. Put a tiny drop of red vegetable coloring on the thick part of each pear, it will spread over the surface in a delicate pink blush. Garnish each serving with sections of orange and grape fruit arranged around the pear and with tiny rosettes of cream cheese put through a pastry tube. Serve with French dressing.

Full Skirted Lines Feature Town Coats

New York (AP).—A number of town coats are cut on slim waisted full skirted lines while others follow the modified princess silhouette. Their collars are generally fairly high and are often less lavishly furred than they have been in some past season, though fox and astrakhan make a number of rich collars.

Swagger coats are seen both in a wide variety of furs and in tweeds to top suits and sports frocks.

Split Is Feared In A. F. G. E. Lodge Ranks

C. S. C. Unit Is Acused of 'Partisan Politics' by Resettlement.

Reference to 'New Deal Radicals' Assailed in Statement.

A split between progressive and conservative factions of the American Federation of Government Employes was threatened last night when the executive committee of the Resettlement Lodge issued a statement charging the Civil Service Commission Lodge of the A. F. G. E. with indulging in "partisan politics."

The Resettlement Lodge statement was in reply to a letter made public last Saturday in which the Civil Service Commission Lodge branded the Resettlement unit and five other New Deal lodges as "radical," and accused them of "unsound and wild conduct" in initiating recall proceedings against four Washington members of the national executive council.

One of the four members whose recall is sought is Cecil E. Custer, national treasurer and member of the Civil Service Commission Lodge. The others are Vice Presidents Ira Y. Bain, G. Carroll Dimond and Michael D. Schaefer, all leaders in the conservative wing of the Federation.

Lined up with the Resettlement unit are Labor Lodge No. 12; Agriculture Lodge, No. 31; Beltsville Lodge, No. 125; WPA Lodge, No. 139, and Veterans Administration Lodge, No. 17.

C. S. C. Lodge Denounced.

In its statement, the Resettlement Lodge executive committee denounced the Civil Service Commission Lodge for referring to the pro-recall lodges as "New Deal radicals."

"This attempt by these officers of attribute the action of these lodges to 'New Deal Radicals' reflects a dangerous policy which they have consistently followed of attempting to identify any progressive action with New Deal radicalism," the Resettlement statement read.

"They thus inject partisan politics into intra-union disputes and reflect a basic anti-New Deal bias. It should be noted that these same executive council members forced President Babcock's resignation because he entered partisan politics."

Coming on the heels of the Civil Service Commission Lodge's letter, the Resettlement unit statement indicated that henceforth the recall battle is likely to be fought in the public press, with the cleavage between the progressive and conservative factions growing steadily sharper.

Prepare for Defiance.

Previously, because of a threat by the executive council that lodges releasing "unauthorized publicity" would be suspended, as was the Justice Lodge, the New Deal lodges had consistently avoided making any public statements regarding the recall proceedings.

The abrupt departure from this policy seemed an indication that the New Deal units were prepared to defy even the executive council and carry the entire controversy into the fedeartion convention at Detroit next month.

Should an attempt be made by the A. F. G E executive council to suspend the six lodges for "unauthorized publicity," the New Deal units are expected to reply with a counter-charge that it was the Civil Service Commission Lodge that made the first public statement.

$10,000 Thefts In Two Months Laid to 8 Here

Anonymous Call Leads to Arrest of Four, Who Implicate Others.

Eight colored "vacation bandits," self-styled, were arrested by police yesterday, charged with committing more than 20 housebreakings and making away with loot valued at about $10,000.

Four of the group, which for two months has been raiding homes in the Northeast and Southeast, were arrested in the 100 block of Seventh street northeast following an anonymous telephone call that "bandits were in the house."

Precinct Detectives G. E. Thornton, E. E. Scott and Dewey Guest went to the scene with Lieut. J. C. Maloney, of the Ninth Precinct. They caught the four men, laden with booty and about to leave. The four submitted to arrest after a short struggle.

After questioning, the burglars signed statements implicating four other members of their group. The other four immediately were picked up and are being held at the Ninth Precinct station.

The procedure of the bandits has been either to enter houses while the occupants are away or to steal in a back door while the members of the family are in another part of the house. They usually took everything movable, packing the loot in stolen suitcases.

Once away, the bandits sold the goods as soon as possible. It was said that in one case a diamond ring valued at $100 was disposed of for $2.

Victim of Blaze Still Near Death

Mrs. Anna Cataldi, 53, burned Sunday when her clothing was set aflame by exploding cleaning fluid, remained near death in Georgetown Hospital last night.

Physicians said there was no change in her condition. Mr. Cataldi was burned on the arms, legs and body.

The woman was cleaning some clothing in the bathroom of her home, 2018 Florida avenue northwest, when the fluid exploded. The flames enveloped her and she ran down the stairs. Her son Domenic, 22, beat out the fire with his bare hands.

Aid of Miss Perkins Faces Speeding Charge

Turner W. Battle, 35, Assistant Secretary of Labor, will appear in Police Court today to face a charge of speeding 38 miles and hour. He was arrested on Water street southwest Saturday by Motorcycle Policeman R. T. Conklin.

Conklin said yesterday he gave Battle a ticket and instructed him to appear in Traffic Court today to answer the charge. Conklin also arrested Mrs. J. Borden Harriman for speeding last year.

Park Pools Bids Asked

attraction to children and adults of the Southwest and Southeast sections and to reduce swimming and wading in the dangerous Anacostia River and Washington Channel.

Extended negotiations between the parks office and that of the Comptroller General to determine whether the contractors were obliged, under their agreements, to bear the expense of correcting the flood damage, delayed completion of the pools.

Meanwhile, the Southwest section of the Capital had no pools whatever and the number in the Southeast was held inadequate by citigens' groups and recreation experts.

To expedite resumption of work on the East Potomac and Anacostia projects, though he admitted there is no hope of either pool being ready for use this year, Finnan yesterday asked the contractors to rush estimates for installing the piling foundations.

Earth Unstable.

As originally designed, the pools were to rest on the soil. The flood proved, however, that the earth at both sites is very unstable, hence the decision to build the tanks on piles sunk deep into the ground. The Anacostia pool will rest on 14-foot piles, grounded on bedrock, while the other will be placed atop 50-foot piles based on firm ground.

According to a ruling by the Comptroller General's office, the Government will bear the added expense instead of the contractors. A supplemental allotment of $60,000 in PWA funds was made by Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The Charles H. Tompkins Co. is building the East Potomac pool, and the B-Z Construction Co. is the contractor for the one to be operated in Anacostia Park.

Even when the East Potomac Park pool is completed, however, children in the Southwest section will still be without adequate swimming facilities. While the East Potomac Park pool is technically in the Southwest section, it is situated nearly 2 miles from the center of the residential area.

Under consideration at the present time is the possibility of running a daily ferry boat from the waterfront to East Potomac Park. This, it is thought, would put the new pool within reach of children in the densely populated wharves district.

J. M. Schaffer, president of the Southwest Citizens Association, said last night that unless the proposed ferry service is made an actuality, the opening of the East Potomac Park pool would be of no benefit to Southwest Washington children.

Opposes Charge for Swim.

"If there is a charge made for the use of the pool," he said, "it won't help us at all here, even if the ferry they're talking about does go into operation. The charge might be only a dime, but a dime is a lot of money to these kids, especially in big families.

"Without the ferry, the pool would be no good to us at all. It's a good mile and a half to that part of the park and most of the way is through heavy traffic. You wouldn't want your children making that walk every day.

"What I'd like to see," Schaffer concluded, "is a pool at Hoover Playground. That's conveniently situated and the children could splash around all day without paying anything."

A swimming pool for Hoover Playground has long been a desire of Miss Sibyl Baker, director of the Department of Playgrounds. Why there is no pool at that site or at any other spot in the Southwest is part of a story complicated by the Congressional red tape that binds every activity of the District.

At the present time there are two separate agencies operating swimming pools in Washington. They are the National Capital Parks office and the Department of Playgrounds.

The National Capital Parks office operates four pools at Banneker, Francis Junior High School, Takoma Recreation Center and Eckington Recreation Center. Two others are under construction, at East Potomac Park and one near Anacostia Junior High School. All of these have been built since 1927.

The Playgrounds Department has three pools—at Georgetown Recreation Center, Rosedale and Howard University. All of these pools were built in 1915.

Miss Baker said yesterday that she had requested funds for two new pools under a CWA allotment. When this failed to materialize she asked for WPA funds. This latter request, she said, was approved as a project both by President Roosevelt and the WPA administrator.

But the final decision was left with the District administrator of WPA funds. Since more projects had been approved than could be paid for, the appropriation for pools was ignored and the money that would have gone to their construction was diverted to other uses.

That is one reason there is no swimming pool at Hoover Playground.

Site Not Approved.

Another reason is that the Hoover Playground site has not been approved by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

When the commission was created a decade ago it was given authority to approve swimming pool sites as part of the city's recreational program. In line with this site, the commission insists that a proposed pool be part of a recreation center.

The commission considers that Hoover Playground is too small to accommodate a swiming pool. Moreover, there is no major activity associated close to the playground. Commission officials had hoped that the pool could be connected with the proposed junior high school in the Southwest.

But after several years of dickering among the Board of Education, the Commissioners and Congress, the site for the proposed school is still undecided.

So when PWA funds became available for swimming pool construction, the East Potomac Park site was chosen as the only approved site in the vicinity to the Southwest.

Officer Injured By Door of Truck

Private Horace W. Carmichael, of the traffic division, was injured last night when a loose door on a passing truck swung open and struck him. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for a dislocation of the shoulder and back injuries.

Carmichael, who lives at 3410 Eighteenth street northwest, was admonishing a man who had double-parked at Sixteenth and R streets northwest, when the truck passed. The vehicle was driven by Lewis S. Harris, 21, of 428 H street northwest.

Leo Fuhrman, 9, of 1104 Queen street northeast, was badly injured last night when he was struck by an automobile while riding his bicycle in front of 1115 Oats street northwest.

James A. Palmer, 55, of 3479 Holmead place northwest, the driver of the car, took the boy to Casualty Hospital, where he was said to be suffering from a fracture of the right leg and bruises.

2,999 Lose Car Permits In Last Year

Board Handles Total of 9,678 Cases During Fiscal Period.

Three driving permits were revoked and 36 others suspended yesterday by the Board of Revocations and Restorations.

At the same time, the District Commissioners made public the annual report of the board for the last fiscal year, which revealed that permits of 2,999 persons either were suspended or revoked during the period.

The report showed that 2,255 speeders lost their rights to drive in the District, permanently or temporarily, within the year ended June 30, last.

Drunken driving accounted for 119 actions, but only 49 of them occurred in the District. Forty-one involved District residents driving in Maryland and 29 Washingtonians in other States.

Reckless driving was blamed for 159 losses of permits, while 57 actions resulted from motorists leaving the scenes of accidents without reporting.

Nonresidents whose permits were revoked numbered 137. Traffic fatalities in the District accounted for eight actions, in other States for nine actions by the board.

A total of 9,678 cases were acted upon by the board and 1,842 permits were restored to motorists. The board reported 495 cases to the director of vehicles and traffic as coming within the provisions of the financial responsibility law.

The board placed the records of 168 drivers on the "prohibitive list." This means that they are denied permits because of their records.

In a supplemental report, the board stated that 434 character licenses for taxicab operators had been approved and 379 rejected during the fiscal year. Eighty such licenses were revoked, 22 were suspended and 4 were restored.

Yesterday's revocations and suspensions follow:

Revoked—Charles E. Carey, 633 Sixth street northeast, 65 miles; John Dewey, 35 R street northwest, 60 miles; William H. Feltman, 1235 W street southeast, 34 miles.

August A. Domick, 3715 S street northwest, lost his license for 45 days when convicted of second offense of 42 miles.

Harris to Move For Reopening Of Henry Case

On the basis of recent developments in the 4-year-old slaying of Milsie Henry, local gambler, Charles Harris, convicted "trigger man" in the murder, will ask that his case be reopened, it was learned yesterday.

Harris, serving a life term at Northeastern Penitentiary, will ask aid of the Department of Justice, it was reported. His plea will point out that no finger prints connecting him with the crime were found on guns recently discovered in a secret compartment of the murder car.

It is understood Harris will ask either for a full pardon or for commutation of sentence on the basis of time already served—three years in the District Jail and 14 months in Northeastern Penitentiary. He was saved from the electric chair by Presidential intervention.

Harris insists he is innocent, contending he was not in Washington the morning of April 21, 1932, when Henry was shot and killed in front of his Brown street home. Since his confinement, he has sought ways and means of gaining freedom.

Meanwhile, Lieut. John Fowler, police ballistics expert, has established by tests that a shotgun found in the slayer's car when a secret compartment behind the front seat was discovered last week is the one which killed Henry.

Flames Sweep Home On M St. Northwest

Fire of undetermined origin last night swept the first floor of the home of Grady Navill, colored, 604 M street northwest. Two alarms were sounded before the flames were quelled.

No one was in the house at the time, the police said. An estimate of damage was not available.

At Legion Auxiliary Convention

School Course in 'Parenthood' Urged by D.C. Legion Auxiliary

Such Training of Pupils Around 16 Years of Age Would Result in More Useful Citizens and Less Crime, Says Resolution.

A resolution urging the teaching of "parenthood" in the public schools was adopted last night by the American Legion Auxiliary, District of Columbia Department, at its eleventh annual convention in the Chapter House of the American Red Cross.

Training in "parenthood," the resolution said, would result in more useful citizens and less crime among youth.

Miss Minnie May Hardy, president of the Treasury unit and child welfare chairman of the local auxiliary, drafted the resolution. She said that, under her plan, pupils 16 years of age and thereabouts would be given the course in parenthood.

"If we teach cooking, sewing and animal husbandry," she said, "how much more important that we teach young people how to be successful parents.

"The course, naturally, would have to be worked out by experts. My idea is that potential parents in the public schools would be taught something about discipline. They would be urged to curb their tempers in dealing with children and cautioned against using the word 'don't' too often."

The opening session of the two-day convention of the auxiliary continued until 12:30 a. m. this morning. Two hours were consumed in debating the rules to govern the convention.

A new president and other officers will be elected tonight. There are three candidates for president—Mrs. Mary Killeen, Miss Faustine Dennis and Lillian Reagan.

Bakery Strike Still On, Union's Agent Declares

Lester Denies Settlement Claims; Sees 'Deception' by Company.

Robert Lester, business agent for the bakery drivers' union, last night told the bi-weekly meeting of the Central Labor Union, of which he is president, that there had been no settlement of the strike at Dutch Baker Boy, Inc., and that no settlement was in sight.

He attacked the management of the bakery for what he termed "false and misleading statements" which he said were issued by it to mislead the public into thinking that such an agreement had been reached. He said the purpose of those statements was to retrieve the patronage of customers sympathetic to labor.

Lester reported 22 of the company's 37 drivers were union men and had gone out on strike. C. P. Reichel, of the bakers' union, and several others spoke on the strike and appealed for the aid of organized labor.

William H. Myerly, of the elevator construction union, local No. 10, charged that 75 per cent of the elevators in Washington were operating on expired permits.

Tells of Flogging.

Willie Sue Blagden, of the Southern Tenant Farmers Union, told the members the story of her lashing at the hands of the "Southern gentlemen planters" in Arkansas during the current strike of sharecroppers there.

She said she had entered the strike area with the Rev. Claude Williams to ascertain whether one of the colored strikers had been murdered for his union activities. She said that eight strikers had been murdered during the strike.

She made sarcastic references to the investigation into her beating and that administered to the Rev. Mr. Williams made by the Department of Justice.

"Because we were not held for ransom, the department decided that the crime was not kidnaping," she said. "Because I was not dragged out of the car, but only made to get out by six determined men, it decided that no force had been used."

Labor's most vital issue, that of the struggle between the A. F. of L. and the Committee for Industrial Organization, which was rumored to come up for a test vote, was not mentioned.

True, Exonerated, Denies Pogrom Plot

James True, local writer, accused by the magazine New Masses of plotting a pogrom against American Jews, yesterday denied the charges, explaining he never had granted an interview to a representative of the magazine.

Nn his National Press Building office, True said he had never talked to "any magazine writer," and branded the purported interview as a "fake."

"Nothing has ever been given out in this office favorable to or encouraging fascism, nazism or pogroms," True declared.

The magazine accused True of plotting a wholesale massacre of Jews next month. It was reported he had made arrangements to obtain weapons and ammunition for his "forces."

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, who launched an investigation after the alleged pogrom plan was reported to him, announced no action would be taken against True. He indicated the investigation showed the charges to be unfounded.

Interior Job Strike Called By Plasterers

Plasterers' Strike Threat to Job's Completion on Schedule.

Glenn Dale Hospital Is Also in Labor Strife; Only 3 Affected.

One hundred and seven plasterers on the new Interior Building, which is being rushed for scheduled opening this winter, struck yesterday to enforce their demand for a wage scale of $1.75 an hour.

A strike also was called on the adult tuberculosis sanitarium being erected by the District government at Glenn Dale, Md., but only three workmen were affected.

Explaining the cause of the walkout order, James Buckley, business agent of Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers Union, Local 96, cited an agreement providing for the $1.75 scale which went into effect Saturday. The agreement was made between the union and the Employing Plasterers Association several months ago, according to Buckley, to go into force August 15.

The Interior and Glenn Dale projects are the only ones where the new rate was refused, when work was resumed yesterday morning on Government and private construction throughout the city, the business agent said. Consequently, he was compelled to order the plasterers to walk out, Buckley declared. The new rate provides an increase of 25 cents an hour.

Contracting officials on the Interior Building project said the strike will seriously handicap operations if it is prolonged.

Buckley pointed out plasterers were getting $1.75 an hour until about two years ago, when the rate was cut to $1.50. Higher living costs justify a return to the former scale, he said:

Innocent victims of the strike are almost 100 plasterers' helpers whose labor cannot be used until a settlement is reached.

Pool Electrocution Inquest Directed

A coroner's jury will investigate the death of Helen Berger, 22, colored, who was electrocuted Saturday while swimming at the Banneker Pool, it was said yesterday while Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald awaits a report of District electrical inspectors on the wiring at the pool.

A post-mortem performed on the girl showed she was a victim of electrocution, and preliminary investigation revealed she had come in contact with a submerged lighting fixture that was loose under the surface of the water.

The pool was open yesterday, F. W. Hoover, general manager of the Welfare and Recreational Association, said the wiring was not found defective by employees who inspected it after the accident. No date has been set for the inquest.

Joan Crawford Quietly Plans Debut on Stage

Will Begin in Small Stock Companies and Hopes to Co-star With Husband.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Aug. 17.—Exotic Joan Crawford, film actress who believes in "making my mistakes as privately as possible," will go to the small towns of England for her heralded stage debut.

Crawford, who started in pictures as a "flaming flapper" ten years ago, and worked her way up the cultural scale until now she appreciates opera, wants to act on the stage because it will give her "intellectual maturity."

She is urged on by her husband, Franchot Tone, and threatens to take a year's leave of absence from the screen to accomplish her "stage destiny."

Will Start in Stock.

"My first thought was to play for a season in small American stock companies with Franchot," she said. "Then perhaps I could do a show with him in New York.

"Leslie Howard interested me in going to England for my first attempt. He said there are many small companies to be found throughout England, and that audiences are not so exacting.

"I realize that I have a great deal to learn, and I don't want to be just another star going on the stage. I'll probably make a great many mistakes in learning, and I should like to make them as privately as possible."

Two Films to Do.

There's little chance Crawford will be permitted to break into legitimate company before next spring, however. She has two pictures, "Love on the Run," and "Parnell," to do, and they will hardly be finished before that time.

Tone probably will accompany her to England, where, according to Miss Crawford, he has a chance to do a London play.

Metropolitan

"THE GREEN PASTURES." Warner Brothers picturization of the Biblical fable by Marc Connelly based on Roark Bradford's Southern sketches, "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun," featuring Rex Ingram, as De Lawd, supported by Oscar Polk, Eddie Anderson, Frank Wilson, George Reed, Abraham Gleaves, Myrtle Anderson, Al Stokes, Edna M. Harris, James Fuller and all-Negro cast. Vocal accompaniment arranged and conducted by Hall Johnson and sung by the Hall Johnson Choir. Directed by Marc Connelly and William Keighley. Reviewed (return engagement) by W. A. Whitney.

In the past three decades that have roughly been the life of the motion picture as a factor in the entertainment world, many truly great pictures have been made, but, outside of the quasi-Biblical spectacles of Cecil B. DeMille, fundamental religion has, for the most part, been omitted entirely, or merely alluded to, in the course of motion-picture development.

To the long line of distinguished pictures comes "The Green Pastures," unique in content and method of presentation, offering the tenets of Christianity stripped of all false values. Here is religion in its most elemental terms, recited in words of one syllable and in settings comprehensible to the most primitive mind.

One cannot review "The Green Pastures" satisfactorily, for this is a picture which must be seen fully to appreciate the compelling force of its simplicity. One cannot fail to be impressed by the revertial simplicity of the fable, its complete understanding of the essential and meaningful elements of religion, and the tremendous power of a belief reflected in terms which are recognizable and tangible.

Easily Bears Repetition.

Of Rex Ingram, as "De Lawd," or of any other individual in the cast, one need not comment at this time, other than to corroborate all the superlatives which have already been lavished upon them. The company, collectively, deserves everything which has been said. Not the least of the commendable features of the picture is the direction given by Marc Connelly and the superb photographic effects of Hal Mohr and Fred Jackson. And one should not forget the spirituals rendered by the Hall Johnson Choir.

Truly a great picture, "The Green Pastures" is one which can be seen over and over again.

For the supplementary portion of the program, an issue of the Popular Science series is presented, showing an ultra-sensitive microphone, the manufacture of cosmetics, the fighting of forest fires and other topics of interest. Also included are "The Hills of Old Wyomin'," a screen song, with Louise Massey and the Westerners, and the combined news releases of Universal and Paramount.

The Roadside.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES." The Roadside Theater presents the drama in four acts and five scenes by William Gillette, based on the stories by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, directed by Harrold A. Weinberger, with settings by Edith I. Allen, costumes by Dorothy Croissant and incidental piano music by Jeanne Brayshaw. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Sherlock Holmes, the greatest of all ratiocinators, and Prof. Moriarity, the prototype of all public enemies, continue to battle it out for supremacy, and, in keeping with the Conan Doyle fiction and the FBI reality, the crimester continues to get the worst of it.

All of which is to say that the Gillette-Doyle play is continuing its run in the Old Red Barn out on the Rockville Pike, and that, in the persons of George Farrington and Fred Haskin, jr., the famous encounter of words and wits bears up as one of the Roadsiders' moderate hits.

While "Sherlock Holmes" opened somewhat less auspiciously than have certain other productions, the play has, in the course of the past week, picked up considerably and now the drama more nearly approximates those precious memories created by Mr. Gillette.

Others in the company include Betty Gray and Harrold A. Weinberger, as the blackmailers; Adele Gusack, as the charming victim of the plot; Frank S. Koonce, as Mr. Holmes' boy, Billy; S. Carlton Ayres, as the good Dr. Watson; Milton Freedman, Jean Smith, Joanne Adams, Harrison Libbey, John Rappolt, John McKnight, Blake B. Epsey, Edward Stevlingson and John McKnight.

About The Showshops

FULL speed ahead on final preparations for the second annual "Showboat Cruise" of the Variety Club of Washington this Saturday night has been ordered as with a single roaring voice by coskippers Carter Barron and Sam Galanty, according to latest advices.

BELL.

At a per ticket price of $1.50, there is no comparable amusement value now on the market. Here is what you will have aboard the Wilson Line's S. S. City of Washington: Phil Spitalny and his "Hour of Charm," all-girl orchestra, headlining at the Earle next week, to provide music for a lavish vaudeville bill that will feature Ben Blue, headlining at Loew's Capitol; Sybil Bowan, the Elida Ballet, Roy and May and other stage acts from local theaters; Leon Brusiloff directing a specially engaged dance orchestra that will share playing time with George Kistner's Sheepshead Bay Orchestra, the boat's regular dance band, and certain impromptu surprise acts that will reveal themselves in due course.

Preceding all of these gala goings-on aboard ship will be Dr. Frank T. Shyne's Water Carnival at the Seventh street wharf, beginning at 8:30. This carnival will include various aquatic events, a bathing beauty contest, aquaplane tests, a canoe-tilting contest and a battle royal, participated in by a dozen colored battlers on a raft. There will be added features on this part of the program also, to fill the time until 10 p. m., when the river cruise will get under way. The City of Washington is due back at her dock at 1 a. m.

Tickets are available at the offices of Sidney Lust in the Earle Theater Building or from any member of the Variety Club. All proceeds will be devoted to charitable enterprises under the direction of the club's welfare committee.

Lovers of burlesque—and they are of sufficient number to keep the Capital's one playhouse devoted to this particular manifestation of the lively arts packed from Labor Day to Memorial Day each year—will be eager to learn that the Gayety's new season will be inaugurated on Sunday, August 30, this year, with Hinda Wausau the guest star of a new Independent Burlesque Association traveling troupe of comedians, singers, dancers and display artistes.

While official announcement to that effect has not as yet been made, it will be discovered in due time that good old Col. James Jeremiah Lake, the Chesterfieldian Beau Brummel of Ninth street and the arenas of gladiatorial combat, who presides over the destinies of the ladies and gentlemen of the smoker circuits in the National Capital, has made a whole passell of improvements in his palace of pulchritude during the summer months.

For instance, there is a new maple floor on the stage, the interior of the auditorium has been completely renovated and redecorated and the exterior is being given a thorough going over, too.

And that isn't all. As a street-level accessory to the modest drinkery and more pretentious night club which the good colonel conducts over and to the second floor north of the Gayety lobby, he is opening an ultra-modern delicatessen and restaurant that will afford both entrance and egress directly to and from the Gayety and the night club—or so one hears it twittered by that little birdie. This new center of prandial pastiming is expected to be ready for formal opening on Saturday, August 29.

So now you know.

Jack Espey, who has not at all "taken over Bill Merriam's interests" in Washington, but for a week is discharging some of the Merriam publicity functions as a favor to a friend who has moved on to New York, drops by to say that at the Cocoanut Grove, beginning tonight, the major attraction of the floor show will be Miss Vanessi, noted dancer, assisted by Alberto de Lima. Miss Vanessi, sometimes provocatively referred to as the girl with the million dollar, er, ah, limbs, will appear indefinitely in Washington, preliminary to reopening in the Rainbow Room in Radio City, New York, later in the summer. They think she has pretty eyes up there, too!

Elsewhere on this page—with a reasonable break in make-up luck—will be observed an excellent likeness of Maxine, star vocalist with Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, coming to the Earle on Friday. It is interesting to recall that Maxine is a bona fide lady barytone with a vocal range that goes right down to low "C;" that she hails from Columbus, Ohio, and while a student in the fine arts courses at Ohio State University had a tough time trying to convince her voice teacher that she couldn't pitch her voice where the professor thought a girl's voice ought to be pitched. Maestro Spitalny signed her the moment he heard her in an amateur program in a Columbus theater, in which she took part for the fun of it. She is an only child and the three persons most surprised by her rise to fame through her voice, so she says, are her mother, her father and herself.

Balloting is going gaily on at the Roadside Theater for the selection by popular vote of the next melodrama to be presented by the red barn acting group. The choice is to be made from among the melodramas in which the Roadsiders already have appeared with success. Tabulations up to and including yesterday afternoon showed "Murder in the Red Barn," "The Drunkard" and "Arizona" to be running practically a dead heat far ahead of all the rest of the field. So it probably will be one of these three—which one will depend upon the outcome of the final voting which will continue throughout the current week of "Sherlock Holmes."

* * * *

Except for the length of the show, the "Piccadilly Jim"-"Going Native Revue" combination at Loew's Capitol would have cracked all week-end attendance records at the F street cathedral of the celluloids. Even with the curtailed "turnover," Friday, Saturday and Sunday receipts are an all-time third. Nice going is what I always say.

Shakespeare Play At Sylvan Tonight

The tenth summer festival of the present season in the Sylvan Theater at the Washington Monument will present the Washington Players in Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The play will begin today at 8 p. m. and will be played in festival version without intermission using the Mendelssohn score throughout, played by the Washington Civic Orchestra.

Final rehearsal was held last night of the entire cast of 100. The staff of directors includes Robert Halsted, stage director; S. Page Ford, musical director; Alice Louise Hunter, dance director; Mary Apple, choral director; Mrs. Louise Wynne and Mrs. Edith H. Hunter, costume directors; Miss Abbie Lee Crum, properties director; Gordon Dahlem and Jack Robinson, lighting effects directors; Margaret Leidig, prompter, and Harry Blutstein, stage manager. Chester Ring of the Washington Players, will be announcer.

Leading roles in the fairy fantasy will be played by Elizabeth Cooper, Adele Whitetside, Yerby Pannill, Lansing Hall, Alice Louise Hunter, Marjorie Beall, Robert Halsted, Wayne Bobst, Thomas M. Cahill, Herman P. Riess, John Sikken, Robert Duke, J. Edmond Veitch, Kent Dyer, Edgar L. Kloten, Joseph Custer, Felix Bunch and others.

Tickets for the chair sections are available at the Willard, the Washington, the A. A. A. and at the Sylvan Theater tonight.

Horses Reach Farm, Driver Dead in Wagon

In the wagon was the body of Ledoux, a bullet hole through the back of his head. His pockets had been rifled.

St. Landry Parish officers said they believed the 25-year-old farmer was killed and robbed when he started home after selling a bale of cotton in town. After the shooting the horses continued on to the farm, stopping at a closed gate near the house.

Brings Rare Voice to the Earle

When Phil Spitalny brings his "Hour of Charm" all-girl orchestra to the stage of the Earle Theater for the week beginning Friday, the solo vocal interludes will be sung by the deep-throated young woman pictured above, who announces herself only as Maxine. As associates among the orchestra's specialists she has Sylvia and her violin, a true virtuosa; the Three Little Words, vocal harmonists, and others. The young fellow in white, having his chin scratched, is in the nature of a knock-knock. Who's there? Rabbit. Rabbit who? Rabbit up and I'll take it home—or something like that.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Sinister Menace.

Garnett looked sober. "I don't know about that. I think you ought to talk to some one first—Burke or Field. I think they should know when you leave this building. They're protecting you and we ought to give them a break."

"You think there is danger——"

"This is crime," Garnett said. "An unlovely, ancient burden of the human race. It's a business with no code and no rules except the survival of the most ruthless, the boldest, and the cleverest. Sometimes the law is swift enough, bold enough and ruthless enough—sometimes not. If Clint rallies enough today to make a statement several sorts of hell may be popping before night I'd rather you waited here till I call Burke."

But she must, Eden protested, get back to the office. She could not tell them about Coburn, or the money she had promised to take to the La Salle Street Station. But unless she was free to go she would have to tell. She looked at Gran—at her little feet which missed touching the floor by an inch. Gran's hands, in black kid gloves, were clasped in a tight knot in her lap. She was still and cool, but under her slightly crooked hat her eyes were feverishly bright. Gran was having a thrill, and nothing, not even the sinister brooding menace that overshadowed everything, could make her afraid.

Quickly Eden made up her mind. "All right. Call Martin Burke. And then some one must take Gran home."

"Catsfoot—I don't need any bodyguard. If there's nothing that can be done for that poor child upstairs, call a taxi for me and I'll go home by myself."

"I think we won't let you go by yourself," Garnett said. "Wait here while I telephone."

Talk in Undertone.

He walked rapidly away and Eden moved close to Gran, keeping her voice low so that the worried looking mechanic who stood near the window could not hear.

"Listen, Gran—listen carefully and don't answer. Your voice carries more than you realize."

"I know. I had to learn that 40 years ago. I had to learn to be heard in the galley."

"This is what you have to do, Gran. They may keep me here. I meant to do it myself—but I may not be able to get away. Get $100. Get it anywhere you can—but get it. Ask Mr. McLachlan to lend it to you—tell him I'll pay it back—but get it. No—don't talk. Take the money to the La Salle Street Station at 12 o'clock. Coburn will be there—at the gate by the clock. Give him the money and ask him no questions. Will you do it, Gran?"

Gran's cheeks were flaming, she quivered, fairly bursting with curious questions, but she swallowed gamely, blinked a little.

"Yes, I'll do it."

'Gran, you're the grandest person in the world!"

"Hadn't you beter wait for Jack Garnett?"

"And have him getting me all cluttered up with policemen? Not mé."

Garnett came out of the telephone booth as Field walked down the hall.

Garnett was casual. "I was just calling your office, Field. Clint Jarvis is upstairs. He knows the men who killed Grappi—he was on his way to talk to Burke when they smashed him up—wrecked his taxi with a truck. He's still unconscious, but if he comes around he will probably talk."

Field looked at the news photographer only briefly. His eyes were on Eden. He was obviously annoyed.

"You shouldn't be here," he said. "I wished you not to identfy yourself with this case any further. You can realize the necessity of that, I'm sure."

Garnett said curtly, "Look here, Field——" but Eden interposed with a little gesture.

"Please—I'll explain. I went out with Jack Garnett to bring this boy's wife to the hospital, Mr. Field. I went of my own accord and over Mr. Garnett's opposition. My grandmother went with us. I felt that I was partly to blame——"

"How could you possibly be to blame?"

"You don't know all that I have done, Mr. Field. You see, I sent Clint Jarvis to see Martin Burke—this morning. I arranged the meeting. He—wanted to talk—but they got him."

A nurse, interrupting, said, "Would you mind talking in one of the waiting rooms?"

"I'm going back upstairs," Garnett said. "Probably you'd better look after Eden, Mr. Field—I was telephoning about that when you came in. I want to be around when Clint comes out of the coma. I want to talk to Gracie."

"Gracie?" Field almost barked, "Gracie Lincoln? You took Miss Faraday out to bring the girl here, Garnett? You're pretty rash, aren't you? Not only rash but confoundedly meddlesome. What on earth do you mean by exposing this girl to such risks?"

"Please—go Jack. I'll explain," Eden said.

Eden Escorted Home.

Garnett walked away, his jaw clamped. Some day, his inner fury comforted him, he would tell this fellow a few things. But after all she had called him Jack.

"Now," Field said to Eden, "I'll take you home."

"I'm not going home just now, thank you, I must go to the office."

"Sorry to be dictatorial, but I think we won't let you go to the office today. My car's outside. I'll take you home now."

Eden followed him without argument. Even Garnett had urged her not to go to MacLachlan's. And too, she wanted to know what had happened to Coburn.

At the door a tall man with a grim jaw fell in beside them, opened the door of the car for her, touched his hat to Field as they moved away.

They had gone two blocks when Eden made a timid suggestion. "If you're trying to solve this case shouldn't you have tried to talk to Clint Jarvis? He knows who killed Grappi."

"My dear girl, I'm not trying to solve the case. That's for the police and the homicide squad—and the reporters," he added with a touch of the sardonic. "My job is to convict the people they finally arrest and to protect you and the rest of our witnesses. Besides—it seems not to be necessary to bother about the case—the newspaper men are taking care of it with their usual reckless enthusiasm and lack of common sense."

"But—if they find the criminals?"

"They won't find them. They'll embarrass innocent people, get a lot of wrong answers, put people like you in danger, and turn up everything that we want hidden. Did it ever occur to you that this young Jarvis probably killed Grappi himself?"

"Clint Jarvis? He couldn't—he didn't——"

"I suspect that the police are going to think that he could—and did."

Mississippi Senator Halts Attack on Harrison Men to Duck Blow and Swing at Assailant; Is Nonchalant After Harmless Fray.

By the Associated Press.

Bay St. Louis, Miss., Aug. 17.—United States Senator Theodore G. Bilbo interrupted a political speech he was making today to engage in a fist fight on the speakers' stand with Chancery Clerk A. G. Favre, of Hancock County.

Bilbo was delivering an address on behalf of former Gov. Sennett Conner, opponent of Senator Pat Harrison for re-election in the August 25 Democratic primary. Neither man landed a square blow.

While Bilbo was speaking Favre stepped up suddenly out of the crowd and took a swing at the Senator. Bilbo ducked the blow and struck back. As the two hit each other men standing near the speaker seized Favre and hustled him away.

Bilbo then continued his speech.

The Democratic Senator from Mississippi was speaking about men he said were "on the pay roll." After he had finished his remarks he said he wanted to "talk to you Harrison men."

"Where is Red Favre. I'd like for him to hear this," Bilbo said.

"Here I am," Favre replied from the audience.

Favre rushed to the stand and struck as he spoke.

"You can't talk to our Harrison men like that," Favre said as he was being dragged away.

Then as Bilbo resumed speaking he remarked:

Firemen Protest Siren In Town Half-Mile Off

Valhalla, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP).—Valhalla's 80 volunteer firemen went in a body today to the fire commissioner's office to protest against a new fire siren installed a half mile away in the neighboring town of North White Plains.

Their business affairs are being unnecessarily interrupted, and they've had to break away from parties and rush out of the movies, at the most exciting moment, for no good reason. Worst of all they are losing sleep, dashing madly from their homes on account of fires that are none of their business.

It's all because North White Plains has changed from a fire whistle that went "whooo" to a siren that goes "wheee."

Valhalla's siren goes "wheee," too.

15,000 Battle Blazes In Minnesota Forests

St. Paul, Aug. 17 (AP).—Fifteen thousand forest-fire fighters sought today to maintain control of conflagrations as E. V. Willard, State conservation official, warned failure to accomplish this over a wide area would endanger their lives.

The situation was fraught with new peril since rain, predicted for the last week-end, did not fall in the fire zones and several new blazes started while others broke out afresh. One fire alone burned over 2,000 acres in the last 24 hours.

Allowed 65 Years to Pay.

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice George E. Brower today ordered Samuel Cline, of Brooklyn, to pay his estranged wife back alimony of $3,382 at the rate of $1 a week.

Nats Defeat Yanks, 7-5; 4 in Row

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

The revitalized Nats, swinging from the heels, floored the Yankees for a five-count in the first inning yesterday and outpointed 'em 7 to 5, to accumulate their fourth straight victory.

They played a sustained game of knock-knock with the pitching of Lefty Gomez in that opening inning. In fact, they knocked him right out of the ball game, which is no startling news inasmuch as Gomez has not won a ball game since July 4.

But the Yankees came back fighting. They assaulted Earl Whitehill for two runs in the second, another in the third, and one more in the fourth, and at that point had reduced Whitehill's five-run lead to 6-4.

Whitehill Stops 'Em.

And then without warning, the fading Whitehill stopped 'em. The Nats, though, found it expedient to replace him with a pinch hitter in the seventh and Syd Cohen staved off the Yanks in the last two innings. He retired five men in order and had two out in the ninth when he encountered a home run by Joe DiMaggio into the dead centerfield bleachers. It was no bunt.

Six of their 11 hits the Nats made in the first two innings. One Kemp Wicker, a southpaw recruit from Newark, relieved Gomez in the second inning and gave up only two other runs to the Nats who twice had the bases filled with one out but could produce only one run on each occasion. Whitehill and Cohen held the Yanks to nine hits.

The knocking of the Nats began on the first pitch. Ben Chapman almost knocked Gomez out of the game with a single that barked the shins of the pitcher. Buddy Lewis singled to right and the Nats' five-run rally was on in full cry.

Chapman Scores.

Chapman scored while Kuhel was grounding out and Stone drew a walk, at which point Reynolds bashed a single to left to score Lewis, Kress followed with a double off Crosetti's knee that scored Stone and Bluege delivered a single to center that put Kress on third, whence he scored on Bolton's long fly.

The Yanks bounced right back with two runs for which Jorgens' double against the centerfield fence was most responsible, but against Wicker in the second inning the Nats upped their lead to 6-2. Wicker walked three to fill the bases with one out and the run scored when DiMaggio first misjudged and then dropped Reynolds' line drive which brought the run home.

Back came the Yanks with another run in the third, produced by Rolfe's triple to center and the situation became downright ominous when they continued their attack on Whitehill in the fifth and reduced his lead to 6-4 when DiMaggio singled, went to third on Gehrig's double against the rightfield wall and scored on Powell's fly to Stone.

But Whitehill reformed suddenly. He shut the Yanks out in the sixth and seventh and then it was that the Nats scored their seventh run with the aid of Bluege's single on which Crosetti made a wild throw, and Travis' pinch-hit single to right. Before the inning was over, the Nats had the bases filled with one out, but Kuhel and Stone were pop-up victims.

That home run of DiMaggio's in the ninth was pretty to watch, but as futile as a restraining order against the heat wave.

Louis Grim, Sharkey Smiling as They Await Opening Gong Tonight

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS.

Unperturbed by the betting odds that are heavily in favor of Joe Louis, Jack Sharkey smiles for his public at the end of his training campaign.

Both Joe Louis and his trainer, Jack Blackburne, affect sober expressions as Louis' hands are wrapped in the manner they will be taped tonight when Louis returns to the fistic wars against Jack Sharkey in an attempt to reinstate himself as the No. One title challenger.

Owens to Become Pro If the Offers Are Good

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 17.—The amateur days of Mercury-heeled Jesse Owens are over if "good legitimate offers" await him in the United States, both Owens and Larry Snyder, his coach, turned adviser, plainly indicated tonight.

"I've reached a certain height in amateur athletics and I can't reach any higher," said the brown Buckeye bullet who captured four gold medals in the Olympic games. "If you've been in one Olympic you've been in them all.

"The opportunity before me is worth considering, but even if I turn professional I'm going to get my college degree. That's the main thing."

"They Grab the Money."

Owens, who was suspended yesterday by the U. S. Amateur Athletic Union for failing to accompany a squad of athletes to Stockholm, charged the A. A. U. with "trying to run the Olympics on strictly business lines and take over college athletics."

"Somebody's making money somewhere," he said. "They are trying to grab all they can and we can't even buy a souvenir of the trip."

Snyder, who accused the A. A. U. with "shipping kids like cattle to get their 10 per cent" said if the offers made to his pupil are good and legitimate it's the only thing for him to do to accept them.

"He's already obtained the highest in amateur athletics," said Snyder. "Thank goodness his records were accepted before the suspension happened. It's a great opportunity for the colored boy."

Has Three Offers.

Asked if he was a bit apprehensive over his wife's views toward his prospective professional career, Jesse smiled:

"She's left the whole situation up to me. After all, I'm the head of my house—while I'm away, at least."

Offers to Owens include motion picture contracts from Fritz Pollard, sr., and Ralph Cooper, of Los Angeles, as well as an opportunity to make a ten-weeks' stage tour with Eddie Cantor.

Owens, who is almost mobbed by autograph-seekers when he appears on London's streets, said he didn't know what Cantor wanted him to do, adding "I ain't so hot as a tap dancer."

"With your sense of rhythm you'd

Olympic Team Joins Berlin Exodus

75,000 Jam Trains From City as Papers Bleat, 'We Won Games.'

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—Members of the various American Olympic teams, with a day on their hands before leaving on a special train for Hamburg tomorrow to catch the President Roosevelt for home, took the opportunity today to attend the big military festivities at Potsdam in observance of the 150th anniversary of the death of Frederick the Great.

Robert J. H. Kiphuth of Yale, coach of the men's swimming team, encountered strolling with his daughters on Unter Den Linden exclaimed:

"So this is Berlin. Its the first time I've been able to see the buildings for the crowd."

Trains Are Jammed.

Berlin's newspapers have little except "we won" all over the front pages. Almost everyone presented a column of figures a foot high to prove it. About the only thing the German athletes didn't win apparently was the "three-man canoeing with coxswain."

Some 75,000 foreign visitors tried to say farewell to the Olympics all at once today with the result it was the closest thing to confusion that has been seen since the games began. Few of them apparently had thought to make reservations on outbound trains. They besieged travel agencies, and hotel porters for help but thousands had little chance of getting away before tomorrow night.

Every sleeping berth on the scores of trains leaving Berlin tonight were occupied. So was every chair in the fleets of passenger planes

Scott Is Held To Draw by Feldman

New Yorker's Last-Round Rally Staves Off Defeat; Voting Is Divided.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Cowboy Howard Scott's meteoric rise in the fistic firmament was temporarily retarded last night by the back-firing of Lew Feldman, third ranking lightweight of the world, who fought the pugnacious Texan toe-to-toe through ten blistering rounds at Griffith Stadium to a split-vote draw before some 1,800 of the faithful.

With a luscious boxing plum—a bout with Champion Tony Canzoneri—dangling before his eyes, Scott found himself powerless to reach it in the face of Feldman's two-fisted answer to his bid. On The Post score sheet Scott won four rounds, the first, sixth, seventh and eighth, and Feldman won the rest, with exception of the fifth and ninth which were even. In total points, however, the Cowboy held a slight margin, 47½ to 46.

Scott did no better than gain an even break in the eyes of Judges Dunn and Singer, while Referee Eddie LaFond cast his ballot for Feldman.

Last Round Is Vital.

Feldman's wholly unexpected and dynamic rally in the final round evidently saved him from the defeat, for had Scott even held his own in this period he might have swayed the judges in his favor. As it was he didn't lay a glove on the cagey New Yorker, who scored innumerable points with a hit-and-run left jab. In fact it was Feldman's spurt in the latter stage of the ninth, which offset Scott's earlier advantages, that took all the steam out of Scott. The cowboy, a notoriously strong finisher, was simply in there at the end.

Scott was the aggressor from the opening bell but his aggressiveness repeatedly led him into Feldman's jumping left jab, which descended on the Cowboy with the devastating effect of an aerial bomb. Sammy bounced around the ring like a jittery Mexican jumping bean, firing his left, and frequently following with a potent right cross at long range.

Scott was obliged to take a couple of punches to get within punching distance of his quarry. His best blow was a rib-bending right to the heart that flopped open Feldman's mouth in the first and again in the sixth. The Cowboy had his opponent hanging on in the sixth with his punches to the body, but this merely offset an advantage Feldman had gained in the previous round when he rattled Scott's teeth

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Maybe the U. S. Olympic committee could have used Mr. Avery Brundage and Mr. Dan Ferris to better advantage in the weight events. The manner in which Mr. Brundage gave the old heave-ho to Eleanor Holm Jarrett and then coached Mr. Ferris in tossing Jesse Owens right out of the amateur ranks certainly makes it appear that America lost a bet in, say, the hammer throw, for instance, in which Germany swept all three places.

POVICH.

They apparently were trained to a fine edge by their experience in the Jarrett affair. When the Owens case came up, Mr. Brundage and Mr. Ferris didn't need any preliminary throws. They just laid hold of America's hero and bounced him out of his amateurism without drawing a heavy breath.

Of course, it was a heinous, not to say horrendous, crime that Owens committed. Actually the fiend refused to run a foot race in Sweden after the American Olympic committee had promised the Swedes that he would compete. There, on the face of it, was rank insubordination, and didn't all those badges across the expansive chests of Mr. Brundage and Mr. Ferris mean anything?

No, sir, no mere athlete could make suckers, individually and severally, out of the U. S. Olympic committee, which had given its solemn word. Owens would compete or else—and the or else meant that Owens would not compete again under the banner of amateurism. The fact that Owens was not consulted about the race in Sweden in the first place was irrelevant. The U. S. Olympic committee had spoken.

Of course, the Negro lad might have complained that he was just a bit tired after winning three Olympic titles for America and figuring in a fourth, but that didn't excuse him. This foot-racing business is serious business, apparently, and Mr. Brundage and Mr. Ferris would let him know it.

What did Owens think he was running for, the fun of it? And wasn't he under great obligations to the American Olympic committee who had appointed him to the team in the first place? If Owens, furthermore, had no appreciation for the fact that his presence in the Swedish games would assure the U. S. Olympic people the 10 per cent cut of the gate they had been promised, then he was not fit to run as an amateur.

They'd take away his A. A. U. card which reads something about sports for 'sports' sake, and exile him into professional ranks where he'd be among his own kind, prostituting his fame for lucre. If he refused to run a race for the benefit of the Olympic committee treasury, then, gad, he was fit only to run for his own personal profit. They'd show him.

In his hour of disgrace, Owens is probably more to be pitied than blamed. He faces the task now of accepting a $40,000 offer to turn professional, and that, doubtless, will be a terrific struggle. Mr. Brundage and Mr. Ferris, don't you think you've been too harsh?

Carpenter Within Inch Of World Discus Mark

Praha, Aug. 17 (AP).—Ken Carpenter, Olympic discus champion, came within a fraction of an inch of the world record, held by Willie Schroeder, of Germany, today, as the touring American track team won three out of four events against the Czechslovakians.

Dale Schofield won the 100 meters in 10.7 seconds. Glenn Morris took the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.8, but finished second to Norak in the high jump.

American Yacht Sixth In Hitler Trophy Race

Kiel, Germany, Aug. 17 (AP).—The favored American yacht, Indian Scout, finished sixth today in the first of a series of six-metered races for the Chancellor Hitler trophy. Vigri, the other American entry, placed seventh.

Laurel Fans Honor Powell Today

To the strains of "Maryland, My Maryland," Jake Powell, a native son of the Free State, will be honored at home-plate ceremonies at Griffith Stadium this afternoon by citizens of Laurel.

It's Laurel Day at the Washington baseball park and fans of that town will descend en masse upon the Staduim to watch the Nats play the Yakees and pay tribute to the Takoma Park lad who made good in the big leagues.

The ceremonies, sponsored by The Washington Post and The People's Drug Stores, will find American Legion bugle and drum corps leading the parade of Laurel fans onto the field and thence to their specially reserved section in the grandstands.

At home plate before the game, Gen. E. E. Hatch, mayor of Laurel, will make the presentation of a gift to the Yankee outfielder who formerly played with the Nats.

In deference to Laurel Day, Mayor Hatch has declared a half-holiday in the Maryland town and business and professional men will head the delegation. Civic organizations, headed by J. H. Fetty, secretary-treasurer of the Laurel Lions Club, have aided in the arrangements for the ceremonies.

The Laurel delegation will leave the town at 1:30 p. m. in an automobile caravan. Maryland State police will escort the fans to the District line, where the escort to the Stadium will be taken over by members of Maj. Brown's Metropolitan Police motorcycle corps.

Among Laurel citizens who have co-operated greatly in the staging of Laurel Day, and who will attend the game are J. F. Curtin, William F. McCormic, Ernest Stanton, Lee Moore, Hames H. Harrison, C. L. Miles, Bob Jenkins, Clyde Scaggs, Sol Lazerovitch, Louis Sussman, E. R. Harrison, De W. Donaldson, Lee Harrison, R. M. Watson, L. B. Howland, George Barkman, Bert Ayton, Charles Reilly, H. R. Brady, Pete Gavriles, Lloyd Kaiser and E. P. Ellis.

Crux of Struggle Is in Louis' Ability To Take Punching

By Bill McCormick.
A Staff Correspondent.

New York, Aug. 17.—Joe Louis, who is either the Brown Bomber of old or the Brown Bubble punctured by Max Schmeling, and Jack Sharkey, a venerable heavyweight once relegated to the discard, will attempt to beat each other into insensibility here tomorrow night in perhaps the most puzzling boxfighting contest of the year. So many elements enter into the bout between Louis and the former heavyweight champion that one and all among the so-called "smart boys" are absolutely refusing to make any predictions regarding the outcome.

The wagering odds favor the Detroit Negro who zoomed to within fist-flinging distance of fistiana's supreme award in a sensational two-year flight Louis is a 5-to-13 favorite to win, even money to win by a knockout and you can get 3 to 1 if you believe Sharkey will win by applying the chill to the frozen-faced Senegambian.

Is Louis Gun-Shy?

Perhaps the most important and significant matter to be settled within a punch or two after the boys get into action for a scheduled period of 10-rounds is, did the beating administered by Schmeling ruin the fighting spirit of Louis?

Those close to Jarring Joe in his training camp at Pompton Lake, N. J., tell us that the phlegmatic Negro is not the Joe Louis of old—that he is definitely gun-shy. Whether this timidity beaten into him by Der Schlager Schmeling will vanish once the battle gets under way remains a question to be answered not before about 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

Sharkey, always a master psychologist and one who always gave his best when fighting his darker-skinned brethren, may do much to add to Joe's timidity sometime before the gladiators enter the ring.

Sharkey's Evil Eye.

Jack always has practiced the "evil eye" busines on those opponents who he particularly wished to defeat. It is entirely within the realm of possibility that he may attempt to shove Louis around at the official weighing-in ceremonies at the Hippodrome tomorow.

Just what may happen to what remains of Louis' morale if Sharkey should berate him soundly, take a poke at him, or tread on his toes before usual witnesses to a weighting-in remains a matter of conjecture, but a matter well within the realm of possibility.

Also to be considered is Sharkey's ability to put up a good fight at his advanced age, which is at least 34. The Talkative Tar has not looked too good in some of his "comeback" bouts, but in others he has seemed almost the Sharkey of old—the same man who once wrested the heavyweight crown from Max Schmeling when they were both good.

Sharkey Held Able to Fight.

Those who have been with Sharkey in his training quarters at Orangeburg, N. J., say that the erstwhile Boston barkeeper is in splendid physical condition, but they are no more certain that he can still fight than they were that Schmeling could hold up his hands at the end of his training period for Louis.

One thing is generally conceded. If Sharkey is as good as he once was, or anywhere near that good, he has a better chance against Joe than did Der Schlager Schmeling, who dumped the Detroit Detonator into the canvas for a 10-count in the twelfth round.

Schmeling was forced to change his natural fighting style to take ad-

Braddock's Hand Is Reported Hurt; Fight May Be Off

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 17.—The New York Times says that plans for a heavyweight championship bout between Jimmy Braddock and the German challenger, Max Schmeling, next month may have to be canceled because of an injury to Braddok's left hand.

The champion is to appear at the meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission tomorrow for an examination, the paper says, and it has been learned from a reliable source that Braddock already has consulted a doctor about it and has made tentative arrangements to enter a hospital for an operation on the injured hand.

The injury, which has developed during Braddock's two months of preliminary training at Loch Sheldrake, N. Y., is an enlargement of the joint of the little finger of the left hand, a common ailment among boxers. It had become aggravated to such an extent that Braddock's arm becomes practically paralyzed up to the elbow when he closes his fist.

Braddock has not worked out at his camp for about two weeks.

10,000 to See Opening of Cumberland's 10-Day Meeting Today

Horse Fever Is Epidemic In Town

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 17.—Up here where the Potomac River is so narrow that George Washington could have dropp kicked the U. S. Treasury to the other side, the good people are being attacked by their annual case of horse fever. On the morrow, the ten-day meeting of the Cumberland Fair Association gets under way at the neat fair grounds park track, and from all indications everybody except a few policemen, firemen and the chief telephone operator will be at the races.

The track's press agent was not exaggerating when he predicted that a crowd of 10,000 would be on hand at post time. This mountain city already is feeling the influx of turfites from Baltimore, and Washington. The hotels are getting ready to hang out the S. R. O. signs. There should be money in them thar pockets tomorrow, too. Cumberland is buzzing with commercial activity. Factories are running full blast, and if the shopping on Baltimore street doesn't resemble F street in Washington on a Saturday afternoon it matches a Friday afternoon at least.

Familiar Entries.

Cumberland's downtown paddock, in front of the Fort Cumberland Hotel, lacked only the horses tonight. Owners, trainers, jockeys, track detectives and the usual sprinkling of touts leaned against the wall and talked only one subject—horse.

The overnight entries reveal that Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan has done a fair job. He lined up the usual seven-race program and drew as many well-balanced fields. The feature race, the Queen City Purse, is over the mile and a sixteenth route and should result in a keenly contested battle. Most of the entries are familar to half-mile and Charles Town followers. Hot Cake, reliable at the West Virginia course, Porphyry an old favorite: Helen Bab, Dearzin, Whittekind, Vennie H., Steel Toes, Dona Dulcin, holder of a track record here, and Sophisticated have been named. The last named is from New England.

Double on First and Second.

Cumberland offers something new in the placing of the daily double. Heretofore Maryland tracks have operated the twin wager on the first and third races. Starting tomorrow, the "double" will be on the first and second races.

Track officials, headed by President Manley, were hosts to the visiting newspapermen at a dinner in the clubhouse (There's a sporty one at this track) tonight.

The races continue through Saturday this week and following a lay-off on Monday will be resumed a week from tomorrow and will run until the next Saturday.

Post time each day will be 2 p .m.

BLUE DONNA, quickest to begin, drew away into a good lead, surrendered the lead to AEGIS nearing the stretch, came again, getting up in the concluding strides. AEGIS, away with the leaders, moved up on the inside to gain the lead and, despite holding on willingly, was unable to withstand the closing bid of hte winner. TUGBOAT, outpaced in the run through the back stretch, began moving up in the last 3 furlongs, ran into close quarters nearing the stretch and, closed willingly when clear. MISS OTIS, started on the outside, raced well and had no excuses. COLOR BEARER gained clear sailing on the inside during the first quarter-mile, saved ground in the stretch but was unable to make up any ground. CLASP displayed good speed for the first half mile, faltering later.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 2:56. Off at 2:57. Winner, A. G. Tarn's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUEEN FULL, $7.00, $3.60, $2.80; JINX, $9.40, $5.30; DANARCO, $10.20.

QUEEN FULL was kept within a striking distance of the pace for the first half mile, moved up stoutly when called upon, wore down JINX for the lead, drawing out strongly in the last furlong. JINX forced the early pace of ALL AGOG, went to the front when the early pacemaker began tiring and, despite holding on willingly, was unable to cope with the winner in the closing test. DANARCO was away fast, lacked speed to keep pace, moved up again nearing the stretch and closed going gamely. EASTPORT, unable to keep pace early, finished willingly on the outside.

THIRD RACE—Five and a half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-ol maidens and fillies. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:25½. Winner, C. V. Whitney's br. f. PEPLUM, shuffled back in the opening strides, worked his way up steadily leaving the backstretch, closed with a rush and was going away at the end. SUN CELERINA finished with good energy after working her way out of close quarters nearing the far turn. THE SCHEMER was going stoutly when too ltae. LADY SARA was never able to reach the leaders. ESCOHIGH displayed keen early speed, faltering after reaching the stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Bridge. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:54. Off at 3:54½. Winner, Mrs. C. Crane's b. h. (7), by Ladkin—Minefield. Trained by W. G. Wilson. Value to winner, $825; second, $165; third, $75; fourth, $35. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 2-5, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADFIELD, $7.70, $4.30, $3.20; FICKLE CHANCE, $6.10, $4.10; ALL FORLORN, $3.90.

LADFIELD dropped back in the opening strides, and was outrun during the first quarter mile, moved up fast approaching the far turn, responded gamely to pressure and outlasted FICKLE CHANCE at the end. FICKLE CHANCE, in the forefront throughout, held on willingly in the closing drive. ALL FORLORN, unable to get to the front, finished willingly in the stretch run, getting up in closing strides to wear down VOTE BOY. The latter displayed good speed, but had to be hustled all the way and weakened in the closing test. CHATUGA moved up stoutly on the inside leaving the backstretch although unable to make up any ground through the stretch run.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:26. Off at 4:27½. Winner, James H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POCKETPIECE, $65.60, $34.30, $18.20; DROLL STORY, $23.00, $12.60; ROYAL GOLD, $6.30.

POCKETPIECE went to the front in the run to the first turn, drew away into a good lead and dominated the running throughout, winning with speed to spare. DROLL STORY moved up steadily on the outside in the run down the backstretch and though closing willingly was unable to catch the winner. ROYAL GOLD, outrun until the last half mile, worked his way up steadily thereafter and closed with good energy. HADTOBE moved up with a rush on the inside leaving the backstretch though unable to improve her position in the closing drive. CONTINUITY, a trailer early, closed a gap. BUSTER BOY faltered after going a half mile. FLYING DERE, well placed, faltered.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:59. Off at 5:02. Winner, H. C. Holcomb's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RUTLAND, $10.30, $4.90, $3.50; BELOW COST, $9.10, $5.50; LIGHT HEELED, $6.40.

RUTLAND was restrained early while following in pursuit of the pace, wore down BELOW COST for the lead after leaving the backstretch and drew out, winning with speed in reserve. BELOW COST showed speed from the start, rated along under slight restraint, and held on well to the end though no match for the winner. LIGHT HEELED, slow to begin, improved his position steadily in the last 3 furlongs and closed going gamely. REAL JAM, unruly at the post, was well placed throughout, but faltered in the last furlong. BULL MARKET was unable to reach the leaders. BLACK MAIL had early speed. APATHY was forced to pull up.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:33. Off at 5:38½. Winner, Dixiana's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ICY WWIND, $18.50, $9.00, $6.30; SECURED, $21.00, $12.00; TENLAW, $11.10.

ICY WIWND, away fast, drew clear when straightening out on the backstretch, increased his lead steadily in the run down the backstretch, dominated the running all the way and won with speed to spare. SECURED, unable to keep up early, improved his position steadily in the last mile and closed willingly. TEN LAW moved up gradually in the run down the backstretch and held on well though no match for the first two. FLAT ROCK closed going gamely. JIM CRAWFORD, in closest pursuit of the pace for the first 5 furlongs, tired thereafter. BLANDISHMENT never could endanger the leaders. SCOTCH SOLDIER, unruly at the post, was far back all the way.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 6:10. Off at 6:10½. Winner, F. S. P. Randolph's blk. g. (3), by On Watch—Goldbrick. Trained by Frank White. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:49, 1:14 3-5, 1:42 1-5, 1:49.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VIGILANCE, $7.20, 03.90, $2.70; REPEAL, $4.60, $3.30; ALICE BYRD, $3.80.

VIGILANCE, under steadying restraint for the first half mile, moved up steadily on the outside thereafter, wore down the leaders before reaching the stretch, drew clear, but had to be hard ridden to hold off REPEAL. The latter, prominent all the way, wore down CABLEGRAM for the lead and was coming again at the close after being supplanted in the lead. ALICE BYRD was well placed the entire trip though unable to endanger the first two. BLACK HAT went evenly all the way. COYA was moving up, but never a factor. BALIOS, well placed early, dropped back steadily.

Diffenbaugh Upsets Bass, Titlist, in Mid-Atlantic PGA Golf

2 Other D. C. Survive First Matches

Shorey Loses; Treder, Jamison Also Fail to Make Grade.

By Dave Herman.
A Staff Correspondent.

Rolling Road Course, Catonsville, Md., Aug. 17.—George Diffenbaugh, of Indian Springs Country Club, smallest man in the tournament, but one of the most dangerous, qualified for the role of "giant killer" by clubbing the defending titleholder, Johnny Bass, of Hampton Roads, into defeat in the opening round of match play in the Middle Atlantic PGA championship today.

After qualifying safely with a 74 in this morning's medal round, Diffenbaugh put away young Bass, one up in a thrilling afternoon battle to gain revenge for the setback handed him by Bass in last year's finals.

Spencer, Walper Win.

Two other District professionals survived the day's firing. They were Cliff Spencer, of Beaver Dam Country Club, and Leo Walper, walloping Bethesda driving range professor.

Spencer, who made the grade with a 78, shaded a fellow townsman, Mel Shorey, of East Potomac, one up when Shorey knocked his tee shot behind a barn on the eighteenth hole and stymied himself.

Playing 16 holes in two under par, Walper snuffed out Johnny Flattery, of Rogers Forge, 5 and 4.

Another Washingtonian, Tommy Ryan, pro at Belle Haven, was eliminated by Charlie Betschler, of Hillendale, 1934 champion, 2 and 1.

Golf that ran the gamut from the sensational to the sloppy was dished out in the morning's medal play which saw two Baltimoreans—Glenn Spencer, rangy unattached Baltimore pro, and Ralph Beach, of Suburban—dominate the situation.

Al Treder, of Manor, with 83, and Al Jamison, of Kenwood, with 81, failed to make the grade.

A former Washington pro, Al Houghton, now at the Cavalier course, Virginia Beach, was bounced out by Big Carroll McMaster, of Woodholme, 3 and 2. Houghton, who had a 73 in the morning, complained of a twisted neck.

Both Score 72's.

Despite Bass' sub-par 34 on the outgoing nine, and his 3—3—3—4—4 start, Diffenbaugh went to the turn all even with Virginia pro. Then followed a hole-for-hole battle. On the seventeenth, a short one, Bass was trapped from the tee. Diffenbaugh played safely, won the hole with a par 3, for his margin of victory. Both scored 72's.

Cliff Spencer had a 1-up lead on Shorey going to the tenth. After Shorey avened the match at the fourteenth, Spencer birdied the sixteenth to go 1 up, and Shorey fired a par to take the seventeenth. Spencer put two shots together to get home on the eighteenth for his par 4, while Shorey blew his chances by slicing his drive behind a barn. It cost him a five and the match. Spencer had an approximate 73, Shorey a 74.

Two rounds of match play are scheduled tomorrow. Diffenbaugh meets Jim Flattery; Cliff Spencer faces Beach; McMaster battles Walper, and Betschler takes on Glenn Spencer.

First round, with qualifying scores: George Diffenbaugh (Indian Spring), 74, defeated Johnny Bass (Hampton Roads), 76, 1 up.

Carroll McMaster (Woodholme), 77, defeated Al Houghton (Virginia Beach), 73, 3 and 2.

Charlie Betschler (Hillendale), 73, defeated Tommy Ryan (Belle Haven), 77, 2 and 1.

ANDY OLIVERI.

Oliveri Takes Junior Public Golf Medal

Andrew Oliveri, defending champion and favorite, ran true to form in the qualifying round of the District public links junior tourney at East Potomac yesterday by winning the medal honors with a four over par, 72, three strokes ahead of his nearest rival, Bob Morris, who shot 75.

Oliveri was out in 35 and returned in 37 to duplicate his medal-winning performance in the East Potomac spring tourney. Joe Rodgers, after taking 44 blows on the first nine rallied and shot a sub-par 33, the lowest score of the day to finish third to the medalist.

All favorites draw easy matches in the first round, Oliveri facing Bill Leapley in the first match of the day. First round and quarter-final matches are on the card for today.

Pairings, starting times, and qualifying scores:

9, Andrew Oliveri, 72, vs. Bill Leapley, 86; 9:05, Ed Bodner, 83, vs. Milford Stein, 81; 9:10, Eli Blank, 82, vs. Frank Sanders, 94; 9:15, Bobby Bolt, 86, vs. Joe Rodgers, 77; 9:20, George Graham, 80, vs. Ernest Lord, jr., 90; 9:25, Harry Abrons, 96, vs. Ernie Garlem, 84; 9:30, Jack Hoffman, 81, vs. Layne Loffler, 94; 9:35, Lafe Franklin, 87, vs. Bob Morris, 75.

Mt. St. Mary's Grid Star Dies in Crash

Marlboro, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP).—William V. (Vince) Hopkins, 24, Waterbury, Conn., former Mount St. Mary's football star and selected on All-American football and basketball teams, was killed near here early yesterday in an automobile crash.

Also killed was a companion, Miss Helen McCourt, 22, a school teacher. Two other occupants of the car, Doyle Brandon, 27, the driver, and Jennie Mondello, 25, were seriously injured.

The car failed to make a curve on the highway, struck a tree and overturned. Hopkins, who was a student in the Department of Justice school for agents, at Washington, suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. He died in Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

2 Novices Win In Public Net Tourney

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—Two teen-age boys, making their first appearance in National Public Parks competition, stole the show from seasoned performers as the fourteenth annual meet opened today under a blazing sun.

M. C. Hopper, 18-year-old Tulsa High School firebrand, turned in a stunning straight-set defeat of Arnold Simons, Louisville champion and second seeded player. The Sooner youth's clever drop shots and steadiness were to much for Simons, who played erratically to lose, 6—3, 9—7, 6—1.

A 15-year-old Chicago boy, Seymour Greenberg, overcame first-set stage fright to eliminate Dave Perchonock, Philadelphia, 5—7, 6—1, 6—0, 6—1, and march into the third round.

Coupled with Hopper's upset of Simons was the surprise defeat of Joe Turskiñ seeded, Buffalo, N. Y., veteran, by James Ratliff, of Cincinnati, 8—6, 8—6, 6—4.

Other seeded players advanced with little difficulty. William Lurie, top-seeded New Yorker, dropped but two games in squelching Ray Stocklinski, of Washington, D. C. Louis Wetherell, Los Angeles champion, lost only one game in defeating Roman Kopp, of Shakopee, Minn.

'Swimathon' Prize Is Sought by 13

Thirteen ambitious swimmers dived into the Airport pool last night in quest of a "Swimathon" victory and a free round trip by air to the Cleveland exposition. The one who remains in the water longest—swimming, floating, treading water—gets the tour.

Popular favorite in the contest is the youngest entrant, Irving Hershowitz, 12 years old and blind, who with his brother Ellis, 18, started away on the long grind. Others entered are Patty, Judy and Buddy Barron, 3000 Connecticut avenue; Peggy Staats, 16, 2015 H street northwest; Elmer Burns, 17, Alexandria; Helen Lord, 18, 5520 Kansas avenue; George Harrison, Alexandria; Jacqueline White, 18, of 642 Eleventh street northeast; William Bailey, 30, of 1340 H street northeast; Charles Reed, 15, of 3223 Hyatt place; William Bailey, 30, of 1340 H street northeast, and Ellen Pobuk, Virginia Highlands.

If any of the contestants ever want to swim again, second and third awards are a life pass and a season pass to the pool.

Mangin Upset In Newport Net Play

By the Associated Press.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 17.—A sudden shower washed Gregory Mangin, the Newark, N. J., veteran, off the courts today to provide the twentieth Newport Casino tennis tournament with its customary first-day form reversal.

Mangin, who dotes on a dry, fast court, was called upon to engage Bob Underwood, brilliant Los Angeles youngster, in a second-round match when the downpour ceased. The Jerseyite, who was seeded fifth, fought valiantly, but the combination of a soggy court and Underwood's steady play forced him to bow out by scores of 6—4, 11—9.

Otherwise the opening play was according to Hoyle. The action ceased with two of the field, including John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Tex., in the fourth round, along with the unranked Bob Harmon, of Berkeley, Calif.

Cantor Would See That Owens Got Capable Piloting

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Aug. 17.—Eddie Cantor, film comedian, tonight prepared to launch an unofficial stewardship of the professional career of Jesse Owens, world fastest runner—providing Jesse accepts the offer.

Cantor, who cabled a bid of $40,000 to take Owens on a tour of the country, hitting vaudeville, lecture halls and playgrounds, said he "wants to see that Jesse gets the right sort of management." He planend to talk by transatlantic telephone with the running star, now in London preparing to sail for home.

The comedian explained why he made the unexpected offer for Owens' services.

"Jesse and Larry haven't had a lot of experience along this line, and I'm afraid they might figure the most flattering sounding bid is the best one. It might not be for their best interests."

He said he hoped to have Owens under his wing by the time the Negro runner reaches New York on the Queen Mary Sunday.

"If they sign the contract I'll fly to New York and meet them," the actor said. "Then we can get started right away, and there won't be any mistakes made."

Big Ten to Ignore A. A. U. Owens Ban

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commissioner and president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said tonight that the suspension of Jesse Owens by the Amateur Athletic Union would not disqualify the Ohio State Negro star from intercollegiate competition, provided he remains "otherwise eligible."

"If the A. A. U. suspended Owens for failure to compete in barnstorming meets in Europe," Griffith said, "he would still be eligible for Big Ten and National Collegiate A. A. competition, provided he remains otherwise eligible.

"By 'otherwise eligible,' I mean eligible scholastically, and, of course, remaining an amateur," he explained.

Nats Today Seek Fifth Straight Win

Five straight victories and their longest winning streak in two seasons will be the goal of the Nats this afternoon when they meet the Yankees at Griffith Stadium in the second of a three-game series.

Again possessing a winning streak of four straight, a mark which they have achieved twice before this season, the Nats will send Pete Appleton to the pitching mound today.

Appleton will be opposed by Irving Hadley, who, with his eleven victories against one defeat, has blossomed as the league's leading pitcher since he was traded to the Yankees by the Nats last winter.

Heffner Has Big Day, But Loses 2 Matches

Erie, Pa., Aug. 17 (AP).—Gordon Robinson, of Stamford, Ont., retained his Great Lakes tennis championship today, defeating Harry Heffner, Washington, D. C., in straight sets, 7—5, 6—3, 6—3.

Heffner also lost his bid for the junior championship, bowing to Dick Tindall, of St. Louis, 6—1, 6—0, 4—6, 6—2.

Miller, Heurich Fight for Loop Title Today

Industrial League Crown Is Stake in Fourth of Tense Struggles.

Washington's most bitter sandlot rivalry in a decade will flare anew again today when the Miller Furniture Co. nine and the Heurich Brewers clash on the West Ellipse diamond at 4:30 p. m.

Miller-Heurich battles are becoming historic as thrilling, tensely fought encounters. Last week the two teams met three times with only one decision gained as Washington sandlot followers watched the season's most stubbornly waged pitching battles.

Fighting for the Industrial League championship which will enable the winner to contest in the Washington Post Sandlot Association play-off for the city title, the Millers gained an edge on the Heurichs by winning a 6-to-3 game.

Two other times the two teams clashed and on each occasion battled to a tie, the scores being 2 to 2 and 3 to 3.

When Umpire Jeffries sends the two teams on the field again this afternoon, Joe Porter, pitching hero of the Millers, again will be on the mound. He will be opposed by Joe Freschi, No. 1 pitching hope of the Heurichs.

Seeded Women Win in Essex Net Play

By the Associated Press.

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 17.—Favorites survived the opening day's play of the twelfth annual Essex Country Club women's invitation tennis tournament, halted today by rain before all first round matches were played.

Helen Jacobs, national and Wimbledon titlist and seeded No. 1, drew a first round bye, Kay Stammers, of England, was unable to be present for the singles, but sent word she would arrive Wednesday for the start of the doubles.

Alice Marble, of San Francisco, third seeded, gained the second round without loss of a game. Her opponent was Isabel Lawrence, of Topsfield.

Mary Cootes, Alexandria, Va., won a 7—5, 6—3 set from Mrs. N. T. Winthrop, Manchester; while Kay Winthrop, Boston, defeated Edith Sigourney, Nahant, 6—2, 6—1.

U. S. Boxers Beat Nazi's Team, 3 to 2

Hanover, Germany, Aug. 17 (AP).—A team of five American Olympic boxers triumphed in three bouts and lost two against German fisticuffers tonight.

Carl Vinciquerra, light heavyweight from Omaha, won the most convincing of The Star-Spangled victories when he technically knocked out R. Luecke in the third round. Jackie Wilson, Cleveland bantamweight, outpointed F. Niake, and Willis Johnson, Detroit heavyweight, won a clear-cut decision over Sikora, one of the best German heavyweights.

James Urso, flyweight from Detroit, was a technical knockout victim of G. Brofazi when he was forced to give up in the second round because of an eye injury. William Townsend, U. S. Army heavyweight boxer from Hawaii, dropped a three-round decision to Ernst Harms.

Louis-Sharkey Fight Is Puzzle

vantage of the weaknesses he had discovered in Louis' form. Sharkey naturally fights the kind of fight Max was forced to adopt to beat Joe. That leaves the question almost entirely up to how far Louis has gone back—and how far Sharkey has come back, excepting for one other point.

It is possible that Louis may have ironed out those weaknesses which made him fairly easy prey for Schmeling. In that case, Sharkey will find himself faced by a practically unsurmountable task, even if he is still able to fight.

All these questions have roused interest in the fight to a white-hot condition. That interest is being evidenced in a closing day ticket rush, the likes of which has not been seen for many a day.

Promoter Mike Jacobs estimates the gate will gross about $200,000, which is very good indeed considering that the top price for the contest is but $11.50. The low scale itself is doing much to stimulate interest. People are not trekking into New York from all parts of the country for this bout as they have for many of Louis' previous contests, but those who are here and are interested in beak-biffing undoubtedly will become last-minute customers.

For the sake of the record, and to maintain an average of about 89 per cent of wrong guesses, the writer predicts that Sharkey will win the bout by a knockout—and that this one won't go as far as the Schmeling fight did.

Now we are on the limb—and you can start sawing.

Olympic Suspending Champions

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Avery Brundage (left), president of the A. A. U., and Dan Ferris, secretary, who clinched the world and Olympic suspending laurels over the week-end by declaring Jesse Owens ineligible for further amateur competition. Owens, world sprint champion, was accused of refusing to run—for the A. A. U.—in a series of meets in Scandinavian countries. It was the second major suspension for the suspending twins who gained their first victory with a decision over Eleanor Holm Jarrett.

soon master it," Snyder assured him.

Snyder disclosed that Owens turned down a bid to run in the world labor meet held in New York City last week-end.

'Scandalous,' Says Jesse Owens' Wife

Cleveland, Aug. 17 (AP).—"Terrible" and "scandalous" said Jesse Owens' wife and his mother today of the Amateur Athletic Union's suspension of the Negro Olympic star, and both agreed that he should turn professional.

"It is pretty terrible," said the athlete's wife, Ruth.

Mrs. Cleveland Owens said "terrible isn't a word for it. It's scandalous. Hasn't my boy done everything that was asked of him? Didn't he run his legs off to bring victory to the team?"

"If he fails to get the money now he'll simply be a forgotten Owens in ten years," Jesse's wife said. "He should get the money while he can and then finish school. After he graduates, he can go into the athletic coaching field."

L. W. St. John, director of the department of athletics at Ohio State University, cabled Owens and Larry Snyder, Ohio State track coach, from Columbus, to return there before making a decision concerning Owens' future.

"Until I can determine the authenticity and reliability of some of these offers which are said to have been made to Jesse, I am strongly urging them to take things slowly," St. John said. "I question the advisability of Owens turning professional, but this is not necessarily my final attitude."

Swedes Not to Act In Owens Matter

Stockholm, Sweden, Aug. 17 (U.P.).—Swedish athletic authorities today said they would take no action if Jesse Owens did not compete in a meet beginning here Wednesday because they consider the matter a domestic American affair.

American athletes who will compete arrived by airplane from London tonight. They were Glenn Cunningham, Earle Meadows, Dave Albritton, Sam Francis, Forrest Towns and Harold Cagle.

Corn Scarcity Drives Prices To 10-Year Top

Maximum Advance 4 Cents for the Day; Wheat Also Higher.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Skyrocketing 4 cents, the extreme allowable limit, corn today led a general smashing of agricultural high-price records, some unequaled before in over ten years.

With almost 10,000,000 bushels of corn needed in Chicago to meet September delivery contracts and with but little on hand here, a stampede to buy took place as corn crop deterioration reports flooded in, especially from the Southwest and West on account of intensified drought and abnormal heat. Added interest was aroused in the corn market by the fact that prices on live hogs, often referred to as "corn on the hoof," had soared today to a peak unequaled previously but once in six years.

Corn closed buoyant, 3 cents to 4 cents above Saturday's finish, September 111⅞-112, December 98⅝-½, May 94½-⅝, wheat 1⅞-2⅛ up, September 113¼-⅜, December 112¾-⅞, May 110⅝-¾, oats ⅝ to 1 cent advanced, December 44½-⅝, and rye showing ¾-1⅞ bulge, December 81½. Provisions results were 12 to 30 cents gain.

Europe's Wheat Crop Smallest in 3 Years

The smallest wheat crop for three or four years in continental Europe was reported yesterday by the Department of Agriculture.

Its Bureau of Agricultural Economics said the European crop, excluding Russia, would amount to about 1,492,000,000 bushels compared to 1,573,535,000 bushels last year. Countries in the Danube Basin will produce 359,000,000 bushels this year compared to 301,690,000 bushels last year, it was said, because of an excellent crop. This export surplus in the Danube will care for several deficit producing countries in Europe, it was said.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 17.—Business was on a smaller scale in today's stock market and prices generally held steady. Motor shares moved to higher around while industrials remained quiet, but the tendency was towards higher prices. Transatlantic issues and European bonds moved irregularly and oil shares eased. Giltedged securities were dull.

Paris.—Irregularity prevailed in the bourse, with coal and international stocks advancing. The electrical group was weak and the tone was heavy for the remainder of the list.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures declined about one penny on better European and Canadian harvesting weather, small milling demand and American selling. Cotton closed 7 to 8 points higher following the share United States consumption figures, trade buying and covering.

Stocks Drift Downward in Less Active Trading; Corn Leads Sharp Grain Rise.

New York, Aug. 17.—Sharply rising prices for farm products, a recovery in the French franc above the gold shipping point, steadiness in bonds and irregularly lower prices for stocks in a dull session brought in the new week. Stock trading volume failed to reach a million shares for the first time since July 8. Corn and hogs were the sensation of the commodity section. September wheat closed 1⅞ cents higher at 113¼ cents a bushel. Cotton was firm.

Casting about for excuses, the market professed to take more interest in the Spanish situation and acted rather wary as well as weary on that score. Admittedly the affair over there is not one to increase confidence in uninterrupted world recovery in trade, without which our own modest improvement cannot continue indefinitely. However, the domestic position still looks fairly strong.

Hints of higher prices for copper, steel and other supplies are drawing orders. This week's steel operating rate, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute, jumped from 70 to 72.2 per cent of capacity, compared with 48.8 per cent a year ago. Such a rate in midsummer would not be possible without considerable headway in many other industries.

Steel shares were only mildly stimulated in the afternoon, following word of the estimate. They were unable to regain much of their early losses, which amounted to a point of more in Steel common, Bethlehem, Crucible and Youngstown. Railroad shares were weak, possibly hurt a little by the news of a fresh onslaught of hot weather in the grain and live stock regions. Western roads were sold. Union Pacific was the biggest loser. Southern Pacific and Great Northern gave up more than a point each. Santa Fe was down only fractionally, as were Central and B. & O. Pennsylvania was firm.

Coppers Decline.

Metal shares were lower, especially the coppers on the discovery that some units of the industry are opposed to price lifting at this time, even though a strong arm operation of that nature could be performed. On fairly large volume of sales, Kennecott and Anaconda dropped back more than a point. Oils also were weak. Airplanes descended.

Motor shares sold lower. Chrysler gave up an early gain. General Motors was steady at a slight loss. Rail equipments were mixed and rather active. Some of the recent favorites were crunched down 1 to 2 points. Brake Shoe and Westinghouse Air Brake worked higher. Telephone moved ahead, but others in the utility group had difficulty, especially Consolidated Edison and Columbia Gas. Farm implements were caught in the backwash of the drought developments. They lost 1 to 3 points. Mail orders were mixed.

In a miscellaneous group, General Electric moved against the trend. Crown Cork advanced sharply on reassuring news concerning the company's source of supply. Cuban American Sugar was well liked. The various classes of Ward Baking were led into new high ground. Philip Morris opened nearly 4 points down, but recovered about half the loss.

Prices Continue to rise.

While worrying a little perhaps over the effect of the higher bank reserve requirements and considerably more over the growing intensity of the fighting in Spain, with increased possibility of incidents which might touch off a general European war, the securities markets made no visible response to the steady forward march of commodity prices. Rising prices no doubt are nevertheless at work on other markets, and soon or late will make their influence felt.

This week's price index of the National Fertilizer Association rose to a new high level at 80.3 per cent of the 1925-26 average, and the furthest point reached since 1930. The day's contribution was a sharp advance in grains on recurrence of hot weather in the West. Advances in non-agricultural products are in the offing. The copper trade is preparing again to mark up the price of the metal, firmer steel prices are talked. On virtually no class of goods is price weakness developing. Demand is increasing or supplies are diminishing, or both, all along the line.

Foreign Prices Rise.

Prices in other countries also are advancing. The board of trade's index of British prices for July rose sharply to the highest level since the autumn of 1930. France is carrying on an active campaign for higher prices and the trend in Germany is upward. These developments are not altogether a healthy sign. They are a natural enough sequence of the completion of the first part of a general business recovery movement, but much of the rise is based on a shortage of agricultural production, and it still is assumed that industrial output generally could catch up with any expansion in demand now in sight.

The trouble lies in the possibility of a premature boom, one that would step up production too fast and before surplus stocks have been sufficiently liquidated, and which would raise the cost of living too rapidly. Cheap credit and Government spending aggravate the situation.

Brainbusting at Its Best.

The further sharp rise in the price of corn, which sent up hog prices, emphasizes the fact that the cost of living this winter is going to be higher, even though we do import a great deal more food from abroad. Each day of rising hog prices ought to be a reminder that the Tugwell-Wallace brain trust advisory department gave the country a little experiment which no amount of model homes for needle workers, of soil conservation gidgaping, or any other ruse of the New Deal Administration to give the more abundant life to voters can offset. The deliberate slaughtering of pigs and stoppage of breeding, along with the plow-under campaign in the corn lands is another example of how the wisest of men are unable to outwit nature. They are in the same ass-drawn buggy with those who still think a small group of brain trusters ought to be allowed to manage our currency on a commodity price basis.

Increased Reserves.

New York banks found their excess reserves reduced from $1,200,000,000 to about $500,000,000 over the week end in consequence of the 50 per cent increase in their reserve requirements which took effect under the reserve board's order as of yesterday. Sunday counts as a reserve day for member banks so far as daily average reserve requirements are concerned. For the country as a whole, apparently the reserve board's revised calculations of $1,700,000,000 as the total of excess reserves were reasonably accurate. Last week, under the old basis of calculating, they were $3,170,000,000. The increase in required reserves here lopped off about $625,000,000 from the excess and a little more was lost because of out of town bank withdrawals.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

In the face of fresh rebel victories in Spain and heightened fear that international difficulties might grow out of the peninsular civil war, foreign currencies held steady against the dollar in world markets yesterday.

French francs gained .00⅛ of a cent in New York at 6.58¾ cents, Holland guilders moved up .01 of a cent to 67.92 cents and Swiss francs held unchanged at 32.60 cents. The pound sterling eased ⅛ of a cent to $5.02⅝.

In London gold currencies hardened and the dollar advanced ⅛ of a cent to 5.02⅝ to the pound compared with the overnight New York rate of 5.02¾. The American unit closed at the equivalent of 6.588 cents to the franc in Paris against the New York overnight rate of 6.585 cents.

Business Here Now Only 2% Below Normal

8 Per Cent Higher Than Average for 147 U. S. Trading Areas.

Washington was one of the select group of 57 cities that stood within 10 per cent of the normal business line at the end of July, according to the monthly survey of 147 trading areas of the United States conducted by the research division of Brooke, Smith & French, of New York and Detroit. During July, Washington's business climbed from 3 per cent below normal to 2 per cent below, a gain of 1 per cent. At the end of July a year ago, the city's business was 18 per cent below normal.

Continued improvement in conditions during July brought the national business index 4 per cent nearer normal, or to a point 10 per cent below normal, according to the report. At the end of July a year ago, the national business index stood at 30 per cent below normal. Of the 147 trading areas, 80 improved their standing over June, 19 remained without change and 48 declined, says the report.

Cities which at the end of July stood at normal or above and their percentages in relation to the normal line were: Albuquerque, 4 per cent above normal; Bakersfield, 6 per cent above; Bangor, 4 per cent above; Billings, normal; Boise, 7 per cent above; Charleston, W. Va., 5 per cent above; Cheyenne, 4 per cent above; Dallas, 7 per cent above; Grand Junction, 4 per cent above; Green Bay, 6 per cent above; Harrisburg, normal; Indianapolis, 1 per cent above; Manchester, N. Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 17 (AP) (United States Department of Agriculture).—Firmness in asking prices was generally maintained by holders of wool in the Boston market today. The price situation was improved by a recent increase in purchases by several large manufacturers. In the past ten days bids were made much more frequently than in late July or even in early August, and there was a noticeable decrease in the margin between bid and asking prices.

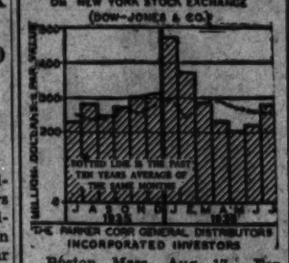
Akron, Ohio, Aug. 17 (AP).—Total net sales of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. for the first half of 1936 jumped more than $12,000,000 and net profits increased more than $1,000,000 over the first six months of 1935, President P. W. Litchfield reported to directors today. Total net sales for the half-year were $90,908,684, compared to $78,828,358 for 1935, Litchfield reported, while net profit added to surplus was $3,598,683 as against $2,400,777 last year.

German Trade Turns To Favorable Balance

Berlin, Aug. 17 (AP).—A sharp increase in German exports during the first half of this year, reported today, turned a commercial deficit into a favorable balance of trade, the goal of Nazi economists.

German exports increased 280,000,000 marks (about $112,000,000) during the first six months of 1936, a gain of 14.3 per cent over the comparative period of last year. During the same periods imports declined 1 per cent, leaving a favorable balance of trade amounting to 131,000,000 marks (about $52,400,000), the excess of exports over imports.

July Bond Sales Largest in 3 Years



D-K PARKER CORP GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 17.—For the past two months bonds have been active, with July sales on the New York Stock Exchange the largest since 1933. Idle money is still exerting great pressure. In addition to the demand for high grade bonds there has been a marked increase in the activity of many of the lower grade bonds.

Curb Prices Dip In Light Trading

New York, Aug. 17 (AP).—With the exception of a show of strength in a few industrial specialties, curb market stocks leaned to the offside today. Trading was light, transfers aggregating 171,000 shares, compared with 244,000 last Friday.

Some of the utility shares, which were more active than the general run of stocks, showed the widest declines. American Gas dropped 1⅝ points to 43½, Electric Bond & Share lost ⅛ at 22⅝, Niagara Hudson yielded ¼ at 15¾ and Northern States Power "A" was ⅛ off at 32¼.

On the advancing side were a group of inactive specialties, including Pennsylvania Salt, up 8 points at 146 and Pepperell Manufacturing, up 4¾ at 91¼.

BARLEY—Stock in elevators, 476 bushels.

But Distribution for Season Is Well Under Average.

New York, Aug. 17.—The total stock of all cottons in the United States at the close of the cotton season just ended, on July 31, was smaller than that on any comparable date since 1930, according to preliminary figures issued by the New York Cotton Exchange Service. It totaled approximately 5,477,000 bales, compared with 7,208,000 on the corresponding date last year and a maximum of 9,678,000 in 1932.

"During the past cotton season the distribution of cotton by the United States in the form of consumption and exports, plus a small quantity destroyed, exceeded the new supply, in the form of production plus imports, by 1,731,000 bales," says the Exchange Service. "Distribution totaled 12,395,000 bales, while the new supply aggregated only 10,664,000. It is this excess of distribution over the new supply which accounts for the reduction of the domestic carryover of all cottons from 7,208,000 bales last year to 5,477,000 this year.

"Distribution during the past season was much greater than in the previous season. The total of 12,395,000 for the past season compares with only 10,207,000 in the preceding season, the increase being 2,188,000 bales. However, a distribution of all cottons by the United States of 12,395,000 bales in a cotton season compares unfavorably with most past seasons for several decades.

"The largest distribution in any season was recorded in 1926-27, when it aggregated 18,223,000 bales. As far back as the 1906-07 season this country distributed 13,185,000 bales. Average distribution in the ten seasons prior to this last season was 13,914,000 bales."

Retail Advertising Continues to Gain

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The volume of advertising placed by retailers in the newspapers of 68 major cities during the 32-week period from January 1 to August 8 was 27,229,882 lines greater than that placed in the same cities during the corresponding period of 1935, Advertising Age reported today.

The total retail advertising volume in these cities during that period was 524,363,762 lines, compared with 497,133,880 lines last year, the increase amounting to 5.5 per cent.

On the Air Today

During the vacation absence of John Heiney, Post Radio Editor, his column will be conducted by various Washington radio personalities. Today's guest columnist is Madeline Ensign, WOL program manager.

This column reflects the announcerial staff of WOL, both present and future. Permit me to introduce Charles (Tony) Wakeman, who will join us September 1. Many of you will recognize his name. He is frequently in headlines. Recently he won the Atlantic City Press Club gold medal for the best news broadcast of the year, the specific occasion being an eye-witness account of the Johnstown floods. In 1935 he received the H. P. Davis Memorial Announcers Award.

Tony hails from WJAS, Pittsburgh. He broke into the broadcasting business when he was 16. Tony's specialty is sports and special events. WOL believes Tony, whose Penn State records in football, track and swimming still inspire that university's hopeful athletes, will be the answer to local sports fans' prayers.

* * * *

I asked each of the boys to submit a paragraph for this column. Look what I got from Art Brown:

"So, you holler for help just when I'm walking out with three mikes to do a "Man On the Street." In making these assignments, my chickee, dost realize you put me on the spot? Last time, at Keith's, the police told Hardie Meakin he'd have to keep the crowd away from the front door. Hardie said: "That's no crowd, that's Brown, broadcasting." Kidding aside, though, I like these street affairs. Please tell the feminine readers I don't bite or use weapons of any kind. On the street, YOU push the questions out—and what comes back at you? One never knows—that's why I'm such a nervous wreck."

* * * *

Ted Ostenkamp, "Washington's pioneer sportcaster", answered thusly: "A breakfast sports program? Sure, why not? Nothing like a five-minute forecast of brief and concise items—results of outstanding events to aid the digestion and speed up that shaving session. I give you This morning in sports'—8 a. m. and I don't go back to bed afterward either."

* * * *

Bob Hurleigh submitted:

"How do I like working the Sundodgers' Serenade? I never enjoyed work more. Informality describes both the presentation and the listeners. During the two hours on the air last Saturday midnight, we received, among some 250 phone calls—invites to parties, fights, a horse show and actually to a baby christening. After a 40-hour week of 'straight announcing,' it's lots of fun to let down your hair and play for two hours."

* * * *

Diminutive Frank Young scribbled on the back of a commercial log: "Some observations after playing for more amateurs (some 5,000 to be exact) than any other pianist in town: Between our own amateur show, every Friday night, and three weeks with the Major Bowes scouts last month, it boils down to this: Out of a thousand auditions you are lucky to find 16 talented people . . . and nobody feels worse than yours truly at the sound of that terrible, tormenting GONG!!"

* * * *

Stephen McCormick avers: "The adage 'no news is good news' certainly does not apply to a newscaster and nobody gets censored more harshly by John Q. Public than the chap that deals it out. Little John just won't tolerate a mispronounciation of the name of his home town, even though it's too small to be listed in the Atlas. That pronunciation must be correct or brrrring goes the phone. I have ascertained, through public opinion, that the average listener likes a diversified broadcast of news happenings tnd the 'end piece' to really top off the broadcast should be humorous. Nothing pleases the average man so much as hearing about another fellow's embarrassing moment."

C. C. Helferstay, 78, Dies After Accident

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 17.—Suffering from injuries sustained when struck by an automobile while returning home from witnessing a fireman's parade here Thursday evening, Charles Clinton Helferstay, 78, died in a local hospital last night.

He was struck by a car operated by F. O. Trump, jr., of near Kearneysville, W. Va.

Helferstay, a lifelong resident of the city, is survived by one sister, Mrs. D. W. Mullen, this city; an aunt, Mrs. Alice West, also this city, and ten nieces and nephews. The funeral will be held here tomorrow afternoon with interment in Green Hill Cemetery.

Senate Meets in Secret As Cuban Hurls Charges

Havana, Aug. 17 (AP).—The Cuban Senate met in a secret session tonight after Senator Lucilo de la Pena announced his intention to "discuss grave charges against a party of the congress, affecting the President of the republic and members of the cabinet."

Senator de la Pena's speech, in which he said the government had not complied with its obligations and duties, was interrupted by an outbreak of applause from the galleries that resulted in their being cleared.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6843, folio 227, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on TUESDAY, THE EIGHTEENTH DAY OF AUGUST, 1936, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following described property in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Lot 163 in Clarence F. Norment's subdivision of lots in Block 2 in "Columbia Heights," and part of Block 16 in Todd and Brown's Subdivision of part of "Mount Pleasant" and "Pleasant Plains," as per plat of said Norment's subdivision recorded in Liber No. 44, folio 120, of the records of the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia. Subject to the 35-foot building restriction line on Thirteenth street, as established by proceedings in District Court Case No. 1551, in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. Subject to covenants of record. Note: At the date hereof the above-described land is designated on the books of the Assessor of the District of Columbia for taxation purposes as Lot 163 in Square 2890. Subject to the right of redemption by the makers of the aforesaid deed of trust, their heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from the date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, represented by promissory notes of purchaser payable in one and two years, with interest at 5 per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $300.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

Proposals

Procurement Division, Public Building Branch, Washington, D. C., August 12, 1936—Sealed bids in duplicate will be publicly opened in this office at 1 p. m., August 26, 1936, for miscellaneous heating, plumbing and ventilation changes at the Federal Warehouse at Washington, D. C. Attention is directed to the special conditions of bidding set forth in the specifications, and Bulletin No. 51 of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works attached hereto. Specifications and drawings (if any) may be obtained at this office in the discretion of the Assistant Director of Procurement, Public Buildings Branch, W. E. Reynolds, Assistant Director.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, Washington, D. C., August 13, 1936. Sealed bids in duplicate will be received until two o'clock p. m., TUESDAY, September 15, 1936, and then publicly opened for the following work in connection with construction of the Library Building at Howard University, Washington, D. C.

(1) Furnishing all labor and materials and performing all work for the construction (including all mechanical equipment). This work will include demolition, relocation of the President's House, excavating, reinforced concrete construction, structural steel work, brick masonry, miscellaneous iron work, slate roofing, flashing, lathing and plastering, carpentry, electric elevators and dumb waiters, plumbing, heating, ventilating, air conditioning and electrical installations, finish grading, exposed aggregate concrete walks, brick steps and landscaping.

(2) Bookstack construction, furnished and installed complete. This work will include steel bookstack construction complete, including bookstack floor construction, carrels, elevators, book conveyors, pneumatic tube system, painting, etc.

(3) Lecture hall seating, office furniture, library furniture, Venetian blinds, shades and draperies, furnished and installed complete ready for use.

A certified check for One Hundred Dollars payable to the Treasurer of the United States is required as security for the safe return of the drawings. A guarantee of bond, certified check or United States bonds for not less than ten per cent of the bid will also be required. Performance bond and payment bond will each be fifty per cent of the contract price. Time of performance will be an essence of the contract and will be considered in making the award.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids as the interests of the Government may require; waive any informality in the bids received, and accept or reject any item of any bid unless such bid is qualified by specific limitations. Envelopes containing bids must be sealed, marked as directed in the specifications and addressed to the Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D. C. Bids will be opened in Room 6103-08, Interior Department Building.

1. Find the apartment that meets your requirement—in the section in which you want to live.

2. Note the key letters and the number at the end of the ad. For example: D-5.

3. Then find the letter of the alphabet (in this case, D) at the top of the map. This means the apartment is located somewhere between the D at the top and the D at the bottom of the map.

4. Then look for the numeral (in this case, 5) at either side of the map. Where the D and 5 meet is the vicinity in which the apartment is located.

Trick Charged In Sterilization Of Ann Hewitt

Girl's Lawyer Also Asserts Surgeon Denied Action; Attorneys in Clash.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Aug. 17.—Testimony that Ann Hewitt was sterilized without her permission and that one of the surgeons later denied the operation had been performed was given today at the trial of two doctors, accused of mayhem conspiracy against the brunette heiress.

The testimony came from R. P. Tyler, attorney for Miss Hewitt, shortly after prosecution and defense had clashed over a defense refusal to cross-examine her.

Before a courtroom jammed with women spectators, Miss Hewitt, smartly attired, listened intently today while lawyers wrangled over the defense refusal to continue its cross-examination, suddenly terminated after Friday's session in which the doctors' lawyer contended the heiress was a "tool" of an extortion plot against her mother.

Cross-examined himself, Tyler admitted he had acted for the girl's mother, Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt, in settling a $54,000 gambling debt she incurred at Agua Caliente, but denied he was her "attorney."

Discusses Fees.

Tyler filed Miss Hewitt's $500,000 damage suit against her mother and the two doctors, Tilton E. Tillman and Samuel G. Boyd.

"How much did you receive in attorney's fees for filing the civil litigation?" I. M. Golden, defense attorney, asked.

"Not one cent," Tyler replied.

"Did you receive some money as attorney's fees from Mrs. Hewitt?"

"I received some money for a trifling matter."

On direct examination, the attorney told of three conversations with Dr. Boyd prior to filing of the damage suit.

"I telephoned Dr. Boyd," Tyler said, "told him I understood the operation was for appendicitis, and asked him if that was correct. Dr. Boyd said most emphatically yes.

Lays Denial to Doctor.

"Then I called his attention to an affidavit Tillman made in New Jersey referring to the operation and which stated that prior to it, Miss Hewitt had been subjected to a mentality test. I told Boyd this didn't look right to me, but he insisted that nothing was done except correction of the appendicitis."

Tyler said later he found from hospital records that a sterilization had been performed, and again communicated with Dr. Boyd.

"I said 'Doctor what is the truth about this operation?'" Tyler testified.

"Boyd replied they had performed a sterilization, and I asked him if he had Miss Hewitt's permission.

"Boyd replied 'No, because she was feeble-minded.'

"Who said she was feeble-minded?" Tyler said he asked.

The doctor replied it was Dr. Tillman, the attorney related.

Explains Denial.

Tyler said he asked Dr. Boyd if any pathological condition had been found and the doctor replied affirmatively.

"Dr. Boyd said Tillman had told him the girl was morally lax and a high-grade moron," Tyler testified.

The attorney said Dr. Boyd explained his first denial that the operation had been performed by saying he did not wish to discuss the case over the telephone.

The third conversation with Dr. Boyd, Tyler said, referred to case records, which stated Miss Hewitt never had developed beyond 11 years, and that the operation was for sterilization and appendicitis.

The filing of the $500,000 damage suit resulted in the police-signed criminal charges against the doctors and Mrs. Hewitt.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Samuel Lubell.

A test case to determine whether per diem employes with permanent jobs are entitled to vacations under the new leave regulations is being arranged by A. F. G. E. headquarters.

Confusion as to the leave status of these employes has been caused by section F of the regulations excepting per diem employes when "engaged in an emergency." Col. Charles I. Stengle, who is arranging for a test opinion by the acting Comptroller General, points out that workers who have been employed for from two to ten years and who have had retirement deductions made from their salaries, can hardly be classed as "emergency" workers.

In all there are about 1,000 such per diem workers in the city, most of them connected with the Maintenance Division of the National Capital Park Service. In the District Repair Shops, where a similar situation exists, per diem workers have been given leave.

Inclusion of the Capittal Parks workmen will be sought first by administrative order. Failing that a test case will be arranged.

Isabelle Chapell at Agriculture has written an original one-act comedy, "I Cover the Beauty Contest," which will be played at this afternoon's meeting of the department's dramatic group in the auditorium. The fast and furious comedy takes place in a barber shop. Included in the cast are Joseph Lima, Robert J. Fisher, Parke Petterson, Thelma Hendrixson, James McCarter and Stephen Di Marco.

Roof-Garden Greenhouse.

Of all the Government agencies, we would have thought the Department of Agriculture would be the last to succumb to the skyscraper influence, yet the Bureau of Plant Industry has gone to the roof of the South Building to put up its new greenhouse.

Completed only a few weeks ago, the new greenhouse is 300 feet long and 26 feet wide and extends the length of the sixth wing. Apart from being built seven floors above the street and being encircled by a railed walk, there is nothing unusual about its construction. It took almost five months to build and cost $50,000, much of which was for from 15,000 to 20,000 square feet of glass that E. B. Morris, of the Treasury Procurement Division, estimates went into the house.

There are 14 units, seven along each of the side aisles of the greenhouse, and most of them 20 feet long. Largest of the lot is 30-foot long unit No. 13. No one connected with the greenhouse could tell us whether the unit was so numbered by accident or as a deliberate challenge to superstitious columnists.

The great advantage of a roof-garden greenhouse, H. E. Alanson, business manager of the bureau, explained, was that the scientists on the lower floors could run up and down at their convenience to tend their experiments. Many experiments require almost constant supervision and would be impossible if the scientists had to commute to and from the department's greenhouses at Arlington or Beltsville, Md.

Summer being a poor time for greenhouse work, most of the units are comparatively tenantless. By fall, however, dozens of experiments covering half a dozen phases of plant life will be going full-blast.

Four of the units are to be devoted to work with cereals, principally in the crossing of different cereals with related grasses. William J. Sando is to handle wheat; Gustav A. Wiebe, barley, and Thomas R. Stanton, oats. One unit, Dr. Max A. McCall in charge of the division, explained, was to be quarantined and used to store a number of dangerous plant viruses. Harold H. McKinney will supervise the quarantining.

In another unit, shriveled, brown-withered tobacco leaves reveal an experiment that has already been begun, that of J. E. McMurtrey, jr., on the effects of certain virus diseases on tobacco. McMurtrey is also planning an experiment to test the influence of copper and zinc on tobacco plants.

A new chestnut tree to replace the blighted American chestnut is the aim of Marvin Fowler in his testing the resistance of Asiatic chestnuts to different diseases. Among the other experiments to be started soon in the greenhouse will be one on nursery diseases of hardwood trees by Dr. W. C. Davis; another on legume bacteria by Louis T. Leonard, and several to counteract diseases caused by nematodes (the ringworms of plant life), by Dr. Gotthold Steiner, Jesse R. Christie, Edna M. Buhrer, Mrs. Grace S. Cobb, Mrs. Louise C. Shaw and Jocelyn Tyler.

There will also be several experiments on the relative efficacy of different types of fertilizer and in counteracting the deficiency of vital minerals in certain soils.

Each of the units has three long stands strewn about one-inch deep with pebbles and on which the potted plants being experimented with are placed. Even when there are no plants on the stands the pebbles are watered regularly. William Becker, one of the gardeners, explained, to prevent the boards from shrinking. Each of the units has its own ventilating system—screened windows that can be opened by the turn of a wheel—and a thermometer. Over the curved glass walls of the greenhouse are suspended iron slats, much like venetian blinds, which reduce the greenhouse temperature from 10 to 15 degrees in the summer and can be rolled up in the winter.

To see that none of the plants go thirsty, 24-hour gardening service is maintained. Besides Becker, the gardening staff includes B. H. Ballard, Norman Gleckler, Newton Ellis and Frank White. With most of the greenhouse empty these men find their task easy, but in the fall, when the scientists warm into action, another gardener will be added.

Russell Longenecker and Joe Whelan, of the Adjutant General's Office, in the War Department, are sporting new cars . . . Gladys Wilcox, of soprano fame, has transferred from the AGO to the Department of Agriculture . . . Edward McGinnis is searching for talent for the A. G. O.'s October minstrel show.

Herbert S. Hollander, a Washington newspaperman, has sent us a copy of his new picket-sized book entitled "Spoils." It is just the sort of book one would expect from the title, a stinging attack on the spoilsmen of both parties and a stirring challenge to strengthen the civil service system.

Specifically, Mr. Hollander advocates passage of the Logan and Ramspeck bills, the extension of classification to the field service, establishment of a central personnel agency and a civil service court of appeals; a decent minimum wage, a fair rating system and encouragement of tendency toward in-service training.

Golf Star Is Hurt; Under Observation

John J. Connelly, 20, former District public links golf champion, was taken to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation early yesterday after he reportedly stabbed himself with a pair of scissors.

Connelly similarly hurt himself about five months ago after his mother shot and killed his father, John Connelly, a park policeman. The youth was treated at Emergency Hospital for stab wounds at that time.

Neither stabbing attempts proved serious, however. The first wounds were superficial flesh wounds. Yesterday's stabbing inflicted minor flesh wounds in the chest.

Connelly was formerly captain of the Roosevelt High School golf team and won the public links championship at Rock Creek Park. He is employed now as a timekeeper for WPA.

His mother, Mrs. Alice Connelly, was acquitted June 25 of a second degree murder charge in the death of her husband in their home the night of March 17.

Sharecroppers Ask Governor To Solve Plight

By the Associated Press.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 17.—The Southern Tenant Farmers Union called on Gov. J. M. Futrell of Arkansas today to prove his "sincerity" in initiating a movement to solve the South's 70-year-old sharecropper and farm tenant problems.

At the same time the organization, which represents itself as spokesman for 30,000 sharecroppers in the east Arkansas cotton country, agreed to give its "fullest co-operation" to the proposal already indorsed by Southern Governors.

Gov. Futrell brought the South's tenancy question to the fore last Saturday with a proposal for a Southwide conference on the subject. A number of Southern Governors quickly indorsed the idea.

J. R. Butler, of White County, Ark., in a statement here said Futrell's action "marks a radical departure from his former attitude toward the dispossessed and disinherited citizens of his State."

The union head attacked Futrell as "one of the most bitter opponents of the organized sharecroppers and other farm laborers." He referred to the Governor's refusal to interfere in disorders arising from a sharecroppers' strike which Futrell blamed on "radicals."

Elevator Decapitates Boy.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 17 (AP).—An elevator counterweight decapitated 13-year-old Fred Rhodes while he was playing on the roof of a building here today. His head fell to the bottom of the shaft. The boy, with several companions, had raised a window opening into the shaft. As Rhodes looked in, the weight struck his neck.

Culbertson on Bridge

The partner who yells the loudest after a catastrophe at the contract table is not necessarily the blameless one. The chances are that his is merely a superiority of vocal cords. Recently I watched a hand at the conclusion of which one defender snarled to the other, "We can thank that horrible opening lead of yours for this!" He referred to the fact that the opponents' three club bid, which he himself had doubled largely on suspicion, was fulfilled, thus giving them a game. Because it did appear at first analysis that the opening lead was responsible for the debacle his partner meekly accepted the blame, so meekly, in fact, that I took him aside when the session was over and, after swearing him to secrecy so far as I was concerned, comforted him with the proof that the opening lead was immaterial and that it was his blustering partner who had made the really inexcusable error. The hand was:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 heart	2 clubs
2 spades	Pass	Pass	3 clubs
Pass	Pass	Double	(final bid)

South's free spade bid was one of those bids that an expert hates to make, but which he correctly feels must be made for strategic reasons. His hand was generally weak, but the solidity of his spade suit insured many playing tricks with spades as trump. At any rate, his two spade bid was a great deal sounder than his partner's subsequent double of three clubs. Very likely North made this double simply because he couldn't think of what else to do, being unwilling to rebid hearts or show diamonds at the three level, and, of course, not having a legitimate raise in spades. Considering that his partner had passed first, he had no right to count him for two defensive tricks, despite his spade overcall, and with fewer tricks in South's hand there was a grave chance of the three club bid being fulfilled.

South's choice of opening leads—the spade king—was certainly not open to criticism, regardless of North's subsequent wailing. Dummy's ace won and a diamond was led toward the king. North hopped with the ace and returned his remaining spade. Declarer ruffed, drew three rounds of trumps, then cashed the king of diamonds and exited from his hand with the third diamond. North won and played the fourth diamond, but declarer let him hold the trick, tossing on a heart. At this point there was nothing left for North to do but concede dummy's heart king, since he could not get off the lead. The defenders' tricks being limited to four, North began his aforesaid remarks to the effect that if South had "correctly" opened the queen of hearts the contract could not possibly have been made, since, in that event, the defenders would have had to win three heart and two diamond tricks.

That was true enough as far as it went, but it did not go nearly far enough. On the lead actually made a little foresight on North's part should clearly have seen the possibility of being thrown on lead at an inconvenient moment, and, for that reason, should have held on to his second spade for dear life.

After winning the ace of diamonds at the second trick he should have continued with the diamond queen. Then, although declarer later should throw him on lead with a diamond, he would have the spade as a card of exit, and it would do declarer no good to pass the spade, as he did the fourth diamond, since it would be won by South.

● You Can Depend On Our Quality Optical Service

We want to be fair to EACH of our patrons. Each of you desires to pay only for what you receive. The price of lenses varies according to the prescription.

Therefore, were we to advertise lenses together with frames at one price it would be unfair . . . some of you would be paying too much.

Our lenses are consistently low priced, varying in proportion to the lens correction and workmanship necessary in filling the prescription. Here you can have full confidence that you receive the maximum value for your investment.
